PREFACE

There have been increasing demands in recent years for copies of the Annual Reports on Epigraphy, published in the last two decades of the last and the first half of the present centuries, from scholars and institutions interested in epigraphical studies and research. And these Reports have been long out of print. It was, therefore, decided to bring out reprints of these rare and very useful Reports starting from the initial year 1887 in convenient volumes. The present one, consisting of such Reports for the years 1918 - 1921 is the fifth of the reprint series and will be followed in quick succession by others containing Reports for the subsequent years.

It is hoped that this re-publication will go a long way in sustaining and furthering interest in epigraphical studies. I wish to record here my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. M. S. Nagaraja Rao, Director General, Archaeological Survey of India, New Delhi, but for whose sympathetic consideration and approval, this useful reprint series would have remained a dream. Shri J. C. Gupta, Production Officer in my Office, has been largely responsible for the preparation of this reprint scheme and also for the actual printing and production.

PART I.

Office Routine.

As directed in G.O. No. R. 180, Home (Education), dated 13th August 1917, I was in charge of the current duties of the office of the Superintendent of Archæological Survey from 22nd August to 11th September 1917. Mr. K. V. Subrahmanya Ayyar returned from his long leave of one year and three months, on 4th December 1917. The two Epigraphical Students Mr. C. R. Krishnama Achari and Mr. G. V. Srinivasa Rao were also granted privilege leave—the one for two months and fourteen days from 4th December 1917 to 18th February 1918 and the other for one month and seven days from 3rd January 1918 to 9th February 1918. Mr. K. R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, who was appointed on probation for one year from 2nd February 1917, has been given an extension of probation for still another year.

Distribution of Work.

2. The three Epigraphical Students and one of the Senior Assistants are generally deputed for tour work from three to four months in the year by turns, the tours commencing from the first week of August and closing with the last week of February. Every one of these, after his return to headquarters, is engaged for about two months in arranging and pasting—a process which has to be scientifically attended to in putting together the several pieces, often hundreds, of an inscription, to enable one to handle it completely. They next transcribe the records and draw up a preliminary list of the collection made by them severally. The average collection of the four assistants together in a year comes to about 600 stone inscriptions. The transcripts are carefully checked and reviewed in the Annual Report drawn up between March and June, part of June and July being taken up in reading through and correcting the proofs of the report.

3. The publication work which consists mainly of the issue of the South-Indian Inscriptions and also sometimes of such special work as may be assigned to this office by the Government, is attended to by me assisted only by the other senior assistant at headquarters, since the rest of the staff is almost always occupied with the current work of collection and transcription. Often too, it is found necessary that my senior assistant at headquarters and I have also to go out on short tours to inspect personally some important monuments. Such absence from headquarters combined with the long leave availed of by the assistants clearly accounts for the delay in publication or the shortage in collection and it is easy to see that in a scientific department like mine a trained hand absenting himself on long leave could not be readily replaced and as such the outturn of work must in one form or other suffer.

Progress in Publication.

4. Since writing paragraph 3 of part I in my Annual Report for 1917, I sent to the press Volume III—Part III of South-Indian Inscriptions consisting of 479 manuscript pages including texts, translations and introductions of 116 Tamil inscriptions, on 21st December 1917. The whole of the manuscript was returned by the Superintendent, Government Press, for revision and was re-submitted on 19th February 1918 after careful reading, together with material for six facsimile plates. Volume III—Part IV, which is taken up on hand, has advanced to 100 pages of clean manuscript of the Tiruvālaṅgāḍu plates. About fifty pages still remain. A general index and introduction to Volume III will also go into this part and would, when completed, comprise about 350 pages of manuscript. The six facsimile plates that go with the Tiruvālaṅgāḍu inscriptions are also ready. Volume IV of South-Indian Inscriptions has also advanced to 125 pages of clean manuscripts and about 250 pages more, including an introduction and index, have to be added, to issue the volume.

5. Scholars appear to be somewhat concerned with the delay in the publication of South-Indian Inscriptions by this office. In a separate communication I have explained to Government that so long as I am held directly responsible for the regular issue annually of the report on the collection in its present form and the issue simultaneously of South-Indian Inscriptions on the lines laid down by Doctor Hultzsch, the first editor of the series, no higher rate of progress is possible but that with a revision of the staff, the re-distribution of collection and publication work and the conversion of the series of South-Indian Inscriptions into a quarterly journal—for securing also the co-operation of outside scholars—could alone expedite the progress of publication of these inscriptions.

Tours of the Establishment.

6. Mr. K. R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, the probationary Kanarese Epigraphical Student with Mr. G. V. Rangarajayya, the then acting Telugu Epigraphical Student, went to inspect certain villages in the Kurnool district to which the Deputy Collector of Koilkuntla had drawn my attention. They started on 3rd July 1917 and after working together for some time they started for the Madakasīra taluk of the Anantapur district to finish the remaining firka in the villagewar survey of that taluk. Mr. Rangarajayya was asked to proceed to Teṇkāśi and Mr. Srinivasa Ayyangar finishing the villagewar survey of the Hindupur taluk returned to headquarters on 30th December 1917. Mr. Rangarajayya joined the Tamil Epigraphical Student Mr. G. V. Srinivasa Rao at Teṇkāśi, who left Madras on 5th September 1917, and both working together for about three months in that taluk finished the survey of two firkas and 3 villages of the third firka and returned to headquarters on 2nd December and 19th December 1917 respectively.

7. The Senior Assistant Mr. G. Venkoba Rao accompanied me on my special tour (vide next paragraph) and was deputed to finish the other places of the Tamil districts. He started on 11th January 1918 and copied inscriptions in about a dozen villages, five of which were not included in the printed programme but were brought to my notice by the Archæological Superintendent and required my immediate attention. He also examined between the 2nd and 11th of November 1917 with Mr. C. R. Krishnama Achari, the faintly visible Nāgarī, Grantha and Telugu inscriptions in the dark interior of the vimāna over the Yudhishṭhirēśvara shrine on the Mahēndragiri hill in the Ganjām district. These inscriptions written on a very rough surface almost as with the point of a pin are altogether impossible to copy on paper and the attempts of Mr. Venkoba Rao and Mr. C. R. Krishnama Achari to read them direct from the stone in strong Kitson lights have also been unsuccessful inasmuch as there was absolutely no space for the adjustment of the eye so necessary in reading inscriptions. The flash-light photographs of these taken by Mr. Longhurst did not help us any way better in deciphering the characters. The Raja Sahib of Mandasa very kindly secured for my assistants when these were there two sets of copper-plates, one of which is clearly of the Gaṅga king Anantavarman Vajrahasta who was crowned in 1038 A.D. The other plates are very faintly written. Both the sets will be noted below in Part II. Mr. Venkoba Rao further examined the date-portions of certain Tamil inscriptions in the Pudukkōṭṭai State which are in the possession of Diwan Bahadur T. Desika Achariyar, B.A., B.L., Trichinopoly, at the special request of Mr. L. D. Swamikannu Pillai.

Assistant Superintendent's Tour.

8. The Brāhmī cave inscriptions of Southern India which were brought to the notice of scholars about ten years ago and which were also submitted to some for critical study, still remain uninterpreted. I published a facsimile plate of a large number of them in my Reports for 1912 and 1915. Scholars engaged in the study of South-Indian history of the first centuries of the Christian era and earlier, have not paid to these ancient records the attention they deserve. In order to stimulate fresh inquiry in this connexion, I took advantage of the presence in my office of Mr. Ramaprasad Chanda, B.A., Honorary Secretary of the Varendra Research Society, Eastern Bengal, and a brilliant scholar of ethnology, who was specially deputed by the Director-General of Archæology to study epigraphy in my office. I induced him to take up these curious Brāhmī documents of Southern India for study and make an attempt, however slight it may be, to interpret them. We accordingly started together with the Senior Assistant Mr. G. Venkoba Rao on 4th September 1917 for the caves near Madura and Tinnevelly, incidentally visiting also the Pallava cave at Trichinopoly, the Nelliyappar temple at Tinnevelly and the rock-cut sculptures and inscriptions at Kaḷugumalai.

9. Some fresh Pallava writings on the upper cave at Trichinopoly were discovered, which further confirm the excavation of the cave by the Pallava king Mahēndra I in the 7th century A.D. The lower cave at the foot of the hill has two cellars on either side of a rock-cut hall as in the case of the upper cave but has on its back wall huge sculptures of Gaṇapati, Śiva, Durgā and the Sun-god in place of the Tamil inscription which we see in the upper cave. No Pallava-Grantha inscriptions are seen in the lower cave. The signatures of three private individuals in later Tamil of about the 13th century on one of the pillars, the sculptures noted above, and some details of architecture suggest a much later origin of this cave. One or two fresh inscriptions not copied in previous years were also discovered at Kaḷugumalai and all the labels in Vaṭṭeḻuttu characters beneath the magnificent rows of Jaina images on the rock were directly read from the stone in order to facilitate publication at some future date.

10. To go back to the Brāhmī inscriptions: careful readings directly from the stone and from the estampages were prepared on the spot of almost all such records as had been hitherto collected by the department and a few fresh ones were also discovered on the Siddharmalai cave at Mēṭṭuppaṭṭi. A facsimile plate of these fresh inscriptions and of others not already published, is appended hereto. Mr. Ramaprasad Chanda is shortly going to publish a monograph on these inscriptions which is expected to throw some fresh light on these hitherto obscure documents.

11. I returned to headquarters from this short southern trip on 25th September 1917, and started again on 5th October 1917 for Berhampur at the request of Mr. T. C. Rath, B.A., a very earnest scholar much interested in the Epigraphy of the Uriya country. Mr. Krishnama Achari also accompanied me and we together visited all the places of the Ganjām district noted in the printed programme together with some others mentioned by Mr. Rath; but, to our great disappointment we found that this tour yielded no interesting results except certain indications as to the spread of influence of the Telugu kings of the Gaṅga line of Mukhaliṅgam far into the interior of the Uriya country almost as far as Rambha on the outskirts of Orissa. Mr. Rath, however, secured for us five sets of valuable copper-plates, four of which belong to the Bhañja line of Uriya kings and one to Indravarman of the Gaṅga dynasty of the 9th century A.D.

On returning to Bezwada from Berhampur I again examined with Mr. Krishnama Achari the antiquities of the place and discovered close on the south side of the Kanaka-Durgā temple a rock with sculptures of about the 17th century with labels indicating the names of gods and goddesses cut below them. Most of the figures are forms of Durgā, the very popular deity of Bezwada at present. A facsimile plate of these figures also is published with a view to give an idea of what fantastic forms the goddess Durgā was capable of assuming according to the Mantraśāstra. Many rock-cut caves on this same side of the Indrakīla hill point to their Chālukyan origin by the writings in distinct Chālukyan characters which they bear here and there. At one such cave called Gōvinda-Bāvāji-maṭha was discovered a record of the early years of the 9th century A.D. which confirms the remarks made by me already about the antiquity of Bezwada in paragraph 77, page 149, of the Annual Report for 1916. I returned to headquarters on 30th October 1917.

12. Mr. Krishnama Achari before proceeding to Mahēndragiri with Mr. G. Venkoba Rao—vide paragraph 7 above—to examine the inscriptions there, visited Peḍana near Masulipatam and copied an Arabic inscription kindly read for me by Mr. Yazdani of His Highness the Nizam's Government in whose opinion the record is not of any epigraphical or historical importance. After returning from Mahēndragiri he copied some more inscriptions at West Vipparru, Ghaṇṭasāla and Masulipatam securing also a set of copper-plates of a local chief who was probably a Reḍḍi subordinate. His further tour for the villagewar survey of the Tenali taluk was suddenly stopped on account of his ill-health and he went on leave from camp on 4th December 1917.

The Year's Work.

13. The Annual Report for 1916–17 was submitted to Government on 20th July 1917 and the tours described above commenced on the 3rd July 1917 and extended over a period of nearly seven months, during which period 490 villages were visited and as many as 687 inscriptions were collected. One hundred and eighty-nine inscriptions copied in the last touring season from sixteen villages in the Tanjore, Trichinopoly and South Arcot districts and a village in the French Settlements, Pondicherry, but not included in the report for 1917 have also been examined. The total number of the inscriptions included in Appendices B and C thus comes to 876, the highest number on record. Tentative transcripts of all these inscriptions have been prepared and index tickets have been drawn up for the listed collection of last year.

14. Appendix A contains a list of twenty-two copper-plate inscriptions examined during the year. In addition to the few already acknowledged I have to express my thanks to M.R.Ry. J. Ramayya Pantulu, M.R.Ry. M. Kalidasu and Professor V. Rangacharya for six sets of copper-plates secured by them for my examination.

15. A single copper-plate with two written sides in modern Tamil characters has been sent for examination by the Superintendent, Government Museum. It is a forgery similar in contents to the one described on page 11 of the Annual Report for 1910. The Añju-pañchālattār, i.e., the five sects of the artisan class, viz., blacksmiths, carpenters, workers in brass and copper, masons and gold and silversmiths, constructed a bronze car for the goddess Kāmākshi Ammaṉ of Conjeeveram and in the course of taking it round in procession the car was obstructed by some vicious magical influence by a member of the weaver class. A certain Vegalitōṭṭiyaṉ Marudaśiṅganāyakkaṉ of Kochchi-Malayāḷam came to the rescue and detecting the persons who had obstructed the running of the car offered them up in sacrifice to the evil spirits whom they had invoked. In return for this service he was granted in the presence of Appurāja Kaśirāja and others a fee of rupee 1 per head on the artisan community and an annual income in grain.

16. An interesting fact which is recorded in the copper-plate inscription (No. 2 of Appendix A) is that prior to the claim of the Srī-Vaishṇava Brahman the image of Hanumanta in the village was worshipped by a shepherd (kuruba) called Madale Horaka. The Brahman reconsecrated the image according to the Pāncharātra ritual and took possession of all the property belonging to the temple. Among the other copper-plates examined during the year under review are some (Nos. 19 and 21) which are evident forgeries, and appear to have come into existence under circumstances similar to those of the copper-plates from the Madaksira and Dharmavaram taluks mentioned in the Annual Report for 1917.

17. Two sets of copper-plates noticed already in the previous Annual Reports (viz., No. 11 of 1914–15 and No. 12 of 1916–17) have been acquired for the Madras Museum and deposited there.

18. Of the miscellaneous work done at the request of the outside public I have only to mention a short note on the work accomplished by this office in Epigraphy in this Presidency since its inception, and furnished to His Excellency the Governor of French Settlements, Pondicherry. Another note on the worship of Sati in Southern India was also sent to the Director-General of Archæology for the information of the Hon'ble Mr. Walsh (Member of the Board of Revenue in Behar and Orissa) for a paper to be written by him on that subject. A palm-leaf Sanskṛit manuscript in Telugu characters was read for Dr. Sukthankar, Assistant Archæological Superintendent, Western Circle, which deals mostly with stōtras like Lalitāsahasranāma, Navaratna-mālikā, Bagalāstavarāja, etc., and some curious mantras like Śarabhasāḷva-mantra, Pañchamukhi-Hanumatkavacha-mantra, Bagalāmukhī-Brahmāstra-mantra and Bagalā-mālā-mantra, etc. Mr. Narasimha Rao, a vakil of Tenali, sent me a few palm leaves impressed with stamps ("annas four" on the right side and "treasury [illegible]" on the left back of the palm leaf) which I transcribed and translated for him. The contents reveal a hopelessly forged tradition expressed in a most confused style regarding the acquisition of a gold image of Viṭṭhala by Rāghavēndrasvāmi, one of the pontiffs of the Dvaita school of Mādhvas.

Conservation.

19. As regards conservation I have to mention only the two temples noted below:—

(1) The temple of Puṇyanāthēśvara at Tiruvaḍavāyil in the Nannilam taluk of the Tanjore district contains many inscriptions and is epigraphically important. One of these records contains the eleven verses in Tamil of the Dēvāram hymns of the Saiva saint Tirujñānaśambandar cut on stone. Printed editions of the Dēvāram do not make mention of this temple nor do these verses find a place in them. This is the first instance in which the Dēvāram verses are found engraved on the walls of a temple. The temple whose existence was brought to my notice by Mr. Jagadisvara Ayyar, Manager, office of the Archæological Superintendent, is very much neglected and richly deserves the subvention of Government.

(2) The temple of Brahmēśvara at Brahmadēśam, one mile south-west of Maṇḍagappaṭṭu in the Villupuram taluk of the South Arcot district, is also epigraphically important. The central shrine is covered all round with Chōla records of the first quarter of the eleventh century A.D. Many other inscriptions were found buried below the earth and could not be copied for want of time and convenience. The temple deserves early conservation.

Appendix E.—Dates from Appendices A, B and C to the Annual Report for 1917–18, calculated by the Officiating Epigraphist with the assistance of M.R.Ry. Diwan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai Avargal, M.A., B.L., L.L.B., I.S.O.

Note.—The following abbreviations have been employed in these statements :—

1. Śu. and ba., respectively, for Śuklapaksha and Bahulapaksha, the bright and dark fortnights of the lunar month.

2. The ending moments of tithis and nakshatras are expressed as decimal parts of the day, and in a normal date the first decimal shows the ending moment of the tithi and the second the ending moment of the nakshatra. Thus the result—

A.D. 1510 : Monday, Decr. 30 ; ·94 ; ·50 means that on the day in question the tithi quoted in the inscription ended at ·94 of the day, i.e., 56½ ghaṭikas after mean sunrise, while the nakshatra quoted in the inscription ended at ·50 of the day, i.e., 30 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise. A key to this decimal notation will be found in the book-marker supplied with "Indian Ephemeris" A.D. 1800—2000 by the author.

When only the tithi is quoted, its ending moment is shown by decimal figures next to the day of the month, thus, "A.D. 1289, Monday, Nov. 28, ·70" is a convenient way of indicating the fact that a tithi ended at ·70 of the day (42 ghaṭikas after sunrise) on 28 Nov. A.D. 1289, which was Monday.

3. When a tithi or nakshatra that is quoted in a record only commenced on the week-day quoted in the same record the fact is indicated by the symbols f.d.t. or f.d.n. Thus :

"Wednesday 6 Ap. A.D. 1384 ; ·68 ; f.d.n. ·29" means that the tithi quoted in the inscription ended at ·68 (= 41 ghaṭikas after sunrise) on Wednesday, 6 Ap. A.D. 1384, but that the nakshatra quoted in the inscription only commenced on Wednesday and came to end at ·29 (= 17½ ghaṭikas after sunrise) on the following day, Thursday.

Similarly "Friday, Ap. 26 ; f.d.t. ·08 ; f.d.n. ·13" means that the tithi and nakshatra quoted were current for the greater part of Friday, but came to end next day at ·08 (= 5 ghaṭikas after sunrise) and ·13 (= 8 ghaṭikas after sunrise), respectively, on Saturday.

4. An asterisk after the figure indicating a Śaka year (e.g. Ś. 1235*) means, as in Kielhorn's list of dates, that the year is current, not expired.

5. When it is necessary to distinguish the name of a nakshatra from that of a month and generally, as a useful convention, the names of nakshatras are printed between inverted commas, thus "Maghā" is the nakshatra, Māgha is the month.

Sundara-Pāṇḍya, if a king with that name began to reign in A.D. 1271 as conjectured in notes against No. 347 of 1916—Annual Report for 1916–17, page 90.
		Jaṭāvarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Rājarājaṇ Sundara-Pāṇḍya.
"	248	13th year, Kumbha, śu. di. tṛitīyā, Wednesday, Śadaiyam. In A.D. 1288, which fell in the 12th year of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya (whose reign began in February—March. In an inscription at Tiruvaraṅgulam in Pudukkōttai State the surname Rājarājaṇ has been found associated with Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya "Samastajagad, etc." who came to the throne in A.D. 1251: but the present details are not found in that reign.

1918	66	8th year, Tulā, śu. di. tṛitīyā, Saturday Rōhiṇī. The paksha should be bahula not śuddha. With ba. 3, we have an equivalent on Saturday, October 23 (= Tulā 26) A.D. 1260; f.d.t. ·03; ·29. The 3rd tithi was current throughout Saturday. In the notes at page 98 of Annual Report for 1915-1916, it was pointed out that the dates of the reign of Jaṭāvarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya of Ilam and Kongu fame pointed, some to A.D. 1253, and others to A.D. 1254, the majority pointing to A.D. 1254. The present date points to A.D. 1253.

„	427	5th year, Aippaśi, 30, śu. di. paurṇamī, Tuesday. In A.D. 1254, on October 27, Tuesday, which was the 30th day of Tulā or Aippaśi, the paurṇamī tithi ended at ·51. As a date containing a reference to the day of the solar month this is worth studying side by side with No. 704 of 1916 (Annual Report for 1916-17 page 92); but in the present uncertainty as to the date of commencement of this reign it is useless to speculate further.
1918	82	3rd year, Makara, śu. di. trayōdaśī, Monday, Pushya. On account of the uncertainty of this reign it is not possible to investigate this date with any degree of confidence. It may be noted however that the given details are satisfied in A.D. 1274, Jan. 22 (= Makara 28), Monday on which day śu. 13 and Pushya ended respectively at ·07 and ·99 of day. If this was the 3rd year A.D. 1284 would be the 13th year for which see No. 704 of 1916, Annual Report for 1916-17 page 92.

PART II

An inscription at Phulta in early characters.

An early inscription at Phulta (No. 830 of App. B) in the Ganjam district engraved on a rock embedded in the soil near a water-pit has been copied during the year. The villagers report that this pit which was formerly a bigger pond contains a good quantity of water in dry weather when it generally becomes scarce in the neighbourhood. The inscription is written in a mixed script of northern and southern characters. From the formation and slanting position of the letters, from the use of the developed sign for i in consonants and the sign for secondary dha as in later Dēvanāgarī, this record resembles very much the two plates opposite pages 128 and 290 of Dr. Fleet's Gupta Inscriptions. It may have, therefore, to be assigned to about the 6th century A.D. The inscription has been tentatively read and translated as below :—

TEXT.

[Pī]thī-[śu]ddhī-tīrtham (i.e., Pīthī-śuddhi-tīrtham).

Translation.

"Pure water for (those that wish to) drink." The other possible translations are—(a) Pure water for horses (pīthi) and (b) pure water for the market-place (pīthī-vīthī). The first alternative might be a probable interpretation if it is supposed that the water-pond lay near a military camping-ground and the second would suggest that formerly there was in the neighbourhood a market-place or a ground for holding a fair.

The Pallavas.

Kōpperuñjiṅga.

2. No early Pallava inscriptions have been discovered this year. Sakalabhuvanachakravartin Kōpperuñjiṅgadēva who claimed Pallava descent and was a contemporary of the Chōla king Rājarāja III (A.D. 1216 to 1248) is represented by nine inscriptions from the South Arcot district. In one of these (No. 80 of 1918) he is called Tribhuvanachakravartin Avaṇiāḷappiṛandāṉ Kōpperuñjiṅgadēva. In No. 73 of 1918 which comes from Vṛiddhāchalam and which is dated in his 10th year (A.D. 1253–54) we are informed that Kūḍal Avaṇiāḷappiṛandāṉ alias Kōpperuñjiṅgadēva defeated certain Daṇḍanāyakas of the Hoysaḷa king in the battle field at Perumbalūr (in the Trichinopoly district) and seized the ladies and treasures, and to absolve himself from the sin thus committed he presented to the god Tirumuduguṉṛam-uḍaiya-Nāyaṇār at Vṛiddhāchalam a gold forehead plate set with jewels. It is not certain if there was only one chief or more with the name Kōpperuñjiṅga. In the record under reference Kūḍal Avaṇiāḷappiṛandāṉ Kōpperuñjiṅgadēva who occupies the position of a donor is probably identical with the Sakalabhuvanachakravartin Kōpperuñjiṅga in whose reign the record is dated. In the Annual Report for 1906, page 63, Mahārājasiṁha of the Tripurāntakam record has been identified with Kūḍal Avaṇiāḷappiṛandāṉ Kōpperuñjiṅgadēva. In my Annual Report for 1913, paragraph 66, I have shown that Kūḍal Avaṇiāḷappiṛandāṉ Kāḍavarāyar I was identical with Mahārājasiṁha. As A.D. 1243 is the initial date of Sakalabhuvanachakravartin Kōpperuñjiṅga, the Hoysaḷa king referred to must be Vīra-Sōmēśvara whose capital was Kaṇṇaṇūr near Trichinopoly and whose regular reign extended from 1233 to 1263 A.D. We have known of open hostilities between Kōpperuñjiṅga and the Chōla king Rājarāja III, the intervention of the Hoysaḷa king Narasiṁha II on behalf of the Chōḷa and the defeat of the Pallava. But then Kōpperuñjiṅga had no locus standi anywhere as an anointed king or chief and it was only in 1243 A.D. that he was regularly crowned.

No. 83 of 1918 also dated in the 6th year of Sakalabhuvanachakravartin Kōpperuñjiṅga records a gift of land by Kūḍal Āḷappiṛandāṉ Aḷagiya Śīyaṉ Kōpperuñjiṅga. In his Annual Report for 1906, page 63, Mr. Venkayya has identified Aḷagiyaśīyaṉ Avaṇiāḷappiṛandāṉ Kōpperuñjiṅga with the father of Mahārājasiṁha, i.e., Avaṇiāḷappiṛandāṉ or Kūḍal Avaṇiāḷappiṛandāṉ Kōpperuñjiṅga.

No. 74 of 1918 which comes from Vriddhāchalam is not dated in the reign of any king but refers to Kāḍava (i.e., Pallava) chiefs. The record consists of Tamil verses eulogising the family of the Kāḍavas. They furnish the following genealogy :—

Vaḷandaṉār alias Kāḍavarāyar.

Āṯkolliyār alias Kāḍavarāyar.

Eḷisaimōgaṉ Kāḍavarāyaṉ (who conquered the four quarters).

Āḷappirandāṉ Vīraśēkhara alias Kāḍavarāyaṉ.

It is stated that in Śaka 1106 (= A.D. 1186) Āḷappirandāṉ Vīraśēkhara alias Kāḍavarāyaṉ the last in the geneological table given above devastated Kūḍal (i.e., the modern Cuddalore in the South Arcot district) belonging to Karkaṭa and the Aḍiyamānāḍu. In one of the verses it is stated that the kings of the north prostrated at his feet. From the introductory sentence in prose it is known that the above chief had the record engraved on stone in the gōpura (called Gaṇḍarāḍittaṉ-tiruvāśal) of the Vṛiddhagirīśvara temple at Vṛiddhāchalam.

Eastern Chalukyas.

3. Of this dynasty we have not many records in the collection of the year under review. Among the copper-plate inscriptions we have only three pertaining to it. One of them (No. 11 of App. A) belongs to an early king, viz., Jayasiṁha I whose records are very rare. Another (No. 14 of App. A) belongs to Chāḷukya-Bhīma I while the third (No. 15 of App. A) is of the later Chāḷukya king Saktivarman who is called by the characteristic appellation Sarvalōkāśraya Vishṇuvardhana. A rare feature of the records of this family secured this year is that there are stone inscriptions for some of its kings.

The first of these sets of copper-plate records has three plates which are rectangular in shape and are hung on a ring which carries a fixed circular seal engraved in relief with the title 'Śrī-Sarvasiddhi' of this king found also on the seals of his two other grants, viz., the Peddamaddali plates (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII, p. 137) and No. 7 of App. A to the Annual Report for 1917. The plates measure about $7\frac{3}{4}$" in length and $2\frac{3}{4}$" in breadth. The ring is about $3\frac{1}{2}$" in diameter.

Jayasiṁha I.

The writing very closely resembles that of No. 5 of App. A of the Annual Report for 1914, and of the latter of his other two records referred to above. The record under review unlike all others begins with an invocation and that to the Sun-god (Savitṛi). The dynasty called Chalukya in the other three records of the king is in this inscription called Chāḷukya. The genealogy given in it commences with Kīrtivarman who is described as the 'elevator of the Chāḷukyas.' Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana I is mentioned under the name Vishṇuvarman using the title varman which is not generally seen in Eastern Chāḷukya names. Kubja-Vishṇu is compared in this inscription to god Vishṇu in the epithet kāraṇa-Vishṇu applied to him. Jayasiṁha I, his son, is mentioned by the title Sarvasiddhi in addition to the proper name Jayasiṁha-Vallabha. The village granted Kombaṟu is stated to have been situated in the Kanthēṟuvāṭi-vishaya. This vishaya must be the same as the Gaṇḍēṟuvāṭi-vishaya mentioned in the record of this king noticed on page 115 of the Annual Report for 1917. This name was corrupted later into Kaṇḍēṟuvāṭi (ibid.) and Kaṇḍravāṭi as mentioned in No. 94 of 1917 (see paragraph 33, Part II of the same report). The name of the village near which Kombaṟu lay is given as Vleṇṭūṟu and must be the corrupt form of Velaṇṭūṟu. It is very likely that the village Vellaṭūru in the modern Repalli taluk of the Guntur district is referred to here and that Kombaṟu of the inscription is identical with the modern village Kōmali in the same taluk.

The donee is said to have been a resident of Kukkanūru. This place may be the same as the one of that name in the Nizam's Dominions mentioned very often in later Western Chāḷukya inscriptions (Bombay Gazetteer Vol. I, Part II, pages 304, 333, 432, etc.). The place was an important one in the 11th century A.D. as can be gathered from inscriptional references to it. Though in later times it formed part of the Western Chāḷukya dominion, at the time of the copper-plate grant now noticed it might have been in the Eastern Chāḷukya country.

Kukkanūru.

4. The next king of the dynasty, represented in the year's copper-plate inscriptions is Chāḷukya-Bhīma I. No. 14 of Appendix A belonging to him was sent to me by Mr. J. Ramayya Pantulu Garu for examination. The plates which are three in number measure $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches in height and $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches in breadth. They are hung on a ring which bears a seal with the usual emblem the boar and the legend 'Śrī-Tribhuvanāṁkuśa' cut in relief as in the seals of his other grants. This record, in giving the duration of the rule of the several previous kings of this line shows certain variations from the periods given by Dr. Fleet to some of them. Jayasiṁha I is given a rule of 33 years and not 30 as per Fleet's table, while Vijayāditya I is given 19 instead of 18 years. Vijayāditya II has 40 years in our inscription as against 44 years. This king is said to have destroyed together with the Southern Gaṅga (Dakshiṇa-Gaṅga) force a certain Bhīma-Salki. This rival of Vijayāditya II is mentioned as his younger brother under the name Bhīma-Sāḷukki who occupied the Vēṅgī country for sometime (Annual Report for 1912, page 84). The conquests of Vijayāditya III are mentioned with the same details as are given in No. 1 of Appendix A to the Annual Report for 1914, mentioning his title Tripuramartya-Mahādēva which in our inscription appears in the form Tripuramartya-Mahēśvara. The facts noticed by Dr. Fleet, that Vijayāditya III cut off the head of a certain Maṅgi in a fight with the Gaṅgas and defeated Kṛishṇa, are narrated in and confirmed by this inscription. As has already been pointed out (page 85 of Annual Report for 1914) this Kṛishṇa must be Kṛishṇa II of the Rāshṭrakūṭa line who was the contemporary and opponent of Guṇaka-Vijayāditya III.

Chāḷukya-Bhīma I.

The king is called in the prose portion of our inscription Sarvalōkāśraya Vishṇuvardhana-Mahārāja as in No. 14 of Appendix A to the Annual Report of 1909, with the title Paramēśvara and the epithet Paramabrahmaṇya. Chāḷukya-Bhīma I is said to have defeated Kṛishṇa-Vallabha (i.e., Kṛishṇa II). The present inscription is the only one of the king bearing a date and its importance is all the greater when it is observed that it gives the date of the king's coronation as Śaka 814 (= A.D. 892), Mēsha, Chaitra, ba. di. 2, Monday, Maitra, Yugmarkṣha (i.e., Mithunarāśi ?). The details of the date given do not work out correctly and for further remarks regarding it see page above. This would give a date four years later than that adopted by Dr. Fleet for the king's accession (Ind. Ant. Vol. XX, page 283). The grant made consisted of two plots of land in the village of Attili in the Attili-vishaya to a certain Challavā who knew the gāndharva-vidyā (science of music). The village is identical with the one of that name in the Tanuku taluk of the Kistna district which at the time of the grant must have been a more famous place, than what it is now, as the headquarters of a vishaya (i.e., district).

His surname Vishṇuvardhana and his coronation in Śaka 814.

His gift of land to a songstress.

Among the stone inscriptions of this dynasty engraved in Chāḷukyan characters we have one from Bezwada (No. 833 of 1917) and another from Ghaṇṭasāla (No. 846 of Appendix B). The former is dated in the 17th year of Vishṇuvardhana-Mahārāja who is referred to as the son of Vikramāditya. Vikramāditya II is not known to have had any issue. Vishṇuvardhana, son of Vikramāditya, of this record must be identical with the king of the copper-plate inscription noticed above who was the son of Vikramāditya I. Calculated from Śaka 814 (= A.D. 892) the date of his accession given by the above copper-plate grant, the date of the Bezwada inscription would be A.D. 909. The king is stated in the latter record to have patronized the foundation of the Pārttīśvara (i.e., Pārthīśvara) temple on the Indrakīla hill by a certain Chaṭṭapa. The record is a further evidence that at this time the Indrakīla hill was associated with the puranic hero Arjuna called also Pārtha (Annual Report for 1910, page 82, and Annual Report for 1916, page 149). The record from Ghaṇṭasāla is not dated. It is difficult, therefore, to determine who the king called Vishṇuvardhana in it was. The characters of the inscription may be assigned to about the same period as those of the Bezwada record noticed above.

His stone inscription at Bezwada dated in the 17th year.

The Pārthīśvara temple on the Indrakīla hill at Bezwada built about A.D. 909.

5. The only other Eastern Chāḷukya copper-plate record we have in the collection (No. 15 of Appendix A) belongs to king Śaktivarman, the son of Dānārṇava and the elder brother of Vimalāditya. The plates are much damaged and mutilated and the record is incomplete. The ornamental seal, which bears in relief the usual Chāḷukyan emblems and the well-known legend 'Śrī-Tribhuvanāṁkuśa' in bold characters, now carries only four of the plates of the set. The remaining one or two plates are missing. Even the plates extant are so badly damaged that their contents could not be read entirely. Only certain names are legible here and there. The genealogy of the family given in this inscription from the first member Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana almost coincides with that drawn up by Dr. Fleet.

Enemies of Vijayāditya III.

Of Vijayāditya III it states that he cut off the head of a certain Maṅgi. This must be the Maṅgi who fomented rebellion and opposition among the Gaṅgas as informed by the above noticed copper-plate grant of Chāḷukya Bhīma I (No. 14 of Appendix A). Saṅkila and Baddega are mentioned in connexion with this king. Though Baddiga is known to have been the name of the Rāshṭrakūṭa king Amōghavarsha III (Vaddiga) (See Ep. Ind. Vol. VII, Appendix, Nos. 93, 127 and 130), Baddega of this inscription could not be identical with this Rāshṭrakūṭa king whose reign according to Dr. Kielhorn began only about A.D. 937. It is possible that Baddega was the Western Chāḷukya prince Baddiga, the grandfather of Arikēsarin who was the patron of the Kanarese poet Pampa who lived about A D. 940 (Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. II, Part I, page 380). Allowing 25 years on the average for the reigns of Baddiga, his son Yuddhamalla II and his grandson Narasiṁha (elder brother of Arikēsarin), Baddiga might be placed at about A.D. 860 and might have been a contemporary of Vijayāditya III (A.D. 844–888). Saṅkila was the friend of Kṛishṇa II (See Annual Report for 1914, page 85).

Pillar of victory at Viraja, i.e., Virajāpurī.

The inscription informs us that a son of Chāḷukya-Bhīma I planted a pillar of victory at Viraja. The reference might be to Kollabhigaṇḍa-Vijayāditya IV who is stated elsewhere (Annual Report for 1917, page 118, paragraph 26) to have met with his death in a battle at Virajāpurī. The inscription like a few others refers to the usurpation of the crown of Vijayāditya V by Tāḷa (called sometimes Tāḍa and Tāḍapa), the son of Yuddhamalla I, its recovery from him by Vikramāditya II the second son of Chāḷukya-Bhīma I, and his rule of 11 months, the subsequent rule for 7 years of Yuddhamalla II the son of Tāḷapa, and his defeat afterwards in battle by Bhīma, i.e., Chāḷukya-Bhīma II, the second son of Kollabhigaṇḍa-Vijayāditya IV, who ruled for 12 years. Ammarāja II, the son of Chāḷukya-Bhīma II, is stated to have been born with a tissue round his neck which resembled a kaṇṭhikā, i.e., neck-ornament and that he performed his coronation at the express request of all people. He is also said to have acquired the biruda 'Tribhuvanāṁkuśa' by his heroism displayed in the thick of a battle, between elephant-forces. His father is called Rāja-Bhīma as in another record noticed by Dr. Fleet on page 269 of Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. Dānārṇava, his elder brother by a different mother, is, as in other records, said to have ruled for three years and not for 30 years as solitarily stated in No. 23 of Appendix A to the Annual Report for 1917 (see page 118 ibid). In our record for the first time is this king given the title 'Rāja-Nārāyaṇa' already known to us as that of Kulōttuṅga I, his great-grandson (Ind. Ant., Vol. XX, p. 276). The interregnum after his reign is as usual said to have lasted for 27 years, when 'the Āndhradēśa was without a king as the night is without the moon'. His son Śaktivarman born to his wife Āryādēvī is said in the record to have risen to fame even in his youth by his victory in a battle with the Chōḷas (Chaulika-raṇa) (see also Ind. Ant. Vol. XX, p. 272) and put to flight a certain Badyema-Mahārāja and others. This latter chief is not known from any other inscription nor is any specific reference to the fight of Śaktivarman or his father Dānārṇava with the Chōḷas made in any record. A certain Chōḍa-Bhīma not known from elsewhere is said to have 'met with his death like Rāvaṇa in the hands of this Chāḷukya-Nārāyaṇa'. It is probable that Śaktivarman bore the biruda 'Chāḷukya-Nārāyaṇa'. His other title 'Chāḷukya-Chandra' is noticed by Dr. Fleet (Ind. Ant. Vol. XX, p. 273). In the prose portion of our record Śaktivarman is called Sarvalōkāśraya Vishṇuvardhana-Mahārāja with the titles Adhirāja and Paramēśvara and with the epithets Parama-Bhaṭṭāraka, Parama-Brahmanya and Parama-Māhēśvara. The grant is addressed to the officials of Vaṛanāṇḍu, a variant of the name of the territorial division, Velanāṇḍu. The extant portion of the record does not give the date; and the portion mentioning the actual donee is missing.

Dānārṇava, his title 'Rāja-Nārāyaṇa'.

Śaktivarman I, his titles 'Chāḷukya-Nārāyaṇa' and 'Chāḷukya-Chandra'.

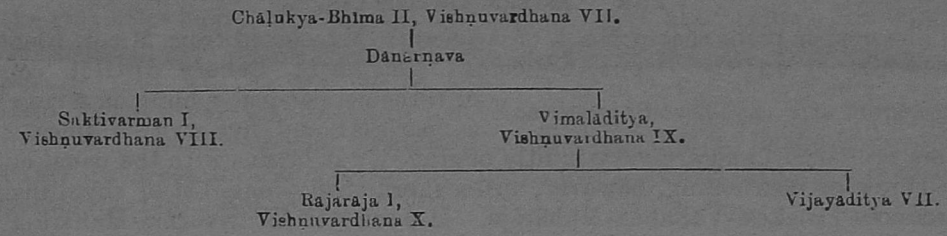
In consideration of the facts that No. 15 of Appendix A gives the family title Vishṇuvardhana to Śaktivarman and Vimalāditya his younger brother and successor is also called Vishṇuvardhana (Ep. Ind. Vol. VI, p. 350) the numbering of the Vishṇuvardhanas of the family in Dr. Fleet's genealogical table will have to be changed as hereunder.



But against this arrangement as well as that given by Dr. Fleet, has to be counted the fact that in some stone inscriptions even so late a king as Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I, the son of Rājarāja I (Vishṇuvardhana X) is called Saptama-Vishṇuvardhana, i.e., the seventh Vishṇuvardhana (see Nos. 194, 195 and 202 of 1893).

Inscription of Vimalāditya at Rāmatīrtham in the Vizagapatam district.

6. The only other stone inscription of this dynasty besides Nos. 833 and 846 of Appendix B in the year's collection is from Rāmatīrtham in the Vizagapatam district (No. 831 of Appendix B). This is a fresh copy of No. 372 of 1905 made for a further examination of the record. The inscription is engraved on the very rough surface of the wall of the Durgapañcha cave in the hill at the village. In my last visit to the place I have read the record in situ. It belongs to the time of an Eastern Chāḷukya king called Sarvalōkāśraya Vishṇuvardhana-Mahārāja who had the birudas Rāja-Mārtaṇḍa and Mummaḍi-Bhīma. It bears no date. Rāja-Mārtaṇḍa was also a title of Chāḷukya-Bhīma II (Ind. Ant. Vol. XX, p. 269). Mummaḍi-Bhīma is already known to have been a title of Vimalāditya (Ep. Ind. Vol. VI, p. 350) to whom the inscription has been referred by the late Mr. Venkayya (Annual Report for 1906, p. 79, para. 41). In the Telugu Mahābhāratam of Nannaya-Bhaṭṭa, Rājarāja I, son of Vimalāditya, is given the title Rāja-Mārtaṇḍa (Ādiparva, āśvāsa 2, verse 239).

His titles Rāja-Mārtaṇḍa and Mummaḍi-Bhīma.

We learn from our inscription for the first time that Vimalāditya adopted Jainism as is evidenced by the mention of a certain Trikāḷayōgi-Siddhāntadēva called also Trikāḷayōgi-Munīndra, a teacher of the Dēsigaṇa school of Jainism as his guru. From No. 9 of Appendix A to the Annual Report for 1917 we learn that Jainism was patronised by the earliest members of this dynasty. The queen of the early king Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana I influenced the grant of a village to a Jaina basti at Bījavaḍa (i.e., Bezwada) (see p. 116 of the same report). Amma II is already known to have made grants to Jaina temples (see Ep. Ind. Vol. VII, p. 185 and Vol. IX, p. 49) and patronised the grant of a Jaina Śrāvakī (lay disciple) by lending his title to a charitable Jaina feeding house called Sarvalōkāśraya-Jinabhavana endowed by her (Ind. Ant. Vol. XX, p. 271 f.). This is one of the very few Kanarese inscriptions in the Telugu country and its existence at Rāmatīrtham suggests that the saint Trikāḷayōgi was a Kanarese by birth and that the later Eastern Chāḷukyan kings too now and then favoured or adopted Jainism, the popular religion of the Kanarese country. It also throws some light on the political condition of the Kaliṅga country at this time which must have come now under the Eastern Chāḷukyan rule when the early Gaṅga rule had declined and the Chōḍa-Gaṅga rule had not probably begun under Anantavarman-Chōḍagaṅga whose reign commenced in A.D. 1078.

His Jaina guru Trikāḷayōgi-Siddhāntadēva.

Eastern Chāḷukyas and Jainism.

Rāmatīrtham, a Jaina centre.

That Rāmatīrtham was considered a sacred place by the Jainas is testified to by the respectful mention made of it in the above record wherein it is called Rāmakoṇḍa. That this was a place of Jaina influence and pilgrimage even in early times appears from some Jaina names in Chāḷukyan characters of an earlier period written in red paint on the ceiling of the Pāṇḍavapañcha cave in the neighbouring hill and from No. 832 of Appendix B which is engraved on the pedestal of a broken Jaina image. It records that it was set up by a private individual from Chanudavrōlu in the Ōṁgēṟumārga which is identical with Chandavōlu in the modern Repalle taluk, Guntur district. Ōṁgēṟumārga was the name of the division in which also Guṁṭṭuru (Guntur) lay (No. 83 of 1917).

The Western Chalukyas.

A spurious grant of Vinayāditya Satyāśraya.

7. The copper-plate record No. 3 of Appendix A received from Mr. J. Ramayya Pantulu while he was the Deputy Collector of Rayadrug, Bellary district, consists of three copper-plates hung on a ring with a boar-seal and five written sides. The characters are Nāgarī and are very faintly engraved. It begins with the usual eulogy of the Chāḷukyas mentioning, however, an extraordinarily long list of royal insignia and introduces Pulakēśi-Vallabha-Mahārāja. His son was Kīrttivarma-Mahārāja; his son Vijayāditya who conquered Vanavāsi and other countries; his son Vikramāditya who, after defeating the Pallava king, the destroyer of the Lunar race, took Kāñchīpura, crushed the (united) Chēras, Chōḷas and Pāṇḍyas at that town. His son was Vinayāditya-Satyāśraya-Narēndradēva who defeated the kings of all countries, viz., Koṅkaṇa, Mālava, Golla, Gūrjara, Kaliṅga, Vēṅgī, etc. This king in the presence of the vishayapati, grāmakūṭas (see Ep. Ind. Vol. VII, p. 183), yuktakas and mahattara of the Saurāshṭra-vishaya on the occasion of his coronation (paṭṭa-bandha) when coming from his permanent capital Raktapura on the northern bank of the river Malahārī to Kurunda, restored to gods and Brahmans the grants which had been taken away from them by previous kings. The date of the record is Śaka 512, Sādhāraṇa, Māgha, śu. 13, Monday and is far too early for this king. In the description of the genealogy it resembles No. 12 of Appendix A to the Annual Report for 1906. The initial date of Vinayāditya according to the other inscriptions is about Śaka 600 nearly a hundred years later. The erasures in the grant portion, the numerous mistakes in the language and the differences in the genealogy of kings, taken together, must lead one to the belief that the plates are spurious. For further remarks on the date of this record see Appendix E above.

8. Of the two records belonging to this dynasty No. 673 and No. 733 of Appendix B, the former dated in the Chāḷukya-Vikrama year 8, Ānanda, belongs to the reign of Sōmēśvara III who had the biruda Bhūlōkamalla (page 455, Vol. I, Part II of Fleet's Kanarese Dynasties). Chāḷukya-Vikrama year 8 corresponding to A.D. 1083–84 falls in the reign of Tribhuvanachakravartin Vikramāditya VI. The date of this record must be correctly Chāḷukya-Vikrama year 58 which corresponds to A.D. 1134–35 (No. 499 of 1915), and coincides with the regnal year 8 of Bhūlōkamalla. The scribe in this case has evidently given by mistake the regnal year 8 of the king instead of the Chāḷukya-Vikrama year 58. Another instance of such a mistake is found in No. 480 of 1893 where Ch. Vik. year 59 is intended but the regnal year 9 is quoted. Our record refers to a gift of a garden-land and an oil-mill for the worship, etc., of the god Kēśava set up at Kolmigudi (i.e., the modern Kolimigundla) in the Koilkuntla taluk of the Kurnool district by Muppiraṭi the prabhu of the village. The suffix raṭi (i.e., modern reddi) may be a reminiscence of the old honorific title raṭṭa-guḍlu (vide Ep. Ind. Vol. XI, page 342 f.). Mention is made in this of Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Vaṅkaṇa Chōḷa-Mahārāja, a Chōḷa subordinate ruling over Peḍakallu, Kannenāḍu, Rēnāḍu . . . from his capital at Nandyāla.

Bhūlōkamalla Sōmēśvara III.

9. The next record No. 733 of Appendix B dated in Śaka 1091 belongs to the reign of Pratāpachakravartin Jagadēkamalla and falls about the very end of the reign of Tailapa III who ascended the throne in Śaka 1072 and whose latest known record dated in Śaka 1090 has been noticed in paragraph 14 of Part II of the Annual Report for 1917. Taila III who had the distinguishing title Chālukya-Chakravartin might have adopted the above title after his famous brother and predecessor Jagadēkamalla II in his later days. It has already been noticed in paragraph 63 of the report for 1912 and paragraph 49 of the report for 1913, that members of Telugu-Chōḷa family of the Solar race were feudatories of the Western Chāḷukyas. Of this family was Jagadēkamalla-Mallidēva-Chōḷa-Mahārāja, son of Iruṅgōḷa ruling at Heñjeṟu, i.e., Hēmāvati, while his Chāḷukyan overlord Taila III was ruling at Kalyāṇa. The minister and military officer of Mallidēva was Hiriya-Tantrapāla (Senior Councillor) Nāmaṇa ruling at Niḍugallu. He was the younger brother of Bammaṇa who was the chief minister (vara-mantri) of Mallidēva-Chōḷa-Mahārāja. His grandfather Ayyapayya belonged to Koṭṭitoṇe which is said to have surpassed in splendour the three towns, Surarājapura (i.e., Amarāvati) which is the town of the lord of Suras (i.e., Indra), Alakāpura (the town of Kubēra) and Dharaṇēndrapura (?). Koṭṭitoṇe is also referred to as Kārttikēyapura. From Nos. 44 and 45 of 1904 found in the Kumārasvāmin temple at Kuḍatani (Bellary district) we know that Koṭṭitoṇe described as Kārttikēyapura in our inscription was the ancient name of Kuḍatani and that an image of Skanda (i.e., Kārttikēya) was set up there. Our inscription has the same introduction as No. 43, Pāvagaḍa (Ep. Carn. Vol. XII).

Pratāpachakravartin Jagadēkamalla, i.e., Taila III.

The Bhanjas.

10. A special feature of the collection of the copper-plates for the year is that four of these (Nos. 6 to 8 and 10 of Appendix A) belong to the family of Bhanjas which held its sway over parts of Orissa and of the Ganjam district about the 10th to the 13th centuries A.D. The chiefs of this family are now rulers of the Mayūrbhañj Estate, of the Baud State and of a few other places in Orissa. All the four records have been secured for my examination by Mr. Tarani Charan Rath. Three of these (Nos. 6, 7 and 8 of Appendix A) are of almost the same type as regards the number of plates, their size and the alphabet in which they are written and belong to an earlier time than No. 10, which begins differently from these. None of these grants is dated. Mr. Rath says that of these three sets, one was found while digging at the boundary between Kullāḍa, the fort of the late Raja of Goomsur in the Ganjam district and Dhanamjayapura an inam village near it. The other two sets were found while digging under a tree in a mango tope at Gobara, a village in the Goomsur taluk, Ganjam district.

11. No. 6 of Appendix A among these consists of three plates (measuring $6\frac{1}{2}''$ by $3\frac{3}{4}''$) with low rims like the other two sets (Nos. 7 and 8) and has five faces of writing only the inner side of the first plate being engraved. These are hung together on a ring which bears a fixed circular seal of about $1\frac{1}{3}''$ in diameter, on the countersunk surface of which are cut, at the top, a lion facing the proper left with profuse mane and the left front paw raised and below it the inscription :—

in two lines. The seals of the other two grants (Nos. 7 and 8) are much worn out. Only parts of the lion can be seen in the upper halves of these. The lower halves must have contained the name of the king as in the case of No. 6. The lion on the seal of No. 8 faces the proper left like that of No. 6, while that on the seal of No. 7, which belongs to a different king faces the proper right. Nos. 6 and 8 belong to the same king, i.e., Nēṭribhañjadēva alias Kalyāṇakalaśa who was the son of Raṇabhañjadēva, the grandson of Śatrubhañjadēva and the great-grandson of Śilābhañjadēva of the Bhañja family. Another record of this king (No. 657 of Dr. Kielhorn's List of Northern inscriptions, Ep. Ind. Vol. V, Appendix) found at Goomsur in the Ganjam district mentioning only the names of his father Raṇabhañja and his grandfather Śatrubhañja has been published in the Journal of the Bengal Asiatic Society, Vol. VI, p. 667 f. The surname Kalyanakalaśa is there applied to him as in the two grants of our collection.

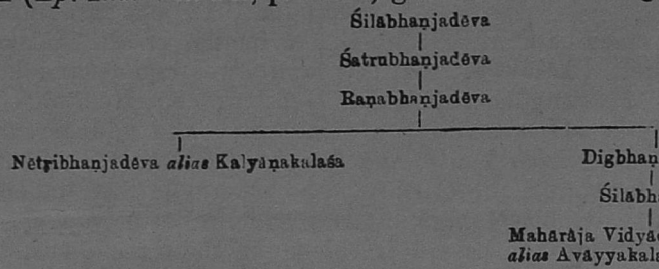
12. The genealogy afforded by the three Bhanja records (Nos. 6, 7 and 8 of Appendix A) coupled with that of the grant of Vidyādharabhanja published by Dr. Kielhorn (Ep. Ind. Vol. IX, p. 271 f) give us a tentative genealogy thus :—



Of the kings referred to, in the genealogical table given by Mr. B. C. Muzumdar, on p. 99 of Ep. Ind. Vol. XI, some have to be referred to a later generation than that to which they have been referred. 'Koṭṭabhañja, his son Raṇabhañja, and his son Rājabhañja' are evidently of a slightly later generation as can be seen from the palæography of the grants of the last two of these published on pp. 164 and 165 of Journal of the Bengal Asiatic Society, Vol. XL. They appear also to have been of a different branch of the dynasty since on the seal of Raṇabhanja, son of Koṭṭabhanja (ibid. Plate II) is found the emblem of a bull instead of a lion as on the seals of Nos. 6, 7 and 8 of the Appendix A and on the seal of Vidyādharabhanja (Ep. Ind. Vol. IX, p. 272). To this same branch have to be assigned the later kings Śatrubhañja whose Sonpur record (Ep. Ind. Vol. XI, p. 98) and Raṇabhañja whose two Baudh grants (Ep. Ind. Vol. XII, pp. 322 and 325) have the bull emblem on their seals. The introductions to these later grants are different from those of the earlier ones.

The later branch of the Bhanjas.

Of the two grants of Nētṛibhanja noticed above both of which are stated to have been issued from Vanjulaka, the first (No. 6 of Appendix A) registers an order addressed by the king to the several officers, i.e., rāja, rājanaka, rājaputra, vishayapati, and daṇḍapāśika and to the vyavahārins, Brāhmaṇas, Karaṇas (accountants) and nivāsijanapadas (resident people) of the Vāsudēvakhaṇḍa-vishaya that the village Arātaha lying in that vishaya was granted to the Agnihōtrins (fire-sacrificers) Gōlaśarman, Apara-Gōlaśarman and Nānā-A-ichadēva, sons of Janadēva and grandsons of A-ichadēva of the Vājasanēya-charaṇa, Kaṇva-śākhā, of the pravara Kauśika-Maitravat-Aghamarshaṇa and the anupravara Viśvāmitra and to the Bhaṭṭas and Agnihōtrins, Ruvaḍa, Vodaḍa, Mahādēva, Śāvaḍa and Nānā, sons of Bhaṭṭa-A-ichula and grandsons of Guhaśarma-Agnihōtrin of the Vatsa-gōtra of the pravara Bhārgavat-Chyvanavat-Ātmana . . . and the anupravara Jamadagni. The Vāsudēvakhaṇḍa-vishaya must have been a territorial division of which the modern Vāsudēvapūr in the Goomsur taluk of the Ganjam district was the capital.

Vāsudēvakhaṇḍa-vishaya.

13. The other grant No. 8 of Appendix A of this king records the tax-free gift of the village Machchhaḍa in the Machhākhaṇḍa-vishaya to a Brahman named Bhaṭṭa-Ruḍaḍa, son of Kēśava and grandson of Charampasvāmin of the Vājasanēya-charaṇa, Vatsa-gōtra, the pravara Āṅgirasa and of the anupravara Bhārgavat. The dūtaka (i.e., messenger or executor) of this grant was Bhaṭa Kakkādēva. The sandhivigrahin (minister of peace and war) Kākkaka was the writer of the Goomsur grant of this king referred to above. The village Machchhaḍa is very probably the modern village Mujagodo in the Goomsur taluk. No. 7 of Appendix A belongs to Mahārāja Vidyādharabhanja who had the biruda Avāyyakalaśa (Āvāryakalaśa). Dr. Kielhorn has noticed his other biruda Dharmakalaśa (?) (Ep. Ind. Vol. IX, p. 273). It records the grant of the village of Mula-Māchchhāḍa in the Māchhāḍakhaṇḍa-vishaya to the Brahman Bhaṭṭa-Purandara, the son of Dēvaḍaśarman and the grandson of Hariśaśarman of the Vājasanēya-charaṇa, Rauhita-gōtra, the pravara Rōhita-Shuka (i.e., Śuka)-Viśvāmitra and the anupravara Viśvāmitravat-Shuka (i.e., Śuka) vat-Rōhitavat. The last of these had immigrated from (the village) Mammāṇā in the Taḍisamī-vishaya belonging to Varēndhi. Varēndhi probably refers to the territorial division Varēndrī mentioned in a copper-plate grant of the Sēna king Lakshmaṇasēna of Bengal (Ep. Ind. Vol. XII, p. 7 and 38).

Vidyādharabhanjadēva.

14. No. 10 of Appendix A reported to have been found at the village Antirigam in the Pubbakhandam division of the Chatrapur taluk, Ganjam district is of a later king of this family named Yasabhaṁjadēva, the son of Rāyabhaṁjadēva, the grandson of Vīrabhaṁjadēva and the great-grandson of Dōva (Dēva?)-bhañjadēva. It consists of three plates hung on a ring which carries no seal on it but bears a fixed turned knob. The king is called the lord of the entire Khiñjalī country. The town Vaṇjulaka mentioned in the earlier grants is not referred to in this record as also in the records of the other later kings of this family already mentioned. The title 'the lord of the Ubhaya-Khiñjali' is given to the later king Ranabhañja in a grant of his 26th year (Ep. Ind. Vol. XII, page 326) and a grant of his 54th year is addressed to the officers of the Khiñjali-maṇḍala (ibid. page 322). To the officers of Ubhaya-Khiñjali-maṇḍala was addressed a grant of the later king Śatrubhañja of this family (Ep. Ind. Vol. XI, page 98). Ḳomayāṇa the village granted might be represented by the modern village Khommonosayi in the Gumsoor taluk. Vaṇjulaka of Nos. 6, 7 and 8 called Vaṇjulvaka in a few other grants may have to be identified with either Onjhola in the Kudala taluk of this district or Onchala in the Parlakimedi agency.

15. Of this family we have four inscriptions in the year's collection two of which are the copper-plate records (Nos. 12 and 13 of Appendix A) and the other two are stone records from the Ganjam district (Nos. 827 and 828 of Appendix B). No. 13 is the earlier of the copper-plate records. It consists of three rectangular plates hung together on a ring which bears a fixed circular seal of about one inch in diameter. The plates measure about $7\frac{3}{4}$" in length and 3" in breadth. The seal bears in relief a bull facing the proper right and seated on a stand resting on a tri-petalled lotus (?) flower opening upward. Above it are the crescent turned downwards and the sun enclosed within its arms. The writing on the plates is very faintly visible. The plates do not appear to have undergone any damage through corrosion, bad preservation or otherwise but the surfaces seem to have been filed off in an attempt to smoothen them to use them subsequently as a palimpsest. The rims, if any, are completely worn away. The plates record the grant of a village by Rājēndravarman, son of Mahārāja Anantavarman of the Gaṅga family. The grant was issued from Kaliṅganagara. Its introduction resembles that of the other grants of the earlier kings of this dynasty and like some of them the record is expressly stated to have been dated in the 'prosperous year of the rule of the Gāṅgēya family (Gāṅgēya-vaṁśa-pravardhamāna-vijayarājya-saṁvatsara)'. The characters of the inscription resemble a good deal those of the Alamanda plates of the time of the Gaṅga king Anantavarman (Ep. Ind. Vol. III, page 17 f). The characters of these two inscriptions belong to the 9th century A.D. The donee's name is not quite clear. The son (whose name is not quite distinct in the plate) of a certain Sarva-Aya-Kāmadi is mentioned. A certain Chōḷa-Kāmadirāja appears in the grant of Vajrahasta (Ep. Ind. Vol. III, page 221) as the actual donor. It is difficult to determine from the bad condition of the letters here whether the Kāmadi of our inscription was also the donor as in the other case. The record was composed by Sandhivigrahin Raṇāmēya, son of Sāmirāja; and the engraving was done by Kanakābdhirāja-Guṇḍipilāka, son of Ma-uchandra.

Rājēndravarman, son of Mahārāja Anantavarman.

Rājēndravarman, the son of Mahārāja Anantavarman in whose reign the grant was issued is not known from a large number of other records. Combining the genealogy of Anantavarman, son of Mahārāja Rājēndravarman, whose grant referred to was dated in the 304th year of the Gāṅgēya era with that of our inscription dated in the 342nd year of this same era, we get three successive generations of this dynasty viz., Mahārāja Rājēndravarman, his son Anantavarman (304th year), Mahārāja Anantavarman and his son Rājēndravarman (342nd year). These may have to be arranged as follows:—

Mahārāja Rājēndravarman.

Mahārāja Anantavarman (304th year of the Gāṅgēya era).

Rājēndravarman (342nd year of the same era).

Palaeographically these two grants resemble the two of Dēvēndravarman, the son of Mahārāja Anantavarman one dated in the 254th year evidently of the Gāṅgēya era (Ind. Ant. Vol. XVIII, page 144 f) and the other (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII, page 275 f) which purports, evidently by clerical mistake, to be dated in the 51st year of this era and the grant of Satyavarman dated in the 351st year of this era (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV, page 11). These records read together would give us a list of kings thus: (1) Mahārāja Anantavarman, (2) his son Dēvēndravarman (254th year), (3) Mahārāja Dēvēndravarman and (4) his son Satyavarman (351st year).

16. From the practice of the Eastern Gaṅga records of not giving like the Pallava ones even the three generations including that of the king of the grant we are not in a position to trace the genealogical relationship of the earlier kings of the family by collecting the contents of the various records available. We do not possess any considerable evidence to enable us to connect the kings of this line whose names ended in arṇava (See tables 1 and 2 on pages 186 and 187 of Ep. Ind. Vol. IV) with the varman kings, the records of some of whom have been noticed by Dr. Fleet in the volumes of the Indian Antiquary. The genealogy given in the fashion of the later Eastern Chāḷukya copper-plate records, for the Gaṅga family in the grants of Anantavarman Chōḍa-Gaṅga (Ind. Ant. Vol. XVIII, pages 166 and 173) omit the earlier varman kings altogether. We are aware of only four instances giving any connexions between these two, viz., (1) In the grant of Narasiṁha II (No. 367 of the Dr. Kielhorn's list of Northern inscriptions) Kōlāhala mentioned as an early ancestor of the arṇavas is called Anantavarman (2). The copper-plate record No. 4 of Appendix A to the Annual Report for 1914 belongs to Mahārāja Indravarman, son of Dānārṇava and is dated in the 149th year, but of course, like the other known records of this period without expressly mentioning that it was the year of the 'prosperous rule of the Gāṅgēyavaṁśa.' (3) The grant of Dēvēndravarman of the 183rd year (Ep. Ind. Vol. III, page 131) calls him the son of Guṇārṇava, and (4) the Madras Museum plates (Ep. Ind. Vol. IX, page 95) of Vajrahasta III of Śaka 984 give him the surname Anantavarman. Can it be that the early arṇava kings had surnames ending in varman? At present the dates of these several early records serve only as land-marks in the genealogy of the early varman kings of this dynasty. We have the Mahārājas (1) Indravarman Rājasiṁha (87th and 91st years), (2) Indravarman (128th and 146th years) (3), Indravarman, son of Dānārṇava (149th year), (4) Dēvēndravarman, son of Guṇārṇava (183rd year) and (5) Dēvēndravarman, son of Mahārāja Anantavarman (254th year). The records of this family are so meagre that the relationship of these several kings to one another and to the kings mentioned in paragraph 15 above still awaits discovery. It has, however, to be noticed that these earlier varman kings called themselves 'lords of Kaliṅga' while the later kings called themselves 'lords of Trikaliṅga.'

The Varman and the Arṇava kings of this dynasty.

17. No. 12 of Appendix A belongs to king Anantavarman of this family. The plates, three in number, are oblong in shape with well-formed rims. They measure 7 inches in breadth and $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches in height. The first and the last plates are written only in the inner faces. The set is hung together on a ring which carries a fixed circular seal (1 inch in diameter) on the surface of which are cut in relief, in place of the bull usually appearing on the seals of Gaṅga sovereigns, the crescent at the top, a fish in horizontal position in the middle and an elephant-goad in similar position at the bottom. No legend is engraved on it. The king has the epithets Parama-Māhēśvara, Parama-Bhaṭṭāraka and Paramēśvara. The last of these might be a special royal title or a surname assumed by the king as by the Western Chāḷukya Satyāśraya after his conquest of Harshavardhana of Uttarāpatha (Ep. Ind. Vol. IX, pages 100 and 101). The record is dated in the Śaka year 976 expressed by the chronogram śakāvdanavaśatakasaptarasa and the 15th year and has to be attributed to the Vajrahasta of this dynasty whose coronation took place in Śaka 960 (Ep. Ind. Vol. IV, page 193). It has already been pointed out that Vajrahasta VI of this family had the surname Anantavarman (Ep. Ind. Vol. IX, page 95). The writing very closely resembles that of a record of Anantavarman-Vajrahasta; Śaka 976, and 15th year.

this king dated in Śaka 967. (Ep. Ind. Vol. XI, page 147). Like this it adopts mixed characters though using more of Grantha letters in addition to Nāgarī and Telugu. The fish, prominent on the seal of our record, is not found on that of the Narasapaṭam plates of this king though both have the elephant-goad. The actual donor in the grant was Rāṇaka Śrī-Dharmakhēdi, son of Parama-Māhēśvara Pañcha-vishayādhipati Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Rāṇaka Śrī-Bhāmakhēdi of the Kadamva (i.e., Kadaṁba) family who being prosperous (kuśalī) (a term often applied to the king in Eastern Gaṅga grants) addressed the order of gift to the pradhāna and other subordinates of the king (rājapādōpajīvin) governing the Pañchapātra-vishaya. The connexion of the Kadambas with the Gaṅga kings is already known to us from the Parlakimedi plates of Vajrahasta (Ep. Ind. Vol. III, page 222) where a certain Ugrakhēdirāja 'the ornament of the spotless family of the Kadambas' figures as an official. A certain Dharmakhēdin is referred to as the maternal uncle of the early king Mahārāja Dēvēndravarman of the 254th year of the Gāṅgēya era (Ind. Ant. Vol. XVIII, page 145). But since he is not referred to as a member of the Kadamba family we are not in a position to trace this political relationship between the Gaṅgas and Kadambas to this early period. It is probable that this earlier Dharmakhēdin the maternal uncle of Dēvēndravarman was an ancestor of the Dharmakhēdin of our grant, in which case the Kadambas will have to be viewed not only as the subordinates of the Gaṅgas as in the time of Vajrahasta but also as having been matrimonially allied to the Gaṅgas from earlier times. That there was matrimonial alliance between the Gaṅgas and another family of the south, viz., the Vaidumbas is already known (Ep. Ind. Vol. IV, page 186 f). This relationship between the Eastern Gaṅgas and the Vaidumbas would appear to have begun only a generation previous to Vajrahasta whose mother was the Vaidumba princess Vinayamahādēvī. Mahēndrabhōga in which Madhipatharakhaṇḍa the village granted was situated must refer to a territorial division named after Mahēndragiri. Mandasa, the Zamindari headquarters where the plates have been discovered lies within 7 miles from Mahēndragiri. The order of gift is stated to have been brought (ānītam) by Veṭṭikurātha-Rāṇaka. This evidently refers to the dūtaka of the grant. Sāmanta Naḷa-Chenḍala mentioned at the end might be the person that drafted the grant. The form Naḷa Chenḍala must be a corruption of Naḷa-Chandēlla. The Sāmanta must have been a member of the Chandēlla family.

His Kadamba subordinate Rāṇaka Śrī-Dharmakhēdi.

The Eastern Gaṅgas and the Vaidumbas.

A Chandēlla Sāmanta of the Gaṅga king Anantavarman (Vajrahasta).

18. To the reign of Anantavarman Chōḍa-Gaṅga of this dynasty (A.D. 1078–1142) will have to be assigned the mutilated stone inscription No. 827 of Appendix B. The record is much damaged and the 15th year of the king in which it is dated would correspond to A.D. 1093. This is one of the few known Telugu inscriptions in the extreme north of the Presidency. Another Telugu inscription from this part of the country, No. 828 of 1917, dated in the 2nd year of king Aniyaṅka-Bhīmadēva, from the characters employed in it, will have to be assigned probably to Vajrahasta II who had the title Aniyaṅkabhīma (Table I, page 186 of Ep. Ind. Vol. IV).

A stone record of the 15th year of Anantavarman Chōḍa-Gaṅga.

19. Besides the above-noticed copper-plate records expressly referring themselves to Gaṅgakula there is one (No. 9 of Appendix A) with the introduction usually found in the records of the Gaṅga kings but without the express mention of the Gaṅga lineage. The plates, three in number, are oblong in shape with well-formed rims. They measure 7″ by $3\frac{5}{6}$″ and are hung on a ring with a fixed circular seal about 1 inch in diameter on the counter-sunk surface of which is cut in relief the indistinct but discernible form of a seated bull. No legend or symbol is given on it. The record is written in a mixed alphabet employing the northern as well as the southern characters which, according to Buhler's plates, have to be assigned to the 9th century A.D.

Grant of Indravarman, lord of Kaliṅga.

The genealogy of the king Mahārāja Indravarman of this grant is not given. He was a devotee of the god Gōkaraṇēśvara 'residing on' the Mahēndra mountain. The grant was issued from Śvētakādhisthāna. We have already had two copper-plate records, one issued from Śvētka (Ep. Ind. Vol. IV, No. 26) and the other from Śvētaka (No. 12 of Appendix A to Annual Report for 1917). The Śvētka of the first of these records is evidently the same as the Śvētaka of the second record noted above and of our inscription. The kings of the two grants quoted above are clearly stated to belong to the family of the Gaṅgas. It is not unlikely that king Indravarman of our grant, was also a Gaṅga as suggested by the introduction to the record and the bull-emblem on his seal, which generally appears on early Gaṅga seals though not explicitly described so in the record. The order of gift is addressed to the mahāsāmanta, sāmanta, rājanaka, rājaputra, kumāra, amātya, uparika, daṇḍanāyaka, vishayapati, grāmapati, brahmans, purōhits and others of the Jalamvōra-vishaya. The donee Bhaṭṭaputra Janshasvāmiśarman belonged to the Vājasanēya-charaṇa, Kaṇva-śākhā, Jātukarṇa-gōtra with the Vaśishṭavat-Jātukarṇa-pravara and the Jātukarṇavadd-A[ji]shṭhavad-Vi[ji]shṭhavat-anupravara. The record gives near the end a moralising verse on the instability of fortune like that of a water-drop on a lotus petal which is invariably quoted by the records of the Bhaṇjas noticed above. The dūtaka of the grant was the mahāsāmanta Nāgakheddi (see paragraph 17 above). It was written by the Mahāpratīhāra Ādityavarman and the king's seal was affixed (lāñchhita) by the Mahāsandhivigrahin Chandapāka. The plates were engraved by the kaṅśāra (Telugu kamchara, i.e., brazier) Dēvapila.

Mahāsāmanta Nāgakheddi.

20. No. 763 of Appendix B refers to the fight of Nītimārga-Vemmadi with Bīra-Noḷamba and to the death in it of a certain Nāgaya. The record is not dated. Palaeographically it can be placed, however, about the latter part of the 9th century A.D. The Noḷamba-Pallava king who was ruling at this time was Mahēndrādhirāja whose latest date was Śaka 817 i.e., A.D. 895 (Vide page 62 Ep. Ind. Vol. X). On page 61 ibid, it has been noticed that this Mahēndrādhirāja entered into hostilities with the Western Gaṅgas and killed in battle Rāchcheya-Gaṅga. It is not unlikely that Ereyappa whose initial date, i.e., A.D. 893–4 (Vide the genealogical table given on page 153 of Ep. Ind. Vol. V) falls within the period of Mahēndrādhirāja, might have continued the conflict with the latter. Hence if the Bīra-Noḷamba of the record be the same as Mahēndrādhirāja, Nītimārga-Vemmadi may have to be identified with Nītimārga-Koṅguṇivarma-Permānaḍi-Ereyappa. The other record No. 753 of Appendix B is also not dated. But the characters seem to belong to about the same period.

Western Gaṅgas.

Noḷamba-Pallavas.

21. Only five records belonging to Noḷamba-Pallavas (Nos. 716, 731, 742, 767 and 783 of Appendix B) were secured during the year under review. Of these No. 731 which was copied at Madhūḍi in the Madakasira taluk of the Anantapur district is dated in Śaka 881 and the rest are undated. The king in all these records is known as Noḷambādhirāja. Dilīparasa of this family has his latest known inscription dated in Śaka 872 (Annual Report for 1917, part II, paragraph 1). His son Iṛiva-Noḷambādhirāja called also Iṛiva-Noḷamba Noḷḷipaya who has an inscription dated Śaka 885 may be the same king as the Noḷambādhirāja of our records. In No. 731, one Kōṭaya the Daṇḍanāyaka of Ballaha is said to have made some gifts of land to a temple of Vishṇu (Vishṇugṛiha). This Ballaha has already been identified in the report for last year with the Rāshṭrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa III.

Noḷamba-Pallava Noḷambādhirāja.

The Cholas.

22. As usual, a large number of Chōḷa inscriptions were copied during the year under review. Of these, there are a few which are dated in the regnal years of Parakēsarivarman and Rājakēsarivarman without any distinguishing epithets. Since we know that the kings of the Chōḷa dynasty bore the titles Rājakēsarivarman and Parakēsarivarman alternately, the mere titles are not sufficient to identify the kings. In certain cases, however, there are slight indications which suggest the possibility of an identification.

Parakēsarivarman.

As many as 19 records of Parakēsarivarman are registered in Appendices B and C (Nos. 205, 208, 292, 366, 369, 376, 438, 439, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 447 of 1917 and Nos. 46, 47, 51, 56 and 59 of 1918). Of these No. 208, dated in the 6th year of the king registers a gift by Pirāntakaṇ Purushōttamaṇ who belonged to a body of Kaikkōḷas known by the name of Dānatoṅga-teriñja-Kaikkōḷar. From the title Pirāntakaṇ assumed by the donor, it might be presumed that this record of Parakēsarivarman is one of Parāntaka I and it is also not unlikely that the king had the surname Dānatoṅga after which the community was so named. In the Annual Report for 1912 (page 64, paragraph 16), are noticed three similar groups of men, viz., Samarakēsari-teriñja-Kaikkōḷar, Vikramaśiṅga-teriñja-Kaikkōḷar, and Vīraśōḷa-teriñja-Kaikkōḷar called probably after the same king. Sōmūr near Karūr which supplies the above record contains inscriptions of Parāntaka I and suggests to some extent that the Koṅgu country, or at least that part of it, which borders on the Trichinopoly district, should have passed into the hands of the Chōḷas either in the reign of Parāntaka I or one of his two predecessors. That this conquest of the Koṅgu country should have been effected in the reign of Āditya I is made evident by the fact that Parāntaka I does not lay claim to it though the territory was under his sway and secondly that the Koṅgudēśarājākkaḷ attributes the same to Āditya I. No. 292 of Appendix B which is dated in the 9th year of Parakēsarivarman may be one of Parāntaka I as it mentions the temple of Ādityēśvaram-uḍaiya-Bhaṭṭāraka, probably so called after Āditya I. To the same king might be attributed a fragmentary record from Tiruvāṇḍārkōyil (No. 376 of 1917) which is dated in the 40th year of his reign. The script in which the record is engraved does not militate against this view. At Kuttālam in the Tinnevelly district there are a few Vaṭṭeḻuttu inscriptions and some Tamil records two of which (Nos. 446 and 448 of Appendix B) are dated in the 24th and 36th years of the reign of Madurai-koṇḍa Parakēsarivarman, i.e., Parāntaka I. Their importance consists in the fact that they are the only two records of the king discovered so far in the interior of the Pāṇḍya country whose capital Madura he is said to have taken. In the Annual Report for 1905, Part II, paragraph 10, an inscription (No. 63 of 1905), dated in the 33rd year of the same king is noticed, as having been found at Āṇaimalai in the vicinity of Madura. But it was doubtful then if the conquest extended far beyond the outskrits of the capital. Now these two records establish beyond doubt the fact of Parāntaka's conquest of the whole of the Pāṇḍya country as detailed in the Udayēndiram grant (South-Ind. Inscrs., Vol. II, page 379) and the Tiruvālaṅgāḍu plates. The eight Vaṭṭeḻuttu inscriptions of Parakēsarivarman found at Kuttālam, ranging from the 20th to the 35th years of his reign might naturally be attributed to the same king. One of the latter (No. 439 of Appendix B) mentions a certain Dharmasetṭi alias Ṣaḍaiyaṅgavayaṇ belonging to the corporation of Maṇigrāmam. Maṇigrāmam is mentioned in the Kōṭṭayam plates of Vīrarāghava along with the añjuvannam and it has been conclusively shown that these refer to corporations (Ep. Ind. Vol. IV, p. 294). Six inscriptions of Parāntaka I Nos. 136 to 139, 143 and 144 of 1918) come from Tiruvaiyāru. One of these refers to a princess named Ariñjigai, the daughter of a certain Ilāḍarāyar (Lāṭarāyar). No. 47 of Appendix C, which is dated in the 12th year of the reign of Parakēsarivarman is clearly a record of Parakēsarivarman Uttama-Chōḷa and it will be dealt with in the sequel. Since No. 46 of the same appendix mentions the village of Arikulakēsari-chaturvēdimaṅgalam it may belong either to Parāntaka or to Uttama-Chōḷa.

23. Five inscriptions of Rājakēsarivarman have been secured in the current year (Nos. 359 and 384 of Appendix B and Nos. 57, 135 and 147 of Appendix C). No. 359 refers to a grant of land to the temple of Tiruvārai Nakkaṇkōyil Paramasvāmin at Tribhuvaṇamahādēvi-chaturvēdimaṇgalam (Tribhuvani near Tiruvāṇdārkōyil), by the assembly of that village made in the 28th year of Kaṇṇaradeva, i.e., Krishna III as compensation for silver and gold jewels which they had taken from the temple and spent for sabhāviniyōga. It also alludes to gifts made in the 14th year of Maduraikoṇḍa Parakēsarivarman, i.e., Parāntaka I. As such, it must belong to the time of one of the kings bearing that title who reigned after Parāntaka I. The 28th year of Krishna III corresponds to A.D. 967–968 (Ep. Ind. Vol. VII, pages 142–144 and Annual Report for 1907, Part II, paragraph 44) which is at the same time the initial date of Uttama-Chōḷa who was a Parakēsarivarman and whose latest regnal year is 15. It is therefore probable that the Rājakēsarivarman who succeeded Uttama-Chōḷa and in whose 5th year our present record is dated must be no other than Rājarāja I who ascended the throne in 985 A.D. and was a Rājakēsari. Since No. 57 of 1918 refers to a grant made by Uttama-Chōḷa it is probably a record of Rājarāja I who reigned after him and who was a Rājakēsari. Another inscription of this Chōḷa king is No. 147 of 1918 which registers a grant made by Pañchavaṇmahādēvi, one of his queens. The record states that she was the queen of Mummaḍi-Chōḷa, i.e., Rājarāja I who bore this name in the early years of his rule.

24. Only two records referable to the time of Uttama-Chōḷa have been copied during the year (No. 287 of 1917 and No. 47 of 1918). No. 47 is dated in the 12th year of Parakēsarivarman and registers the following facts. The temple of Vriddhāchalam, the snapana-maṇḍapa, the gōpura, the covered verandah all round, and the surrounding shrines were constructed by Śembiyaṇ-Mahādēviyār, the mother of Uttama-Chōḷa and daughter of Maḷaperumānaḍigaḷ who was the queen of Gaṇḍarādittadēva, the son of 'great Chōḷa' (i.e., Parāntakadēva). And she made some costly presents to the temple, viz., five copper lamps, and one gold diadem weighing five kaḷañju less by one mañjāḍi, one silver salver weighing 389 kaḷañju, one silver kettle weighing 199¾ kaḷañju, two gold flowers weighing a kaḷañju and a half, one gold diadem for the Kūttapperumāḷ (i.e., Naṭarāja) weighing one kaḷañju, one marriage badge for the goddess Umaibhaṭṭārakī weighing half a kaḷañju with three middle pieces of it and two tāḷimbam, one sari made of pure gold, one gold plank, the pañchasari fastened to the intervening space and one gold flower for the same god. The present record only adds one more to the numerous inscriptions which register the munificent gifts made by the widowed queen of Gaṇḍarāditya.

25. Nearly 40 inscriptions of Rājarāja I (A.D. 985—1013) are included in the collection under review and some among them record interesting facts which either go to confirm the information previously known or throw fresh light. No. 199 of 1917, dated in the 17th year of the king's reign (A.D. 1002) states that Tiruvaḍigaḷ Śāttaṉ, the officer who was in charge of the survey operations, made an inquiry into the services conducted in the temple of Tirunōmbalūr-Mahādēva at Dēvanappalli (i.e, Sōmūr in the Trichinopoly district) and another record from Kūhūr (No. 285 of Appendix B) dated five years later, i.e., in A.D. 1007 speaks of the excess in measurement noticed in the survey. The officer detected that certain provisions made for the temple had not been utilized for the purpose intended originally. Accordingly fines were imposed on the persons who were concerned in the misappropriation, and out of the fines so collected a gold plate was made and presented to the temple. The inscription thus records two important facts, viz., that the revenue survey conducted in the reign of Rājarāja I was undertaken and completed in or before the year A.D. 1002 (Annual Report for 1913, Part II, paragraph 21) and that inquiries into misappropriation of temple grants were made by State officials. These confirm the information obtained in previous years. No. 266 of 1917 furnishes a curious information about a Rājakēsarivarman that he climbed up a wall and was pleased to be seated on it (maḍil-ēri-eḻundaruḷiya). This Rājakēsarivarman may probably be his father Sundara-Chōḷa.

Revenue Survey in A.D. 1002.

No. 275 of 1917 refers to the setting up of an image of Nambi-Ārūraṇār (i.e., the Śaiva Saint Sundaramūrtti-Nāyaṇār) who had composed the Tiruppadiyam hymns. Images of the saint and his consort Naṅgai-Paravai are stated in the Tanjore inscription to have been set up in the temple of Rājarājēśvara (South-Ind. Inscrs. Vol. II, page 152). No. 299 of 1917 registers a grant of land for the conduct of a festival to the same image in the temple at Kūhūr in the month of Śittirai. A section of the villagers of the same place called Koliyakkuḍaiyār having committed certain faults against the king and being fined, found themselves unable to raise the gold required and being unable at the same time to bear the harassing of the officials, sold part of their lands to the temple in order that they might pay the penalty imposed on them (No. 277 of 1917). From No. 362 of 1917 dated in the 12th year of the king and having astronomical details which work out correctly for A.D. 996, December 1, Tuesday, we learn that the assembly of Tribhuvaṇamahādēvi-chaturvēdimaṅgalam met in a pavilion constructed by Mummaḍiśōḷa Umbaḷanāṭṭuvēḷār, who appears to have been an officer under Rājarāja, made a vyavastai (agreement) regarding the village of Muṇḍiyaṇveḷḷaippākkam granted by Irumaḍiśōḷa Mūvēndavēḷār by purchase from the assembly to the temple of Tiruvāraiāḷum-Paramasvāmin which was to the following effect: 'The said assembly shall not levy any other tax than siddhāya, daṇḍāya and Pañchavāra. It shall not be lawful for them to violate it or to levy any kind of tax such as śillirai which are not mentioned in the rates already fixed. In respect of this village the members of 'the Tank Supervision Committee' and 'the Village Supervision Committee' and 'the Ūramaiśeyvār' working for the year, shall not receive any kind of payment in rice or paddy as amañji. Such of the members of the committee who misappropriated the collection of such taxes and signed the order for levying them shall be liable to pay a fine of twenty-five kaḷañju of gold which shall be collected by the dēvakanmis (i.e., the managers of the temple). Even after paying the fines, they (the members of the vāriyam) shall be liable to pay a fine to the Dharmāsana (the Court of Justice) at the place they choose and at the rates fixed in the sabhāvyavastai. The accountant of the vāriyam who allowed the unlawful collection shall be asked to pay veṭṭi. Those who say 'nay' to this order and those by whom they are so instigated shall be made to pay a fine of fifteen kaḷañju to the Dharmāsana by the Dēvakanmis; and they shall thereafter be made to obey the same order.'

A resolution regarding the levying of unauthorized duties and the penalties fixed therefor.

In his historical introduction Rājarāja I claims to have conquered Īḻa-maṇḍalam i.e., the island of Ceylon. The Tanjore inscriptions state that a number of villages in that island paid their revenue towards the services, etc., of the Tanjore temple and thus establish the reality of this conquest (South-Ind. Inscrs. Vol. II, page 424). In the current year's collection also there is a similar record (No. 454 of 1917) which registers a grant of land made by the residents of Vinnandai alias Vikrama Pāṇḍiyanallūr, a village in Kōṭṭūr-nāḍu which was a subdivision of Īḻamaṇḍalam, to the temple at Kuttālam in the Tinnevelly district. The above inscription proves clearly that both the Pāṇḍya country and Ceylon were subject to the sway of Rājarāja I.

Payment of revenue by villages in Ceylon.

As already noticed Śembiyaṇmādēviyār, the mother of Uttama-Chōḷa, was a munificent donor and a great builder of temples. No. 48 of 1918 states that this queen of Gaṇḍarāditya and daughter of Maḻaperumāṇaḍigaḷ presented a costly crown to the god at Vṛiddhāchalam. The crown weighed—9 kaḷañju, 9 mañjāḍi and 7 mā; the total weight of silver in the inner cover of it was 206½ kaḷañju and 4 mañjāḍi. It was set with 3 māṇikkam (rubies) and 36 vayiram (diamonds). To the crown were fastened 1,998 pearls all round.

Śembiyaṇmahādēvi's further donations.

No. 49 of 1918 introduces a hitherto unknown royal personage in Malaiyavvaidēviyār, the daughter of Pottappichchōḷar Śattiyaraiyar and queen of Amaṇimalla, the king of the Iruṅgōḷas. We have already noticed two Tamil records of Parāntaka I and eight others of Parakēsarivarman, probably belonging to the same king, found at Kuttālam in the Tinnevelly district. It is learnt from No. 455 of 1917 that the temple of Kuttālanātha having become dilapidated, the inscriptions that were previously engraved in Vaṭṭam (i.e., Vaṭṭeḻuttu characters) on it were taken down and re-engraved in Tamil. From this it is clear that in the Pāṇḍya country the characters employed in writing Tamil at the time were mostly Vaṭṭeḻuttu and that this script had gradually given place to Tamil which should have first come into use by the public during the time of Rājarāja I. It must therefore be understood that Tamil script was quite unknown in the Pāṇḍya country prior to the time of Rājarāja I. All the inscriptions hitherto discovered in that part of the country and assignable to a period earlier than the time of Rājarāja I, i.e., beginning of the 10th century A.D. have been actually found to be in Vaṭṭeḻuttu characters and this is in consonance with the import of the inscription under notice. The Tamil records of Parāntaka I found at Kuttālam are therefore copies of older ones in Vaṭṭeḻuttu.

Vaṭṭeḻuttu was the alphabet in use before the 10th century A.D. in the Pāṇḍya country.

26. Parakēsarivarman Rājēndra-Chōḻa I was a co-regent of his father Rājarāja I during the last three years of the latter's rule. This seems to be the reason why we do not meet with stone inscriptions dated in the 1st and 2nd years of Rājēndra-Chōḻa's reign. The earliest record of his in the collection (No. 196 of 1917) belongs to the 3rd year of his reign and refers to a grant made by Kaḍalamgudi Dāmōdara-Bhaṭṭaṉ, one of the arbitrators of the time of his father. This officer figures in the Āṉaimaṅgalam grant of Rājēndra-Chōḻa I, now preserved in Leyden. There is an inscription at Kuttālam dated in the same year of the reign of Parakēsarivarman Rājēndrasimha which might be attributed to Rājēndra-Chōḻa I, since the name Rājēndrasimha figures very often as part of the surnames of villages and subdivisions in Tamil inscriptions of that king, but do not occur in the records belonging to Rājarāja I. As an instance we might refer to No. 44 of 1918 dated in the 4th year of Rājēndra-Chōḻa I which mentions the territorial division Vaḍagarai-Rājēndrasimha-Vaḷanāḍu. One of the Vṛiddhāchalam inscriptions registers a gift made by a lady belonging to a family of kings or chieftains named Śembiyaṉ Dēvaḍigaḷār, the daughter of Paḻavēṭṭaraiyar and queen of Vallavaraiyaṉ (No. 39 of 1918); and another from Kūḥūr (No. 296 of 1917) refers to a revenue survey which might be the one that was conducted in the reign of Rājarāja I. A record from Tiruvāṇḍār-kōyil dated in the 10th year of the king's reign (No. 363 of 1917) furnishes the very interesting information that Rājēndra-Chōḻa I constructed at Madura a huge palace (māḷigai) 'by whose weight even the earth became unsteady' and anointed his son Chōḻa-Pāṇḍya as the viceroy of the Pāṇḍyan kingdom at Madura. Though the appointment of Chōḻa-Pāṇḍya as viceroy is not new to history but is known from other stone epigraphs and from the Tiruvāḷaṅgāḍu grant (Annual Report for 1905, paragraph 25, and for 1906, paragraph 17) the construction of a palace by the Chōḻa sovereign, in the very capital of the Pāṇḍya is surely an additional information. In A.D. 1031 i.e., in the 21st year of the reign of Rājēndra-Chōḻa, Dantiśaktiviṭaṅki alias Lōkamahādēvī, queen of Rājarāja I, presented to the shrine of Lōkamahādēvi-Īśvara now called Uttarakailāsa in the Pañchanadīśvara temple at Tiruvaiyāru, through the officer Rājarāja-Mūvēndavēḷān, certain necklaces of gold, filled inside with lac and set with a number of costly gems (No. 154 of 1918). The name of the temple, i.e., Lōkamahādēvi-Īśvara suggests that it should have been built by queen Dantiśaktiviṭaṅki whose surname it was. From a Tiruviśalūr record we know that this queen performed the ceremony of hēmagarbha (passing through a golden cow) in A.D. 1013, i.e., in the very last year of the reign of her lord, king Rājarāja I who, on the same day, had his tulābhāra ceremony, performed in the Śivayōganāthasvāmin temple in the same place. From the present inscription we have to presume that she ought to have lived at least for 17 years after Rājāraja's demise.

and gives astronomical details which work out correctly for A.D. 1036 September 16, Thursday. It mentions a number of shrines situated in the place. They are: (1) Śrīmūlasthāṇamuḍaiyār; (2) Rājarājaviṇṇagar-Āḻvār; (3) Kundavai-Viṇṇagar-Āḻvār; (4) Sundaraśōḻa-Viṇṇagar-Āḻvār; (5) Dēvēndra; (6) Sarasvatī; (7) Śrībhaṭṭārakī; (8) Mahāmōḍi; (9) Sūryadēva; (10) Saptamātṛis; (11) Mahaśāsttā; (12) Durgā; (13) Subrahmaṇya; (14) Jyēshṭhā; (15) Dēvas of the Chēris and (16) Śiṅgavēḷkuṉṟāḻvār.

Temple as an Educational Institution.

27. In some respects South-Indian temples served the purpose of educational institutions in ancient times. Records of previous years have revealed the fact that provisions were made for the recitation in temples of hymns from the Tēvāram, the Nālāyiraprabandham and other religious poems and for reading and expounding works of great merit. Adhyayana (i.e., the chanting of the Vēdas) was one of the many chief objects for which grants were made in former times. A large number of records register grants made for the singing of the Tiruppadiyam and the Tiruvāymoḷi hymns. A Śendalai inscription provides for the reading of the Mahābhārata in the Sundarēśvara temple in that village (Annual Report for 1897, page 4, paragraph 9). A grant of land was made in the 10th century A.D. to one who expounded the Prabhākaram in the Nāgēśvara temple at Kumbakōṇam (Annual Report for 1912, page 65). One of the Tiruvoṟṟiyūr inscriptions states that as much as 60 vēli of land was given for the maintenance of a maṇḍapa called Vyākaraṇadāna-Vyakhyāna-maṇḍapa built in the temple, for the upkeep of the teachers and pupils who studied grammar in that hall and for the worship of the god (Vyākaraṇadāna-Perumāḷ) who, it is said, was pleased to appear before Pāṇini-Bhagavān for 14 days and to teach him the 14 aphorisms. In the same temple Śivadharma and Siddhānta were also taught (Annual Report for 1913, page 110). In a stone inscription from the Veṅkaṭēśa-Perumāḷ temple at Tirumukkūḍal near Conjeeveram (Annual Report for 1916, page 118 f) it is stated that, besides a hospital, the temple maintained a hostel and a college. Instances of this nature which indicate that temples of South India served the purpose of an educational institution in ancient times have already come to our notice. But none of them gave us such details regarding the strength of the teaching staff, the number of the attendant disciples and their maintenance, as the epigraph, No. 333 of 1917, of the time of Rājēndra-Chōḷa I found in the year under review at Eṉṉāyiram.

Rājēndra-Chōḷa's expedition against the Northern Powers.

28. The record contains interesting information regarding the king's conquest of the northern region, of his stately return march with all the splendour of a conqueror, of his wedding the Gaṅgā and hence assuming the title of Gaṅgaikoṇḍa-Chōḷa and building a hall called after that title and feeding a number of people in it. The wording of the inscription seems to indicate that Rājēndra-Chōḷa I was himself engaged in the expedition against the kings of Northern India (Uttarāpatha) and it may not be unreasonable to suppose that he did not entrust the management of it merely to his generals as the wording of the Tiruvālaṅgāḍu plates would, at first sight, imply. The date of the inscription is so completely effaced that it is difficult to make it out; but from the conquests enumerated in the introduction it may be said that it cannot be earlier than A. D. 1023. The record states that, in order to secure success to the arms of the king, the assembly of Rājarāja-chaturvēdimaṅgalam, which was the name by which Eṉṉāyiram was known, made the following provisions to the lord (Paramasvāmin) who 'was pleased to stand with a fierce appearance' in the temple of Rājarāja-Viṇṇagar, receiving worship and offerings. The charities were mainly intended for maintaining a hostel and a college for Vedic study as detailed below:—

A college fr Vēdic study and a hostel maintained in the temple at Eṉṉāyiram.

(i) Four persons were appointed for the recitation of the Tiruvāymoḷi hymns in the temple and they were allowed three kuṟuṇi of paddy each per day. To meet this charge, land at Ānāṅgūr alias Rājarājanallūr, measuring half (a vēli) and two mā in extent were given.

(ii) For feeding twenty-five Śrī-Vaishṇavas in the maṭha attached to the same temple one vēli and four mā of land in the same place were allotted.

(iii) Sixty kalam of paddy and three kaḷañju of gold were also provided for the Seven-days' festival of Āṇi-Aṇuḷam in order to feed one thousand Vaishṇavas and dāsas (devotees) who came to witness it.

(iv) Half a vēḷi and two mā of land and some gold were given to meet the cost of taking the god in procession round the village, in a car; for the grant of cloths to the mendicants on the occasion, for purchasing cloth to be put on the deity; for offerings, bath and garlands, for performing certain ceremonies, etc.

The following students were fed in the Gaṅgaikoṇḍaśōḷaṉ-maṇḍapa :—

(a) Seventy-five studying the Ṛig-Vēda.
(b) Seventy-five studying the Yajur-Vēda.
(c) Twenty studying the Chāndōga-Sāma.
(d) Twenty studying the Talavakāra-Sāma.
(e) Twenty studying the Vājasanēya.
(f) Ten studying the Atharva.
(g) Ten studying the Baudhāyanīya Gṛihya-kalpa and Gaṇa, thus making a total of 230 Brahmachārins for studying the above-mentioned (apūrvam) Vēdas which with the forty persons learning the Rūpāvatāra came to 270. Six nāḷi of paddy was allotted for each of these per day.

Further there were—

(h) Twenty-five learning (தொடர்ந்து) the Vyākaraṇa.
(i) Thirty-five learning (தொடர்ந்து) the Prabhākara, and (j) Ten persons learning the Vēdānta.

For these 70 pupils (śāttira) who learnt the ōttu (Vēdas) provision was made at the rate of one kuṟuṇi and two nāḷi of paddy each per day.

One kalam of paddy was given to the nambi who expounded the Vyākaraṇa, one kalam to another who expounded the Prabhākara; and one kalam and one tūṇi to the third who expounded the Vēdanta.

Ten professors were appointed to teach the Vēdas as detailed below :—

Three		to teach the Ṛig-Vēda.
Three	,,	Yajus.
One	,,	Chandōga.
One	,,	Taḷavakāra-Sāma.
One	,,	Vājasanēya.
One	,,	Baudhāyanīya gṛihya and kalpa and Kāṭhaka.

The teacher who expounded the Rūpāvatāra got 3 kuṟuṇi of paddy a day. Thus for a day 30 kalam of paddy measured by the Rājarājaṉ-marakkāl were required. The annual requirements came to 10,506 kalam of paddy. The gold required for expenses was as follows: 8 kaḷañju of gold to the professor of Vyākaraṇa for expounding 8 adhyāyas at one kaḷañju per adhyāya, 12 kaḷañju to . . . for expounding 12 adhyāyas at one kaḷañju per adhyāya. $6\frac{1}{2}$ kaḷāñju to the 13 professors who taught the Vēdas and to the one who expounded the Rūpāvatāra at half a kaḷañju each and 35 kaḷañju at $\frac{1}{2}$ kaḷañju each to the 70 pupils (śāttirar) who learnt the Vyākaraṇa and the Mīmāmsā.

Thus in all for the $61\frac{1}{2}$ kaḷañju of gold and the paddy that were required, the temple was put in possession of 45 vēḷi of land situated in Māmbākachchēri alias Pavittiramāṇikkanallūr forming part of Ānāṅgūr alias Rājarājanallūr and Mēlakkūdalūr alias Purushanārāyaṇanallūr.

King Rājēndra-Chōḷadēva I, having thus directed the assembly of Rājarājachaturvēdimaṅgalam ordered, in the presence of Kāḷi Ekāmraṇār, the head of the village, that they should not show in the account books, any more taxes than 1/16 mā and 1 padakku against the persons residing in the said two villages and cultivating the 45 vēḷi of land, and this they promised to do taking solemn oaths.

This inscription is of great importance to us as it shows clearly that in ancient temples not only was the regular conduct of worship maintained but also the study of the Vēdas, philosophy, grammar and other sciences was encouraged by munificent royal grants. Gifts made for such purposes as these were known as Vēdavṛitti and Adhyayanāṅga. In some cases where munificent grants such as the one detailed in the record under review had not been made, provision was made for feeding a few persons versed in the Vēdas and Apūrvins.

29. The hostel attached to the temple at Ennāyiram seems to have fed not only teachers and students of the Vēdic college but other men as well. One of the records of the place (No. 343 of 1917) which has unfortunately neither beginning nor end, being built in at either side, refers to the maintenance of a hostel which must be the same as the one connected with the college. Provision was here made for feeding 506 Brāhmaṇas among whom were Brahmans versed in the Vēdas, Brahmans in general and the Śrī-Vaishṇavas. This number might have included the 350 attached to the college, as detailed in the previous paragraph. The rest must have included those who sung the Tiruppadiyam, who formed the gōshṭi, who recited the Tiruppugaḷ and who uttered Sadyajñam. As jātakadakshiṇā, on the day of Jayantyashṭamī (the birthday) of Veṇṇaikūttar (Krishṇa), it is stated that, those Brahmans who studied to the end the Ṛig, Yajus and Sāma Vēdas should receive a gold flower and a gold ring. On the merchant class which received money from the markets devolved the duty of supplying excellently husked rice which they were bound to bring to the hostel and measure out at the rate of 2 to 5 of paddy for [feeding ?] the 50 Brahmans. The great men in charge of the ūrvāriyam, i.e., 'the Village Supervision Committee' had to look after the daily supply of the firewood required for the hostel. The Brahman and Vaḷañjiya merchants who traded in the south bazaar were given certain amount of money and they agreed to supply sugar and other things in lieu of the interest on the sum lent. And it is further added that the excess of ghee, milk and curds that remained after meeting the requirements of the temple should be made over to the hostel. There is reference to a similar feeding house, but in a much smaller scale, in No. 323 of 1917 which comes from Paṇaiyavaram. Here provision is made for conducting a hostel (śālai) which fed daily 50 Brāhmaṇas and 10 Śivayōgins who were also given oil for bathing. The same inscription further provides for a teacher of a free school (dhanma-paḷḷi) and for maintaining three water-sheds one in front of the temple of Paravai-Īśvaramuḍaiyār, another in front of the maṇḍapa of Rājēndraśōḷaṉ and the third in front of the temple of Rājēndraśōḷa-Viṇṇagar-Āḻvār. For rendering service in the hostel and the water-sheds Brahmachārins were appointed.

Brahmans also as tradesmen.

30. Inscriptions of Rājakēsarivarman Rājādhirāja I in the collection are only two (No. 330 of 1917 and No. 55 of 1918). They are dated in the 30th and 32nd years of his reign and mention as usual his conquests. No. 330 gives astronomical details which are correct for A.D. 1048 February 26, Friday. It is stated that the assembly of Rājarāja-chaturvēdimaṅgalam, i.e., Ennāyiram met in the pavilion called Mummaḍiśōḷaṉ-maṇḍapa in company with Nṛipēndraśōḷa Mūvēndavēḷāṉ, the governor of the town and gave effect to an order of the king issued under the signature of his royal secretary Aḷagiyaśōḷaṉ Viḷupparaiyar stating that on the lands belonging to the temple of Tiruvāyppāḍi, only the lowest rate of tax needs be levied as in the case of the lands belonging to the Rājarāja-Viṇṇagar and Kundavai-Viṇṇagar. This order of the king dated in the 27th year and 137th day of his reign, reached the assembly on the 30th year and 240th day. It thus appears that for the transmission of the order from the king to the assembly through the intermediate office, it took 3 years and 103 days. On receipt of it, the assembly gave practical effect to it.

Rājakēsarivarman alias Rājādhirāja I.

The second record, i.e., No. 55 of 1918 contains the short introduction commencing with the words இருமகள்மருவிய, etc., and mentions the conquests of (1) Gaṅgai, Laṅkā, Kaḍāram (Burmah) and Magōḍai of the west, (2) the defeat of the king Mānābharaṇa and of the Kūpakas and (3) the destruction of the ships at Kāndaḷūrśālai.

His conquests shortly told.

31. Parakēsarivarman Rājēndradēva is represented by three inscriptions in the collection. Two of them (Nos. 318 of 1917 and 58 of 1918), dated in the 6th and 5th years respectively, record his military achievements, viz., the setting up of a pillar of victory at Kollāpuram, his military exploits in the battle on the banks of the Parakēsarivarman Rājēndradēva—his conquests.

Pērāṟu (at Koppam) where he captured Āhavamalla's elephant, camel and treasury along with his queen, and the taking possession of Iraṭṭapāḍi One and a Half Lakhs.

32. Nos. 280 and 322 of 1917 copied at Kūhūr in the Tanjore district and at Paṇaiyavaram in the South Arcot district respectively belong to the reign of Parakēsarivarman Adhirājēndradēva whose inscriptions are rarely met with. The introduction does not contain any historical fact. The former record registers a gift of land to an individual, for enjoyment by himself and his descendants, for reciting twice daily the Tiruppadiyam hymns in the temple of Tirumāmbaḷamuḍaiya-Mahādēvar at Kūhūr. The latter records a gift of land by the residents to the temple of Paravai-Īśvaramuḍaiyār at Paravaipuram (the ancient name of Paṇaiyavaram in the South Arcot district). The temple was probably called so after Paravai, one of the wives of the Tamil saint Sundaramūrtti who was a native of Tiruvennainallūr, not far from Paṇaiyavaram.

Parakēsarivarman Adhirājēndra.

The portion of the South Arcot district which was situated on the north bank of the Penṇai was known by the term Vāṇagappāḍi and it seems to have been termed so because it was included in or formed part of the country of the Bāṇas. None of the inscriptions at Paṇaiyavaram state that the place was situated in Vāṇagappāḍi though it is not far removed from the region which was indicated by that territorial division. Parivipuri or Parivi the capital of the Bāṇas has been identified with Parigi in the Anantapur district (South-Ind. Inscrs. Vol. II, page 425 and Annual Report for 1912, page 75).

A portion of the Bāṇa country lay in the South Arcot district.

33. A number of inscriptions of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa with or without introductions have been secured during the year. Of these, three (Nos. 340 and 350 of 1917 and 158 of 1918) contain the introduction beginning with the words புகழ்சூழ்ந்தபுணரி and four (Nos. 274, 283, and 365 of 1917 and 159 of 1918) begin with the words புகழ் மாதவினங்க. These seven records therefore belong to the time of Rājakēsarivarman Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I. They range in date from the 7th to the 42nd year of his reign. No. 340 registers a grant by Ulagaḷandāṉ Tiruvaraṅgadēvaṉ of Kuḷattūr to the temple at Eṉṉāyiram. The first part of the individual's name has perhaps a reference to the revenue survey undertaken by the king. From No. 159 of 1918 we learn that a resident of Tribhuvanamādēvinallūr, the southern hamlet of Rājarājachaturvēdimaṅgalam, i.e., Brahmadēśam in the South Arcot district, having killed a native of Āmūr in Uttamaśōḷa-vaḷanāḍu gave one hundred and twenty-eight cows for maintaining four lamps in the temple of Brahmīśvaram in order to expiate the sin incurred by killing a certain individual accidentally. Another record from Brahmadēśam (No. 158 of 1918) gives the 41st year and 294th day of the king and the astronomical details contained in it work out correct for A.D. 1111 April 25, Tuesday. It speaks of the consecration of temples, opening of irrigation works, punishment of the wicked and protection of the good and the increase of Brahmanism, in which we must trace some reference either to evil times generally or specially in that locality. In this connexion, it is perhaps worthy of note that the god at Eṉṉāyiram, quite close to Brahmadēśam, is said to have assumed a fierce aspect (aghōramāyeḷundaruḷi) as opposed to a mild form (iṉideḷundaruḷi) generally met with in inscriptions. This seems to suggest some reference to the specially bad state of the locality to allay which, Chōḷa kings from the time of Rājēndra-Chōḷa I to Kulōttuṅga I and his son Vikrama-Chōḷa contributed towards building of temples, construction of tanks, opening of feeding-houses and the like in this special tract. A single inscription (No. 358 of 1917) with the introduction திருமன்னிவிளங்கு is included in the list and it is dated in the 2nd year of Rājakēsarivarman Rājēndra-Chōḷa, i.e., Kulōttuṅga I who in his earlier years styled himself Rājēndra-Chōḷa (South-Ind. Inscrs. Vol. III, page 132). Some of the inscriptions without the characteristic historical introduction of Kulōttuṅga I can still be ascribed to him, as for instance Nos. 278, 282, 288, 297, 300, 301 and 314 of 1917 all of which come from Kūhūr in the Tanjore district and have either the title Rājakēsarivarman or are signed by Nārāyaṇaṉ, the Madhyastha of Kūhūr who also figures in a clear record of Kulōttuṅga I. Palaeographical considerations do not militate against this view.

The Dēvāram hymns, compiled in the time of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I.

34. Students of Tamil literature know that at a certain time in the history of Southern India there was a strong desire to collect together the sacred utterances of the Saiva saints which were till then only preserved in parts and at different places. These utterances had, during the course of a few centuries since the authors of the hymns had passed away, acquired the sanctity of the Vēdas in the eyes of the Tamils. In the endeavour to wrest them from oblivion, in arranging them in order and in assigning to them their proper tunes the people of the Chōḷa country and their king took a keen interest. The tradition regarding the rescue of the extant Dēvāram hymns is what is given out by the Tamil hagiologist Sekkiḻār. According to this authority, during the reign of the Chōḷa king Rājarāja-Abhayakulaśēkhara, identifiable with Kulōttuṅga I, there was a devotee Nambi-Āṇḍār-Nambi, belonging to the class of archakas or temple worshippers. His devotion was considered so great, it is said, that the god yielded to his request to eat a dish of rice offered by him. Through the miraculous intervention of this devotee, they came to learn that all the songs, composed by the three authors of the Tamil Scriptures, i.e., Jñānaśambanda, Appar and Sundaramūrti were preserved on palm leaves in one of the rooms attached to the Siva temple at Chidambaram, and it was possible to open the door of it only in the presence of the three. Eventually, on opening the room there were found heaps of palm leaf manuscripts, much of which had been eaten by moths. In right oriental fashion, it is narrated that, a voice from above was heard to say that the leaves which had been destroyed by moths were superfluities. Of the three authors of the Dēvāram Jñānaśambanda is believed to have sung 16,000 hymns whereas there are only 384 now preserved. Similarly some of the songs of Appar and Sundarar have not seen the light of day. The belief is very strong that many more hymns were composed by the three authors than what are now printed; and there is certainly room for giving credence to it if we remember the fact that there had been more Śiva temples at the time when the authors flourished than are found in their hymns and there is not sufficient reason for their omission. The discovery (see above Part I, paragraph 18) last year of a valuable epigraph (No. 8 of 1918) which is a hymn of 11 verses in Tamil by Jñānaśambanda on Tiruvaḍavāyil, that is not traceable in the printed copy of Dēvāram furnishes direct evidence on the point and lends support to this belief. The script in which the epigraph is incised may be roughly assigned to the 12th century A.D., just the time when the other Dēvāram hymns were collected. The method adopted in the treatment of the subject-matter of the hymn is quite characteristic of the saint to whom it is attributed in the inscription, inasmuch as one half of each verse describes the god and the other half furnishes a description of the place.

Eleven new verses of the Dēvāram in an epigraph.

35. Of the time of his successor Vikrama-Chōḷa who is indifferently styled Parakēsarivarman (No. 232 of 1917 and Nos. 12 and 160 of 1918) and Rājakēsarivarman (Nos. 6, 63 and 64 of 1918) in the present year's collection, there are eleven inscriptions (Nos. 232, 309 and 311 of 1917 and 6, 12, 20, 27, 63, 64, 160 and 182 of 1918). They begin with the introduction புகழ்மாது புணர, பூமாதுபுணர and பூமாவிலிடைக்க. One of the Brahmadēśam records (No. 160 of 1918) is similar in its contents to No. 158 of 1918 noticed above and contains certain astronomical details which are not sufficient for calculation but which must fall in A.D. 1133. It is rather strange that the times or the locality should have continued in the same bad condition during this reign as well. One of the king's ministers was Śōḷakōṉ (No. 63 of 1918). The introduction of No. 232 of 1917 is similar in its wording to No. 79 of South-Ind. Inscrs., Vol. III, page 182 f. As such it might have been a record of Vikrama-Chōḷa.

Vikrama-Chōḷa.

36. Kulōttuṅga II is represented by five records surely attributable to him (Nos. 157, 169, 171, 179 and 181 of 1918) which begin with the introduction

குலோத்துங்கர். In all of them the king gets the title Rājakēsarivarman. No. 157 confirms the surmise made in the Annual Report for 1912 (page 67) that Anapāya was a surname of this king, as it is stated that a village was granted under the new name Anapāyanallūr which should have been so called after the king. It may be noted that the latest regnal year found for the king is only the tenth.

Kulōttuṅga II.

37. Parakēsarivarman Rājarāja II is represented by four records in the collection under review (Nos. 315 and 336 of 1917 and Nos. 52 and 168 of 1918) from one of which (No. 336 of 1917) we learn that Chōḷēndraśiṅgha-Mūvēndavēḷāṉ was the king's chief secretary (tirumandira-ōlai).

Rājarāja II.

38. Only four records of Rājādhirāja II are registered in Appendices B and C. They range in date from the 6th to the 14th year of his reign and come from Korukkai and Tiruvidavāyil in the Tanjore district (Nos. 224 and 228 of 1917 and 14 of 1918). His conquests of Madura and Ceylon are mentioned. No. 224 of 1917 dated in his 6th year contains astronomical details which have been found on verification to be correct for A.D 1168, June 8, Saturday but the tithi was dvitīyā not tṛitīyā as given in the record. The object of the record is to register the fact that the assembly of Kuṟukkai, also called Vikramaśōḷa-chaturvēdimaṅgalam, made a tax-free gift of land to the temple of Tiruvīraṭṭāṇamuḍaiyār—one of the eight Vīraṭṭāṇams which had been sung by the Śaiva saints—for garlands. There was half a vēli of taxed land which for a period of 50 years was left uncultivated and claimed by none. The assembly paid the taxes due including the kaḍamai and kuḍimai all these years. Subsequently it was again lying fallow and the taxes, such as kaḍamai and kuḍimai, were not paid, but were left in arrears. It was therefore decided to make a gift of it to the temple, get it cultivated with paddy and the like crops, and supply from its income one hundred garlands daily of Śeṅgaḻunīr (red-lotus) flowers perpetually as long as the moon and the sun endure, to the temple at the midnight service. For making the land tax-free of the village (உள்ளிப்பிறைபதி), the assembly received in lieu thereof, from the temple treasury one hundred and sixty kāśu which had been collected by donations and deposited in it by Tirujñānaśambanda, a devotee of the temple and agreed to pay all kuḍimai taxes on this land including antarāya and viṇiyōya. The assembly further agreed to pay the said taxes including śilvari and peruvari even if at any future time claimants for the land arose and disturbed its exemption from taxes. It is perhaps worthy of note that the liability of the assembly to pay the taxes even after the land had changed hands must have arisen from the fact that they had come in possession of 160 kāśu the capital from which the taxes on the lands had to be paid and secondly that if the transferee had been asked to pay the taxes, there would be a double payment of the same. The change of ownership intended as a hypothetical case in the inscription seems only to refer to the right of cultivation of the land which had been once for all made tax-free and given over to the temple.

Land unclaimed for 50 years now granted to the temple exempt from tax.

39. Fifteen records (Nos. 176, 93, 165, 25 of 1918, 226 of 1917, 161, 94, 189 of 1918, 252, 227 of 1917, 186 of 1918, 219, 225 of 1917, 2 of 1918 and 213 of 1917), of Kulōttuṅga III, ranging in date from his 4th to 37th year of reign, have been secured in the year under review. Some of these contain his introduction beginning with the words புவனமுழுத்த; others mention his conquests of Madura, Īḻam (Ceylon), Karuvūr, and state that he took the crowned head of the Pāṇḍya (king). In a few records the name Tribhuvanavīradēva is substituted for Kulōttuṅga. The astronomical details furnished in the inscriptions have been verified and the results noted in Appendix E. The earliest achievement of Kulōttuṅga III is his conquest of Madura. It is interesting to note that Nos. 167 and 176 of 1918 style a certain chief named Ammaiyappaṉ alias Rājarājaśambuvarāyaṉ as the capturer of the Pāṇḍya country. The same chief is alluded to in No. 342 of 1917, which is dated in the reign of Tribhuvanachakravartin Rājarāja III. From this it is almost certain that the chief rendered valuable service in the expedition against the Pāṇḍyas by Kulōttuṅga III, an expedition which was attended with signal success. From No. 94 of Kulōttuṅga III: his conquests.

1918 of the 14th year of the king whose introduction is quite similar to that of a record of his 9th year (No. 86 of South-Ind. Inscrs., Vol. III, page 210 f.) we gather that there were internal dissensions in the Pāṇḍya country, that Vikrama-Pāṇḍya who was opposed by the combined forces of Vīra-Pāṇḍya or his son and his ally the king of Ceylon, sought the help of the Chōḷa sovereign and that Kulōttuṅga III espousing his cause invaded the country with a valiant army, inflicted defeat on the allied powers, killed Vīra-Pāṇḍya's son and caused the dispersed Singhalese troops to show their backs and enter the sea. Setting up a pillar of victory in Madura he conferred the kingdom on his protege Vikrama-Pāṇḍya. The title "capturer of the Pāṇḍya country" assumed by Ammaiyappaṉ Rājarāja Śambuvarāya, as early as the 4th year of the king (A.D. 1182) shows that he rendered valuable help to his Chōḷa overlord, by whom he must have been so honoured. It may be noted here that this is one of the earliest references to Śambuvarāyaṉ in inscriptions, and the chief that figures herein may be considered as an early member of that family. The record under reference gives us a clue to understand the original position held by the ancestors of the Śambuvarāya family as that of the feudatories of the waning Chōḷa power. The other title Rājarāja might indicate that he was a subordinate of Kulōttuṅga III's father Rājarāja II. During the time of Rājādhirāja II also there was a feudatory chief of the Śambuvarāya family who stood by the side of his Chōḷa overlord. Later on we meet with a member of the same line in the records of Rājarāja III. Thus during the days when the Chōḷa power was gradually sinking, i.e., in the period covered by the reigns of the four successive Chōḷa sovereigns, viz., Rājarāja II, Rājādhirāja II, Kulōttuṅga III and Rājarāja III, Śambuvarāyas held a subordinate position under the Chōḷas and rendered valuable service to them as the titles 'Pāṇḍināḍukoṇḍa', 'veṉṟumaṅkoṇḍa' 'taniniṉṟuveṉṟāṉ' which the several members of the family had assumed, clearly indicate. The weakest of the Chōḷa kings was Rājarāja III, a king who allowed himself to be taken captive by one of his own supplicants and was in such a miserable plight as to be rescued and re-established on his throne by the neighbouring kings, i.e., the Hoysaḷa Narasiṁha and the Telugu Chōḍa chief Tikka both of whom claim to be establishers of the Chōḷas. It was after Rājarāja III that the Śambuvarāyas appear as completely independent sovereigns ruling a portion of the Chōḷa dominions, i.e., a part of the ancient Toṇḍai-maṇḍalam. This attempt to gain independence seems to have been made in the latter part of the reign of Rājarāja III. It is perhaps worthy of consideration here that Chōḷa Tikka, who claims to have established the Chōḷas, claims also to have defeated the Śambuvarāya by which we might gather that on behalf of the declining Chōḷas, Tikka aimed a blow at the feudatory Śambuvarāya who attempted to throw off the Chōḷa yoke and assert his independence.

Civil war in the Pāṇḍya country.

The family of Śambuvarāyas were originally feudatories of the Chōḷas.

40. The reign of Kulōttuṅga III was noted for building activities and the Tribhuvaṇam record noticed in the Annual Report for 1908, p. 81, shows the interest evinced by the king himself in that direction. No. 93 of 1918 included in the present year's collection states that a chief named Iraṇaṉ Poṉparappiṉāṉ alias Rājarājakōvalarāyaṉ of Kugaiyūr in the South Arcot district built the temple of Śrīkailāsam, also known as Poṉparappiṉa Īśvaramuḍaiya-Nāyaṉār, with its three pavilions the ardha-maṇḍapa, snapana-maṇḍapa and nṛitta-maṇḍapa together with the two enclosing walls and towers, i.e., the first prākāra and its gōpura. He also constructed a tank called Vīrabhayaṅkaram and gave extensive lands for its upkeep. The endowments to the temple were largely augmented by the gifts of another chief, perhaps of the same family, named Rājarājadēvaṉ Poṉparappiṉāṉ alias Vāṇakōvaraiyaṉ of Śirupākkam (No. 94 of 1918). The chiefs bearing the title Poṉparappiṉa which they assumed by virtue of some early member of the family covering the Chidambaram temple with gold were also subordinates of the Chōḷas.

Building activities during the reign of Kulōttuṅga III.

A number of inscriptions of Kulōttuṅga III state that he took Karuvūr. In No. 227 of Appendix B, this item of his achievement is substituted by the conquest of "Koṅgu alias Vīraśōḷa-maṇḍalam." That the two are not different is quite apparent and it may be explained by stating that in the first instance the capital is mentioned and that it stands for the territory to which it belonged in the second. Similarly also when the inscriptions merely mention the capture of places such as Madura, we have to understand that the countries in which they were situated were overcome. No. 229 of 1917 refers to his father Rājarājadēvaṉ.

Rājarāja III.

41. About 24 inscriptions of Tribhuvanachakravartin Rājarāja III have been copied in the year. The details of date given in some of these are noted in Appendix E, with their equivalents. Some of the interesting facts mentioned in a few records of this king are noted below. No. 223 of 1917 gives a list of slaves both male and female, numbering more than a hundred persons, owned by the temple of Vīraṭṭaṇēśvara, having been made over to it by an order of the king, by purchase from several people and by gifts from private individuals in the 9th and 10th years of the reign of Kulōttuṅga III (A.D. 1187–88) in the 7th year of Rājādhirāja II (A.D. 1169) and in the reign of Rājarāja III. The circumstances connected with their sale to the temple and the prices paid for them are not stated. In previous years, similar instances have been recorded (Annual Report for 1905, part II, p. 54 and Annual Report for 1913, p. 108). It is worthy of note that all these records belong to the Tanjore district. The king's officers Kāliṅgarāyaṉ and Kāḍuveṭṭi are mentioned in Nos. 241, 250, 262 and 265 of 1917. One of these fixes araśukūli, and pāḍikāval at one kalam on each mā of land. In No. 245 of 1917 it is stated that the persons holding the lands belonging to the temple of Kōyil-Tirumālam expressed their inability to pay the taxes at the prevailing rates and requested that these might be revised and fixed for the future. Thereupon the lands were resumed and given over to the same temple perhaps on a favourable tenure or by excusing the payment of the dues altogether. The gift is expressly stated to have been made for the recovery of the king's health and for the prosperity of the village. From Nos. 246 and 247 of 1917 we learn that nearly 5 vēli, 3 mā, 1½ kāṇi, 1 mundiri, kīḻ 4 mā of land were sold for 20,700 kāśu and that 2 vēli, 8½ mā, ½ kāṇi, 1 mundirigai, kīḻ half and 2 mā for 10,000 kāśu.

Some administrative features of the time.

The only other record of Rājarāja III which is worthy of notice is No. 1 of 1918 from Tukkāchchi. Its date portion is much damaged but can be read as 22 + 1st to suit the details given of it in the inscription, viz., that the 12th day of the month of Vaigāśi of the year fell on Friday. We are informed that the cultivators of the lands given to the temple of Vikrama-Chōḻīśvaramuḍaiyār, for conducting worship, and offerings, for supplying unguents and garlands of śeṅgaḻunīr flowers and for meeting other requirements of the temple failed to pay the kaḍamai when demanded. Seeing this, and realizing perhaps their distressed condition also, Śīrāṇḍan alias Muṉaiyadaraiyaṉ, one of the Kāvalkāṇiyāḷar (i.e., the men appointed for leasing out lands and realizing assessment), prevented the defaulting tenants from absconding by giving them what was required for their maintenance and personally inquired into the daily requirements of the temple, supplemented its funds so that the fixed scale of expenses might be met; set up images of the gods Śaṇi and Bṛihaspati in order that the god might be taken in procession; appointed a person to perform a number of prostrations to the god in the temple for the welfare of the king; nominated the nambis to perform fire-sacrifices (hōma) and ministered to the wants of Brahmans and Veḷḷāḷas who had inhabited the village from outside. For all these good services he, the kāṇiyāḷaṉ was given the privilege of entering the temple armed with a bow, of getting one of the privileges (nimandas) for himself; of receiving half of the emoluments of the persons who had to carry the god in procession; of getting a house in the temple premises and to let it to any person he chooses; and to have this order engraved on stone. He is said to have reappointed the servants and to have managed the lands which were abandoned without being cultivated in previous years, in such a way as to obtain for the temple an income of 2,000 kalam of paddy. This inscription is of importance as it seems to show what a responsible kāṇiyāḷaṉ ought to do in times of distress when lands are liable to be left uncultivated and the ryots are likely to run away from villages to the detriment of the State interest.

The services rendered by a Kāṇiyāḷaṉ during a time of distress and the privileges he was allowed.

Rājēndra-Chōḷa III.

The latest Chōḷa records of the year (No. 10 of 1918 and Nos. 339 and 752 of 1917) belong to the reign of Tribhuvanachakravartin Rājēndra-Chōḷa III. Two of these (Nos. 10 of 1918 and 339 of 1917) furnish astronomical details whose English equivalents are given in Appendix E. No. 10 of Appendix C, refers to a monastery (guhai) of Tirumurai-Dēvārachchelvar, of the lineage of Naraśiṅgadēvar belonging to the maṭha called Oruchchiragaṉ situated on the northern side of the temple of Tiruttōṇippuram at Tirukkaḷumalam (i.e., Shiyali) in Tirukkaḷumala-nāḍu, a subdivision of Rājādhirāja-vaḷanāḍu and registers a gift made by a private individual for the welfare of the officer Vāṇādharāyaṉ. The title Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara is prefixed to the name of the king for the first time in No. 339 of 1917 and if it could indicate anything, it shows that the Chōḷa king had grown so powerless at the time as to be mentioned with that degrading title.

The Pandyas.

Māṟaṉjaḍaiyaṉ and Śaḍaiyamāṟaṉ.

42. Two early kings of this dynasty Māṟaṉjaḍaiyaṉ and Saḍaiyamāṟaṉ are represented in the year's collection. Their inscriptions (Nos. 480 and 863 and Nos. 416, 417, 418 and 440 of Appendix B) are all of them in Vaṭṭeḻuttu characters and come from the Tinnevelly district. No. 863 which is dated in the 35 + 7th year of Māṟaṉjaḍaiyaṉ mentions two groups of men called Tirumalai-vīrar and Parāntaka-vīrar. The latter name suggests that the inscription may probably belong to Parāntaka-Śaḍaiyaṉ the predecessor of Rājasiṁha-Pāṇḍya in whose reign the bigger Śiṉṉamaṉūr plates were issued. One of the records of Śaḍaiyamāṟaṉ (No. 440 of Appendix B) which is damaged gives the name of an assembly as Pāśupatapperumakkaḷ whose function is not given in the record.

Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. (A.D. 1216—1235).

Assembly of 512 members.

43. We have 11 records of Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya (1216–1235 A.D.) in the year's collection. Of these No. 429 of Appendix B begins with the introduction பூமலர்திருவும் and three others (Nos. 390, 394 and 627 of Appendix B) give him the epithet "who having taken the Chōḷa country performed the anointment of heroes at Muḍigoṇḍaśōḻapuram" thus clearly showing that they belong to Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. In the first the king is stated to have been seated on his throne Maḻavarāyaṉ in his palace at Madura while issuing certain orders to the assembly of Aiññūṟṟuppaṉṉiruvar which evidently consisted of 512 members. In the Annual Report for 1916, page 122, he is stated to have had a throne by the same name at Poṉ-Amarāvati. Nos. 430 and 431 of 1917 are also attributable to him since a certain chief Araiyaṉ Dēvachchilaipperumāḷ alias Nuḷambādarāyaṉ who figures in these inscriptions is also mentioned in No. 429. For the same reason we may assign No. 428 of Appendix B in which the king is called Kōnēriṉmaikoṇḍāṉ to Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. No. 633 of 1917 refers to a certain Śāttaṉ Nāgapperumāḷ alias Nandiyarāyaṉ who was a chief of Nāgēri in Seṅgudi-nāḍu and the liquid measure called Dēvāśriyaṉ-nāḻi is mentioned in No. 89 of 1918. The same measure is also mentioned in the records of Kōpperuñjiṅgadēva.

It is interesting to learn from Nos. 390 and 394 of 1917 which come from Kīḻappāvūr in the Tinnevelly district of a certain class of men called Muṉai-edirmōgar whose commanders (daṇḍa-nāyakam-śeyvār) make certain gifts to the two temples there. The term daṇḍanāyakam suggests that they must be a military body, and this is made clear by No. 395 of 1917 of the time of Māṟavarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya in which their other name is given as Teṉṉavaṉ-āpattudavigaḷ meaning "the helpers of the Pāṇḍya (king) in times of distress" corresponding to "the King's own regiment" of the present day. This body is also mentioned in a record (No. 391 of Appendix B) of Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara I and in No. 396 of Appendix B of the time of Māṟavarman Śrīvallabha. Since all these inscriptions come from the same village we may take it to be a sort of military institution peculiar to the Pāṇḍya country and somewhat similar to the community called Paḍaikkāṇaṭar and Perumpaḍaiyāṟ mentioned in the Annual Report for 1917, page 112. The mention of this military class in the records of the four kings may go to show that these kings may not be far removed from one another in point of time.

Māṟavarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya.

44. Twelve inscriptions of this king have been secured this year from the South Arcot and the Tinnevelly districts. No. 395 of Appendix B which begins with the historical introduction tirumagaḷ jayamagaḷ, etc., has already been referred to under Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. The initial date of this king has been fixed by Mr. L. D. Swamikannu Pillai as A. D. 1269–70 (Annual Report for 1917, page 111).

Maṟavarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya.

45. Māṟavarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya with the introduction tirumaḷar mādu, etc., has been mentioned in the Annual Report for 1916, page 123, as making a gift at the request of his brother-in-law, a certain Vikrama-Chōḷa. No. 469 of Appendix B which is a fragmentary inscription also mentions this chief whose star of nativity as it gives was Śatabhishaj. Nos. 426 and 427 of 1917 belong to the same king. They are both dated in his 5th year and the astronomical details supplied by these epigraphs work out correctly for A. D. 1254 and thus enable us to fix his initial date at about 1249 A. D. This seems to be partly confirmed by No. 426 of 1917 where a land is assigned on lease to a certain Lakkumaṇaṉ Āṇḍa-Piḷḷai who is also an assignee of a similar lease in No. 432 of the time of Jaṭāvarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya (A.D. 1253).

Two inscriptions from the South Arcot district (No. 325 of 1917 and No. 71 of 1918) begin with the introduction Samastabhuvanaikavīra, etc., and are therefore referable to that Māṟavarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya who began to rule in A.D 1283 (Ind. Ant. Vol. XLII, page 224). He is also called Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ in No. 71 of 1918. To the same king may also be attributed Nos. 82 and 86 of Appendix C though they contain no introductions. The former is dated in his 3rd year and gives details of date which satisfy the year A. D. 1286. From the latter in which the king is styled Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ Vikrama-Pāṇḍya we learn that he instituted in the temple at Vriddhāchalam a service called Rājākkanāyaṉ-śandi after his own name. From previous records we have known that the surname Rājākkaḷ-Nāyaṉ was borne by a certain Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ Vikrama-Pāṇḍya (Annual Report for 1909, page 85) and Māṟavarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya (Annual Report for 1914, page 94) and Māṟavarman Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ Vikrama-Pāṇḍya (Annual Report for 1916, page 127). By calculating the astronomical details given in two of the inscriptions Nos. 287 of 1902 and 124 of 1904 Prof. Kielhorn fixed his initial date at A.D. 1401 and I was led to believe that he must be identical with Jaṭāvarman Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ Vikrama-Pāṇḍya whose initial date also falls in A.D. 1401 (No. 124 of 1908) and since Rāśākkaḷ-Nāyaṉ occurs as a surname of the king in Nos. 270 and 295 of 1913 and 229 of 1916 all of which belong distinctly to a Māṟavarman, I suggested that the epithets Jaṭāvarman and Māṟavarman were indifferently applied to this Vikrama-Pāṇḍya (Annual Report for 1916, page 127). The alphabet employed in our present inscription (No. 86 of Appendix C) does not seem to refer to so late a period as the 15th century A.D. but is quite similar to that of No. 82 of Appendix C, which, as I have pointed out above, gives A.D. 1286 as his third year. For the same reason it is equally possible that Nos. 287 of 1902 and 124 of 1904 should be referred to about this period. In fact from Mr. Swamikannu Pillai's Ephemeris I find that the dates given in them also suit very well for A.D. 1290 and 1287, respectively. It now seems to me therefore that the Vikrama-Pāṇḍya who had the surname Rājakkaḷ-Nāyaṉ is distinctly a Māṟavarman and much earlier than Jaṭāvarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya who ascended the throne in A.D. 1401.

Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ.

46. About seven inscriptions from Vriddhāchalam are dated in the reign of Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ. No. 75 of Appendix C records that a certain Maḷavarāyar established an agrahāra called Kulaśēkhara-chaturvēdimaṅgalam after the king. The inscription also mentions Vikrama-Pāṇḍya. The same officer or chief, is stated in No. 79 of Appendix C to have made a gift of land for a flower-garden to the temple in the name of Vikrama-Pāṇḍya. In Nos. 76, 81, 87 and 88 of 1918 provision is made for a service called Rājākkanāyaṉ-śandi and in the last two of them figures a certain officer called Vikrama-Pāṇḍyachchōḷakōṉ who also figures in No. 86 of 1918, but therein he is merely called Śōḷakōṉ. Hence it may not be wrong if we assign the record No. 75 of Appendix C to the reign of Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara I (A.D. 1268-1310), and Nos. 76, 79, 81, 87 and 88 of Appendix C to Māṟavarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya mentioned above.

Jaṭāvarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya.

47. Nos. 434 and 435 belong to Jaṭāvarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya and both are from Kuttālam in the Tinnevelly district. It is not impossible that they belong to Jaṭāvarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya referred to in the above paragraph.

Jaṭāvarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya.

48. Three inscriptions of Jaṭāvarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya (Nos. 432, 437 and 665 of 1917) have been secured during the year under review. The first of these (No. 432) which begins with the historical introduction திருவளர்முலை, etc., is dated in his third year. The second (No. 437) is a record of his 15th year which gives him the attribute 'who having taken Īḻam, Koṅgu, Śōḻa-maṇḍalam and defeated Vallāṉ (i.e., Vallāḷa ?) anointed himself at Perumparrappuliyūr (Chidambaram)'. Both the inscriptions give astronomical details which suit the dates A.D 1256 and 1267, respectively, and thus make him identical with the king of that name who ascended the throne in A.D. 1253(Ep. Ind. Vol. IX, page 227). Both these inscriptions register a transaction between the same individual and the assembly of Tirukkuttālam which is stated to have met together in Tirumukkālvaṭṭam. It is not known what it means, but it may refer to a hall where it usually held its sittings. No. 432 of 1917 records that the village assembly bought a piece of land from the people of Sundara-Pāṇḍyapuram and let a portion of it on permanent lease to a certain Āṇḍa-Piḷḷai in exchange for a fixed annual rent in paddy and money on every mā of cultivated land. It was also stipulated that the lessee would pay on every mā of waste plot that he brought under cultivation at the rate of 1 mā of achchu and 1 kalam of paddy for the first year, 2 mā of achchu and 2 kalam of paddy for the 2nd year, 3 mā of achchu and 3 kalam of paddy for the 3rd year and 4 mā of achchu and 4 kalam of paddy for the 4th and subsequent years. This kind of lease with an annually progressing rate of tax corresponds to the modern system of "Cowle."

Tribhuvanachakravartin Vira-Pāṇḍya.

There are two inscriptions of Vīra-Pāṇḍya in the collection (Nos. 66 and 104 of Appendix C) both of them secured from the South Arcot district. But from the astronomical details given in them no suitable date could be found for him except A.D. 1296 which would make him identical with Jaṭāvarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya the natural son of Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara who was defeated by Malik Kafur in A.D. 1312 (Annual Report for 1900, page 6) He styles himself "Ranamukharāma" in No. 104 of Appendix C which records the founding of an agrahāra called after his surname. The village was divided into 26 parts, 1 part each was assigned to 24 Bhaṭṭas (Brahmans), 1 part as a Yajurvēdavritti and 1 part as Purāṇavritti (see paragraph 28 above) being exempted from all kinds of obligations.

Jaṭāvarman Śrīvallabha.

49. Of Jaṭāvarman Śrīvallabha we have only one inscription this year (No. 393 of 1917). The introduction commences with words tirumaḍandai, etc. The king is stated to have made a grant of land to the temple of Tirukkapālīśvaramuḍaiyār at Kīḻappāvūr being seated on his throne called Kaliṅgattaraiyaṉ in the hall Aḷagiya-Pāṇḍiyaṉ in his palace at Madura east of Māḍakuḷam. Teliṅgakulakāla-chaturvēdi-maṅgalam was the name of the village in which the land was situated and the land itself was re-named Sundara-Pāṇḍya-viḷāgam. It looks as though these were called after Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I (1251–71 A.D.). Jaṭāvarman Śrīvallabha may belong therefore to about the 13th century A.D. instead of the 11th century A.D. as suggested in the Annual Report for 1917, page 109. The characters also of this inscription do not seem to point to a period earlier than the 13th century. This must therefore be the Jaṭāvarman Śrīvallabha who ascended the throne in A.D. 1291 (Ind. Ant. Vol. XLII, page 225).

Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II.

50. Two inscriptions of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya (Nos. 248 and 249 of 1917) are registered in Appendix B. In the former he is called Rājarājaṉ. The details of date which are given in these inscriptions make him identical with Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya who ascended the throne in A.D. 1276 (Ind. Ant. Vol. XLII, page 223). No. 248 of 1917 in the course of enumerating the list of lands belonging to the temple, mentions incidentally the temples of Mudubaganārtali-Mādēvar and Avaṇināṟāyaṇa-Vinnagar-Emberumāṉ both of which are referred to in the Tanjore inscriptions of Rājarāja I (South-Ind. Inscrs., Vol. II, page 282) as being situated at Ambar.

Muppiḍi-Nāyaka contemporary of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya.

The conquest of the south and the defeat of the Pāṇḍya king by Muppiḍi-Nāyaka, the general of Kākatīya Pratāparudra is already known to us (Annual Report for 1909, page 120). But it is not stated who the king was that was defeated by him. No. 72 of Appendix C from Vriddhāchalam in the South Arcot district which is dated in the 13 + 1st year of Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ Sundara-Pāṇḍya refers to his elder brother, who made provision for a service instituted by the king in the temple called after Muppiḍi-Nāyaka the minister of Kākatīya Pratāparudra. In the Sanskrit verse with which this inscription opens Muppiḍi-Nāyaka is called "the lord of Vikramasimhapaṭṭana." (i.e., Nellore). Another inscription of the same king (No. 84 of 1918) which also comes from Vriddhāchalam provides for a service called Kōdaṇḍarāmaṉ-śandi after himself. We learn that his birthday star was Pushya. This surname Kōdaṇḍarāma is applied to Jaṭāvarman Sundara Pāṇḍya in No. 123 of 1904 whose date of accession Mr. Swamikannu Pillai fixes as A.D. 1276 (Ind. Ant., Vol. XLII, page 224). The 14th year of this king would fall in 1290 A.D. But Pratāparudra had not then ascended the throne and his southern expedition could hardly have taken place at such an early date. The details of dates given in the present inscription (No. 84 of 1918) work out almost correctly for A.D. 1315. If this is accepted, the inscription would then be referable to Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya IV whose initial date has been fixed at A.D. 1302 (Ind. Ant. Vol. XLII, pages 166 and 228). Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ mentioned in No. 175 of 1918 is said to have been born under Pushya and had a surname Kōdaṇḍarāma. The inscription is also dated in 13 + 1st year. Thus he is identical with the Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya referred to above. Another inscription of Kōnērinmaikoṇḍāṉ (No. 102 of Appendix C) from Kugaiyūr (South Arcot) makes provision for a service Sundara-Pāṇḍyaṉ-śandi called after the king. It is possible that this may also refer to the same king, since a certain Kāliṅgarāyaṉ who occurs in Nos. 72 and 84 of Appendix C figures in this record as well.

Jaṭāvarman Kulaśēkhara I.

51. Of the three inscriptions (Nos. 637 to 639 of 1917) of Jaṭāvarman Kulaśēkhara, one (No. 638) begins with the introduction பூலமடந்தை, etc., and is dated in his 10 + 1 + 1st year. The other (No. 639) with no introduction mentions a certain channel called Pāvanaṅgakāraṉ-vāykkāl. 'Pāvanaṅgakāraṉ' has been shown (Annual Report for 1916, page 123) to be a surname of a certain Parākrama-Pāṇḍya Māvalivāṇādhirāya, the son of an unspecified Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya. It is therefore clear that the record has to be assigned to a later king of that name.

Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara I.

52. To Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara belong 13 inscriptions of which Nos. 260 and 263 of Appendix B from Tirumakkōṭṭai both dated in his 22nd year, call him Bhuvanēkavīra and record a gift of land by a certain chief (araśu) of Vaṇḍāḷainādu named Mēykkuṇḍēvaṉ Sokkanāyaṉ alias Vijayagaṇḍagōpāla who may be the same person as the one mentioned in Nos. 660, 662 and 663 of 1902 belonging to the time of Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara and Rājarājaṉ Sundara-Pāṇḍya. Of Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara 'who took every country' there are three inscriptions (Nos. 268, 391 and 425 of 1917). No. 391 mentions the military class Muṉai-edirmōgar referred to under Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. Nos. 483 and 636 of 1917 which are both dated in his fourth year contain astronomical details which yield A.D. 1271 and thus make him indentical with Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara I.

In the Annual Report for 1916, page 123, paragraph 28, it was suggested that a certain Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya must have borne the surname Veṉṟu-muḍi-śūḍināṉ. This is confirmed by No. 415 of Appendix B dated in the 7th year of Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara in which a certain transaction is made by the temple authorities of Kuttālam with a native of Veṉṟumuḍiśūḍiya-Sundara-Pāṇḍya-paṭṭaṇam. On examining the date of this inscription on the spot Mr. Swamikannu Pillai has concluded (Ind. Ant., Vol. XLII, page 223) that it must belong to Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara II who ascended the throne in A.D. 1314. In all the inscriptions of this king (Nos. 412, 413, 414 and 415 of Appendix B) provision is made for a service called Kālāmukkaḷ-tōḷaṉ-śandi.

Māṟavarman Parākrama-Pāṇḍya.

53. An inscription of Māṟavarman Parākrama from Vṛiddhāchalam (No. 78 of 1918) is dated in his 14th year and the astronomical details work out correctly for A.D. 1349. This king must be the Māṟavarman Parākrama-Pāṇḍya whose date of accession has been ascertained by Prof. Kielhorn to be A.D. 1335 (Ep. Ind., Vol. IX, page 228).

No. 197 of 1917 which comes from Tirumukkūḍal near Karūr in the Trichinopoly district belongs to one of the Koṅgu-Pāṇḍyas. It is dated in the 15th year of Rājakēsarivarman alias Vīra-Pāṇḍyadēva whose time is already known from No. 445 of 1905 dated in his 15th year which was equivalent to A.D. 1293 according to Prof. Kielhorn's calculation (Ep. Ind., Vol. IX, page 226).

Later Pandyas.

Parākrama and Kulaśēkhara.

54. The villagewar epigraphical survey of the Tenkasi taluk, Tinnevelly district this year, has been very fruitful in yielding us a large number of inscriptions of this dynasty. As many as about 190 records of the kings of this line have been secured and clearly set forth the relationship that existed between some of them. The earliest inscription of this dynasty known till now is that of Parākrama-Pāṇḍyadēva whose record (No. 203 of 1895) dated in the 31st year and Śaka 1337 gives A.D. 1384 as his initial date. No. 408 of Appendix B which belongs to a certain Jaṭāvarman Parākrama-Pāṇḍya combines his 5 + 15th year with Śaka 1309 (= A.D. 1387) thus taking the initial date of the latter further back by about seventeen years than the former. We learn from the inscription that the central shrine and the maṇḍapas of the temple at Kuttālam were renovated by this king. No. 458 of Appendix B which is dated in Śaka 1333 mentions the founding of a Brahman village in the time of a certain Kulaśēkhara who may be identified with Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara who rebuilt the temple at Ilañji in his 13 + 1st year corresponding to Śaka 1331 (No. 528 of 1911).

Śrīvallabha brother of Arikēsari Parākrama.

Nos. 459 and 461 of 1917 dated respectively in Śaka 135[1] and 1355 belong to a certain Śrīvallabha. Inscriptions Nos. 457 and 460 which are both dated in the 32nd year of Māṟavarman Śrīvallabha may also belong to the same king. We have not till now come across any inscriptions of this Śrīvallabha with these dates. We have however an epigraph of a certain Aḻagaṉ-Perumāḷ Śrīvallabha from Karivalamvandanallūr (No. 278 of 1908) dated in Śaka 139[3]. In No. 459 of Appendix B the king receives certain epithet, only the latter part of which is preserved in the inscription and reads . . . Rāmaṉ. It is doubtful if it could be taken as Kaliyugarāmaṉ. We know of a Māṟavarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya of about this time who had the title Kaliyugarāmaṉ (Annual Report for 1905, page 56), and who was a co-regent of Arikēsari Parākrama (Annual Report for 1906, page 72 and Annual Report for 1910, page 100). We can hence take this Śrīvallabha who was a contemporary of Māṟavarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya to be his brother and another co-regent like him with Arikēsari. And we may not also be wrong in supposing that the Śrīvallabha referred to in the Pudukkōṭṭai grant, as an ancestor of the king who covered the Rāmēśvaram temple with copper-sheets should be no other than the Śrīvallabha of our record. In confirmation of this we have three inscriptions published in the Travancore Archæological Series (A, E and F, page 251 f.) from which we learn that Arikēsari and himself were brothers. The second record (No. 461 of Appendix B) refers to a previous gift by Kulaśēkhara who may be either his brother (another joint ruler with him and Arikēsari) or the earlier king of No. 458 of Appendix B, mentioned above.

55. Māṟavarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya is represented by two inscriptions Nos. 422 and 452 of Appendix B of which the latter is dated in Śaka 1368 and the former gives his regnal year as 23. By taking Vīra-Pāṇḍya as identical with that Kaliyugarāmaṉ Vīra-Pāṇḍya who ascended the throne in Śaka 1343 (Annual Report for 1905, page 56), and who was co-regent with Arikēsari Parākrama, his 23rd year would correspond to Śaka 1366 and hence out of several dates which could be obtained from the astronomical details given in the record (No. 422) we may choose Śaka 1367 as the one intended by the inscription. But the difficulty is that he refers to the rebuilder of the Kuttālanātha temple—the Jaṭilavarman Parākrama whose 5 + 15th year was Śaka 1309—as his elder brother (aṇṇāḷvi) which could hardly be possible. We learn that his star of nativity was Jyēsbṭhā. The signatory in this inscription is a certain Tachchanenmēṇi-uḍaiyāṉ who also figures in No. 460 of the time of Śrīvallabha mentioned above.

Māṟavarman Vīra Pāṇḍya.

56. No. 547 mentions Vīra-Pāṇḍya and a village which had been founded in his name. This village has been already referred to in a record (No. 11) of 1912. No. 641 of Appendix B is dated in the 2 + 26th year of a king whose name however is lost in the inscription. Since the details of date work out correctly for Śaka 1372 during the reign of Arikēsari Parākrama we may take this record to be his. A certain Ponniṉperumāḷ Parākrama is mentioned as the king's nephew (marumagaṉār) in whose name a service was instituted in the temple at Kaḍayanallūr. This seems to be the same as Jaṭilavarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Parākrama-Pāṇḍya alias Vīra-Pāṇḍya the sister's son of Arikēsari mentioned on page 251 of Travancore Archæological Series, volume I.

Arikēsari Parākrama.

In my Annual Report for 1912, page 74, paragraph 43, I said that there should have been three joint rulers with Arikēsari, viz., Aḷagaṉ-Perumāḷ Kulaśēkhara, Vīra-Pāṇḍya and Māṟavarman Vikrama-Pāṇḍya. No. 569 of Appendix B seems to give us a new king if the name given in the record be not a surname of any of those princes. It is dated in Śaka 1388 and the 2 + 41st year of Jaṭilavarman alias Tribhuvanachakravartin Kulōttuṅga-Pāṇḍya whose initial date will therefore be Śaka 1345. He refers to Parākrama-Pāṇḍya (Arikēsari) who established a village called Mānakavacha-chaturvēdimaṅgalam as his elder brother, (aṇṇāḷvi) and is said to have been born in the asterism Jyēshṭhā which as we have seen above was also the star of birth of Māṟavarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya. But for the fact that his initial date falls in Śaka 1345 instead of 1343 we could indentify the king with this Vīra-Pāṇḍya. We learn from the record that he had as his spiritual guru (parama-āchārya) Mahā-Gaṇapati-Nayiṉār Vāmadēvar of the family of Āmarddāśramāchārya, a native of Gauḍarāshṭra to whom he makes a gift of land. From the facts that the teacher of the king was a North Indian whose home was very near Benares and the king building the temple in the south on a grand scale as a very counterpart of the Viśvēśvara temple of the north, it would appear that there is some connexion between the two which is however inexplicable at present.

Jaṭilavarman Kulōttuṅga-Pāṇḍya.

Two inscriptions (Nos. 471 and 519 of Appendix B) of Kulaśēkhara (Śaka 1351–1395) mentioned above give both the Śaka and the regnal years for this king. The former which is dated in the 2 + 3[6]th year gives astronomical details which work out correctly for Śaka 1380 and registers a gift of land by Sundara-Pāṇḍya at the instance of Kulaśēkhara-Perumāḷ for a service in the Kuttālam temple called Sundara-Pāṇḍyaṉ-śandi. This Sundara it is needless to say is the same as Śaṇbaka Sundara-Pāṇḍya alias Vīra-Pāṇḍya of No. 10 of 1912 also noticed above. From the latter inscription which is dated in Śaka 1390 which was 2 + 37th year we learn of a land called Jayavīrarāmappērēri. The first part of this name may perhaps be taken as another surname of Kaliyugarāman Vīra-Pāṇḍya.

57. No. 541 of Appendix B combines Śaka 1390 with the 2 + 30th year of Jaṭilavarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Arikēśvara thus giving his initial date as Śaka 1358. This must be a different king from Arikēsari-Parākrama who ascended the throne in Śaka 1344. Perhaps he was a fifth coregent of Arikēsari. In the Travancore Archæological Series, Vol. I, we have an inscription of a certain Māṟavarman Arikēśvara (Inscription A, p. 252) dated in his 2 + 32nd year. The astronomical details of date which are given there work out quite correctly for Śaka 1392 thus giving his initial date Śaka 1358 mentioned in our inscription. It may also be noted that they do not satisfy the year Śaka 1378 which should be the case if we take him to be identical with Arikēsari as surmised by Mr. T. A Gopinatha Rao. Besides in that inscription he clearly calls him his elder brother (aṇṇāḷvi).

No. 548 of Appendix B, dated in Śaka 1402 is a record of the 13th year of king Parākra . . . Vīra-Pāṇḍya and supplements a previous gift of land in Vīra-Pāṇḍya-chaturvēdimaṅgalam for the recitation of the Vēdas in the temple. This previous gift must evidently be the one of the time of Arikēsari-Parākrama registered as No. 547 of Appendix B and engraved immediately above this.

58. We have a curious inscription of this king (No. 664 of Appendix B) which reads from bottom upwards. It is dated in Śaka 1425 and the regnal year is given as 2 + 28th. It gives his star of birth as 'Aviṭṭam'. Two other inscriptions Nos. 520 and 521 of Appendix B both dated in Śaka 1406 and 2 + 9th year of Parākrama are also of the same king. This Aḷagaṇ-Perumāḷ Parākrama born in the asterism 'Dhanishṭhā' is already known to us (Extr. 8 and 12 on p. 46 f. of Travancore Archæological Series). He seems to have been the sister's son of Jaṭilavarman Kulaśēkhara and Arikēsari (Travancore Archæological Series, p. 251). But it deserves to be noted that our present inscriptions as well as the extracts 8 and 12 give his initial date as Saka 1395, while inscriptions E., F. and G. of the Travancore Archæological Series (pp. 256 ff.) which speak of him as Arikēsari's nephew, give details of date which do not yield the initial date as Śaka 1395 but are all of them correct only for Śaka 1389 which is the date given in No. 548 above for Parākra . . . Vīra-Pāṇḍya. It is not possible to account for this discrepancy at present. Reference is made in his records Nos. 520 and 521 to a previous order of Kulaśēkhara which was now formally put into writing.

Aḷagaṇ-Perumāḷ Parākrama 'born in Aviṭṭam.'

Jaṭilavarman Parākrama alias Kulaśēkhara is represented by about a dozen inscriptions ranging in date from his 11th to 28th year of reign. He is also already known to us from No. 197 of 1895 and No. 9 of 1912 as the prince born in the asterism Kṛittikā and was probably the son of Kulaśēkhara (Travancore Archæological Series, page 251). He is called Parākrama-Pāṇḍyadēva alias Kulaśēkharadēva in some inscriptions (Nos. 524, 504, 510 and 505 of 1917) with the title Jaṭilavarman and Tribhuvanachakravartin added to his name in a few (Nos. 502, 503 and 618 of Appendix B) while he is merely called Kulaśēkhara in others (Nos. 508, 509 and 516 of 1917). No. 624 of 1917 calls him Māṛavarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnērmaikoṇḍāṉ Perumāḷ Kulaśēkhara. No. 503 dated in Śaka 1412 refers to two priests Taṇḍaiyuṅkālumaḷagiyāṉ Kumārasvāmi and Mudaliyāṉ Parākrama-Pāṇḍya Bhaṭṭa who were well versed in the science of rituals (tantra) and of architecture (māna) and under whose direction the building operations of the temple at Teṉkāśi were carried out and the consecration ceremony from karshaṇa to pratishṭhā was performed. They also officiated on all important occasions such as festivals and special worships. After their demise their work in the temple was being done by others for some time after which their sons were appointed hereditarily to look after the service in return for the privilege of receiving the āchāṛya-dakshiṇā and other additional emoluments (aahikāṁśa) pertaining to the service. The same transaction is recorded in No. 524 with the same date where the reappointment seems to receive the royal sanction since it is made in the presence of the king. The latest date till now known for this king is 20th year. No 618 of 1917 which is a record dated in Śaka 1429 pushes it further by 8 years. This king like his famous (paternal) uncle Arikēsari seems to have taken a delight in building temples, for we find him in this inscription making a gift of village to the Śiva and Vishnu temples of Aḷagiya-Śokkaṇār and Varantarum-Perumāḷ both built by him at Kaḍayanallūr.

Parākrama alias Kulaśēkhara 'born in Kṛittikā.'

59. In my Annual Report for 1910, p. 101, I stated that "Iṛandakālam eḍutta Kulaśēkhara" and Iṛandakālam eḍutta Śrīvallabha were probably connected with each other. Six records in which the kings assumed the epithet "Iṛandakālam eḍutta" have been secured during the year under report. In one of these (No. 650 of 1917) dated in Śaka 1456 the king calls himself Kulaśēkhara, son of Āhavarāma and in the other five which combine the Śaka with the regnal years he goes by the name of Śrīvallabha. From these five records it is clear that Śrīvallabha should have commenced to reign in Śaka 1456, the date given to Kulaśēkhara of No. 650. The absence of regnal year in the latter clearly indicates that Śaka 1456 must have been the initial date of Kulaśēkhara but that he assumed the title Śrīvallabha in the later years of his reign. That both the names refer to the same king was also surmised by Mr. T. A. Gopinatha Rao in his Travancore Archæological Series, Vol. I, p. 54. It is curious, however, we do not find his later inscription calling him Kulaśēkhara but invariably by his other name. The earliest inscription of his reign in the collection is No. 650 of Appendix B dated in Śaka 1456 which begins with the Sanskrit introduction Bhuvanaikavīra, etc., which is also commonly found in the records of all the later members of the dynasty. The king calls himself Perumāḷ Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnērmaikoṇḍāṉ Jaṭilavarman alias Kulaśēkharadēva 'who revived the old time.' No. 631 of Appendix B dated in his 7th year also gives him all these epithets but calls him Śrīvallabha.

Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ 'born in Aśvati.'

60. In my Annual Report for 1916, p. 128, I mentioned two inscriptions (Nos. 583 and 567 of 1915) dated in Saka 1457 and 1463, respectively. The first belongs to Jaṭilavarman Kōnērmaikoṇḍāṉ Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ and the latter to Śrīvallabha. In the body of the records mention is made of Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ 'born in Aśvati.' I took it to refer to the king himself and concluded that Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ and Śrivallabha were identical and that the king's asterism was Aśvati though it is not definitely stated that Śrivallabha was born in that asterism. A few inscriptions of Śrīvallabha (Nos. 658, 662, 663 and 666 of Appendix B) copied this year also mention this Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ 'born in Aśvati.' In an inscription of his successor Kulaśēkhara alias Parākrama (No. 570 of 1915) prince Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ 'born in Aśvati' is referred to as Abhirāma-Parākrama's son. In several inscriptions of the same Parākrama in our present collection Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ 'born in Aśvati' who calls himself Vīraveṉbāmālai and the son of Abhirāma Parākrama (Nos. 466, 531 and 657 of Appendix B as also Nos. 386, 389, 587, 659 and 660) figures prominently issuing orders about grants etc. to, or the appointments of servants in, the temples in the name of the king. It may be noted also that in two inscriptions (513 and 512 of Appendix B) dated in the reign of Jaṭilavarman Tirunelvēlippērumāḷ Vīraveṉbāmālai Kulaśēkhara, the king clearly refers to himself as having been born in Aśvati. Thus in the light of these records it seems to me that Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ 'born in Aśvati' occurring in these inscriptions should refer to no other than the younger brother of Kulaśēkhara-Parākrama and the second son of Abhirāma-Parākrama who under the name Kulaśēkhara ascended the throne in Śaka 1474 (see No. 508 of 1909) and that till then he was a co-regent with, or rather the chief minister of, his cousin Śrīvallabha 'who revived the old times' and after him his own brother Kulaśēkhara alias Parākrama; and it is probable he issued grants even in their lifetime in his own name (vide No. 583 of 1915).

Kulaśēkhara alias Parākrama-Pāṇḍya, son of Abhirāma-Parākrama.

61. We know from the Pudukkōṭṭai grant that after the demise of Śrīvallabha the succession passed to the Abhirāma Parākrama's line through his elder son Kulaśēkharadēva alias Parākrama above referred to who ascended the throne in Śaka 1464. Of this king there are 33 inscriptions in the collection. Some of these call him Kulaśēkhara alias Parākrama (as in Nos. 386, 475, 587, etc.), while in others he is merely called Parākrama without his other name (Nos. 583, 659, 660, etc.). A few inscriptions begin with the usual common introduction Bhuvanaikavīra, etc. (Nos. 586 and 583 of Appendix B). He is identical with No. 13 in the list of later Pāṇḍyas given in p. 100 of the Annual Report for 1910 where, however, he is wrongly supposed to have been the son of No. 11 Śrīvallabha on the score of a slight misapplication of the names in his inscription No. 271 of 1908, instead of No. 10 Parākrama who was otherwise known as Abhirāma-Parākrama.

Reference is made in No. 531 of Appendix B, to Teṉkāśikaṇḍa-Uḍaiyavar 'the founder of Teṉkāśi,' evidently Arikēsari Parākrama, by whom tax-free gifts of land at Teṉkāśi had been made to the temple Since his death the said lands had become liable to taxation by the Government until Śaka 1470, when they were restored to the temple by Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ and the taxes thus remitted were to be utilized for a service called Vīraveṇbāmālai-śandi after the prince and for a festival in the month of Āvaṇi on the day of Aśvati, the star of his birth. But according to No. 583 of 1915 he is said to have been born in the month of Vaigāśi.

62. Nos. 465 and 389 of Appendix B (the latter of which is damaged) are dated in Śaka 1471 and Śaka 146[7] in the reign of Jaṭilavarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnērmaikoṇḍāṉ Abhirāma-Parākrama. But these dates are those of Parākrama his son. Thus it is doubtful if it belongs to the father or the son. It is more probable that it refers to the latter whose name might have been omitted by mistake. No. 465 registers a gift of land to a certain Svāmidēva alias Mahā Gaṇapati-Bhaṭṭa of the lineage of the Āchāryas of Āmarddāśrama in Irāḍhāvarēndi (Varēndra in Rāḍhā, i.e., Bengal)-grāma. This sounds very much like the name of the teacher of Kulōttuṅga-Pāṇḍya mentioned in paragraph 56 above and he might be a descendant of that teacher whose family were probably the hereditary teachers of the royal line.

No. 532 introduces us to prince Abhirāmavarman who made a gift of land to the temple. He calls himself the son of Kulaśēkharadēva alias Parākrama-Pāṇḍya. This is no other than Varatuṅgarāma (Ins. No. XII, p. 126, Trav. Arch. Series), the king's younger son, who was afterwards the joint donor with Ativīrarāmaṉ Śrīvallabha of the Pudukkōṭṭai grant (see Nos. 272 and 275 of 1908, 528 of 1909 and 594 of 1915).

Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ Kulaśēkhara.

63. Prince Vīraveṇbāmālai Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ Kulaśēkhara ascended the throne in Śaka 1472 or 1474 (Annual Report for 1910, p. 102). His full name was Jaṭilavarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnērmaikoṇḍāṉ Perumāḷ Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ Vīraveṇbāmālai alias Dharmapperumāḷ Kulaśēkhara. His records in the present collection range between Śaka 1474 (No. 513 of Appendix B) and Saka 1485 (No. 515 of Appendix B). The first inscription records the grant of some lands to the Viśvanātha temple for the sacred bath of the god every month on the day of Aśvati, the star of his birth, and for the festival of Viśākhā in the month of Vaigāśi. Mention is made in Nos. 387 and 512 of 1917 of a certain Ulaguḍaiyaperumāḷ Kulaśēkharakkāliṅgarāyaṉ and Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ Kulaśēkharakkāliṅgarāyaṉ, by whom we are informed, the images of the Nāyaṉārs (63 Śaiva devotees) were set up and provision made for their worship in the Viśvanātha temple at Teṉkāśi. He also figures in an inscription of Śaka 1493 (No. 500 of Appendix B) during the reign of Ativīrarāma Śrīvallabha wherein his construction of the Rāmānuja-kūḍam in the Vishnu temple at Teṉkāśi is referred to. He was evidently a chief of some position and is different from his namesake in No. 579 and other inscriptions of the same period.

64. Prince Guṇarāmaṉ Aḷagaṉ-Perumāḷ occurs now for the first time in the king's 5th year (Nos. 538 and 575 of Appendix B) issuing the royal order (on behalf of the king). He is the same as the nephew of the king mentioned in the Pudukkottai grant. In No. 538 he makes some gift of land for a festival called Kudiraiyiḍu-Purāṇattirunāḷ on the day of his natal asterism Mūla in the month of Āvaṇi every year. We do not meet with this prince subsequently and probably we have to assume that he died shortly after or for some reasons took no part in the administration. Prince Abhirāma-Parākramaṉ Aḷagiya-Sokkaṇār who made in No. 532 of Appendix B a gift of land to the Teṉkāśi temple in his father's time—vide paragraph 62 above—now appears as the royal secretary (Nos. 619 and 620 of Appendix B).

Prince Ativīrarāmaṉ Parākrama also called Aḷagaṉ-Perumāḷ Ativīrarāmaṉ figures as another secretary of the king Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ Kulaśēkhara (Nos. 403, 481, 511, 591, 592, etc.) and in No. 621 is stated to be his son. He was born in the asterism Punarvasu (Nos. 490, 495 and 529 of 1917) and constructed a shrine for Śokkanātha in the Viśvanāthasvāmin temple and provided for its worship (No. 530 of 1917). He is known to have built the Kulaśēkharanātha temple (No. 535 of 1909). This fact is referred to in three other inscriptions (Nos. 490, 491 and 495 of 1917) copied from the same temple. Nos. 498 and 501 of Appendix B copied from the Vishnu temple of Viṇṇavar-Embērumāṉ in the vicinity of this temple inform us of its construction by the same king under the name Śīvala-Viṇṇavar-Emberumāṉ. His records copied this year—by far the largest in the collection—number about 54 which range in date between Śaka 1483 and 1527. No. 617 of Appendix B calls Aḷagaṇ-Perumāḷ Ativīrarāmaṇ Śrīvallabha, the son of Tirunelvēlipperumāḷ Vīraveṇbāmālai alias Kulaśēkharadēva who was again the son of Abhirāma-Parākrama. The historical introduction of this inscription begins with the word Bhuvanaikavīra but is slightly different in wording from that commonly found in most of the records of these kings. In several of his inscriptions his cousin differently called Abhirāma Saundaravarman (Nos. 595, 597, 596 and 603), Abhirāma Saundara Varatuṅgarāma (Nos. 661, 582 and 584), and Perumāḷ Aḷagiya-Śokkaṇār Varatuṅgarāma (No. 604), the son of Parākrama (No. 582) or Kulaśēkhara alias Parākrama Nos. (598 and 602), figures either jointly issuing the ōlai with the king (Nos. 595, 597 and 482) or independently making gifts of land by himself. We know his date of accession to the throne was Śaka 1509 (Annual Report for 1909, p. 86). Hence we should suppose that even prior to his actual accession he was sharing the royal power with Śrīvallabha, as can be seen also from the Pudukkōṭṭai grant which was issued in Śaka 1505.

Aḷagaṇ-Perumāḷ Ativīrarāma Śrīvallabha.

In No. 484 a gift is made by Aḷagaṇ-Perumāḷ Ativīrarāmaṇ alias Abhirāma Jaṭilavarman alias . . . . . born in Śravishṭhā. This should refer to Varatuṅgarāma whose star of birth is given as Dhanishṭā in No. XIII edited in Trav. Arch. Series, Vol. I. There are only two inscriptions in the collection belonging to this Varatuṅga and dated in Śaka 1510 and 1512 after his succession. In one of them (No. 590 of Appendix B) he refers to himself as Abhirāma-Saundara-Varatuṅga and in No. 605 his other name is given as Vīra-Pāṇḍyadēva.

65. The last king of the dynasty represented in the collection is Varaguṇa Śrīvallabha also called Kulaśēkharadēva-Yajvā the latter part of which is only a synonym of the word Dīkshitar occurring in No. 597 of 1915 of Śīvalamāṛaṇ Varaguṇaṇ whose 26th year is given as Śaka 1563. Hence his initial date would be Śaka 1537 in which very year his present record (No. 514 of Appendix B) is dated. It informs us that he performed a yajña in this year and having built a temple of Vignēśvara on the site, founded an agrahāra in front of it for the priests who took part in the functions and for whose maintenance he made rich presents of lands in addition. This sacrifice should have established for him a claim to his title Dīkshita. It is not known at present who ruled in the interval between Śaka 1527, the last known date of Ativīrarāmaṇ Śrīvallabha, and Śaka 1537, the initial year of this king, and what his relationship was to the former.

Varaguṇa Śrīvallabha.

The Vijayanagara Kings.

66. The earliest Vijayanagara inscription in the year's collection (No. 779 of Appendix B) belongs to the reign of Bukka I and is dated in Śaka 1289. It records the construction of a kallumañchige (stone-bench) by the Mahāpradhāna Irugappa-Voḍeya, son of Bayicheya-Daṇṇāyaka, ruling at Chelumutūru (i.e., Chelumuttūru in the Hindupur taluk of the Anantapur district). He is known to us as the 'best of Jainas' who built the Jaina temple at Vijayanagara (South-Ind. Inscrs., Vol. I, page 156). Of the time of Kampaṇa II, son of Bukka I, we have a record at Vriddhāchalam dated in Śaka 1295 (No. 90 of Appendix C) and another (No. 327 of 1917) at Paṇaiyavaram in the South Arcot district. The next record in chronological order (No. 681 of 1917) belongs to the time of Siṅgaṇṇa-Voḍeyar, son of Sāvaṇṇa-Voḍeyar. The latter, we know, was the son of Kampaṇa I by Maṅgādēvī (page 86 of the Annual Report for 1907). Siṅgaṇṇa-Voḍeyar whose relationship to Sāvaṇṇa-Voḍeyar is now known, is perhaps identical with that Siṅgaṇṇa-Oḍeya who in Śaka 1314, was in charge of Tulu and Malaha-rājya with his capital at Bārakūru, as a subordinate of Harihara II (Arch. Sur. Rep. 1907–08, page 243). It is interesting to learn from this record that the guru of Siṅgaṇa was the saint Ākāsavāsi Sāmavēdi-Ayyagaḷu. The epithet ākāsavāsi (ākāśavāśi) is a rare one and may be considered as a variant of Ākāśamukhin by which name the Śaivas who always keep looking at the sky, i.e. (dwelling mentally in it) are known.

Bukka I.

67. Of Bukka II (son of Harihara II) there are two records, viz., No. 21 of Appendix A, dated in Śaka 1305 and No. 819 of Appendix B dated in Śaka 1309. Though the former refers to his rule (ālike) and the latter mentions him as 'ruling the world' with the title Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara, he must have been at this time only a viceroy under his father Harihara, whose latest date is Śaka 1326, i.e., A.D. 1404 (Arch. Surv. Rep. for 1907–1908, page 244).

Bukka II.

No. 21 of Appendix A records in detail, the names and emoluments of the servants of certain villages including Maḍakaśīrya (Maḍakasira) and the incomes of the police officers (kāvulu-doregaḷu) of that part of the country. The other record mentions one Pōlināyaniṅgāru, son of the Mahānāyakāchārya Harigi Lakitināyanigāru and refers to the grant of a daśavandam land made by him to the sons of Bayirapōju, for having dug a channel from the river Chīṟēṟu to the tank at Mēḍiṟeḍḍipalli. This Chīṟēṟu might be the river Kundēru which flows by the side of the village Mēḍiṟeḍḍipalli (i.e, Mēḍiṟeḍḍipalli of the inscription). In the Tamil collection, we have two inscriptions, Nos. 217 and 370 of 1917, of this king dated in Śaka 1327 and 1328 respectively. From the former of these we learn that the assembly of Tiruvāṇḍārkōyil consisted of 4,000 members, a very unwieldy body for transacting business. Viruppaṇṇa II, son of Harihara, is represented by two records in the current year's collection, Nos. 328 and 375 of 1917, the first of which dated in Śaka 1312 (= A.D. 1390) registers a grant by a certain Mādappa-Uḍaiyar who must have been an officer of the king; and the second dated in Bhāva (= 1396 A.D.) mentions the king's prime minister Nañjaṇaṅgaḷ who is said to have issued an order (nirupam) exempting all the dēvadāna lands of the temple of Tiruvāṇḍārkōyil situated in different villages from the payment of taxes such as śūlavari, jōḍi, magamai, vāśalōṭṭu-kāṇikkai, kāṭṭigai, mērvai, kōṭṭai-kāṇikkai, talaiyārikkai, nāṭṭuviniyōgam, paḷavari, puduvari, etc. Probably to the same king belongs also No. 34 of Appendix C. No. 803 of Appendix B relates to the time of Dēvarāya I.

Viruppaṇṇa II.

Hiriya-Dēvarāya and No. 804 to Dēvarāya, son of Harihara-Mahārāya who was the son of Bukkarāya. The dates as given in both the records are wrong. They have however to be assigned to the time of Dēvarāya I.

68. No. 765 of Appendix B is dated in Śaka 1354 in the reign of Vīra-Dēvarāya, i.e., Dēvarāya II and records the remission of marriage tax on all castes at Koṭipi. In the same year a similar order was passed in the village of Balāḷapura (Ep. Carn., Vol. X, Gd. 17). In the Tamil collection of this year there are five records of king Dēvarāya II (Nos. 68, 91, 92, 162 of 1918 and 216 of 1917). In three of these he is called Pratāpa-Dēvarāya, son of Vīra-Vijayarāya, while the other two call him Vīrapratāpa-Dēvarāya-Mahārāya 'who instituted the elephant hunt.' These inscriptions throw some light on the state of the times to which they relate. No. 92 of 1918 from Vṛiddhāchalam in the South Arcot district is not in a good state of preservation: but from what remains of it it is ascertained that the members of the Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai sects met together in the courtyard of the temple of Tirumudukuṉṟamuḍaiya-Nāyiṉār at that village and came to the decision that, since the officers of the king (rājanyas) and the owners of jīvitas oppressed . . . and the kāṇiyāḷaṉ and the Brāhmaṇas took the rājakaram (i.e., taxes), none of the Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai people should give them shelter and that (none of the people of the two sects) born in the country should write accounts for them or agree to their proposals. If any one proved a traitor to the country (by acting against this settlement), he should be stabbed . . .

Coercive measures of taxation.

Though the inscription is imperfect it is clear that there was oppression on the part of the officers levying and realizing tax and that the two sects of Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai on whom it weighed heavily formed themselves into a constitutional body to resist the exactions, vowing even to the extent of putting to death those who became renegades Another record (No. 216 of 1917) of the same king dated in the same year, but found in a different place, i.e., Korukkai in the Tanjore district, confirms the statements made already. It says that the ninety-eight sub-sects of Valaṅgai and the ninety-eight sub-sects of Iḍaṅgai joined together and . . . "because they did not tax us according to the yield of the crop but levied the taxes unjustly . . . we were about to run away. Then we realized that because we of the whole country (maṇḍalam) were not united in a body, we were unjustly (dealt with) . . . Hereafter we shall but pay what is just and in accordance with the yield of the crops and we shall not pay anything levied unlawfully." The record then proceeds to give the rates of taxes to be paid on the wet and dry produce of lands; on the produce of trees such as jack, areca, palmyra, plantains, sugarcane; on red-lotuses, artemesia, castor-plants, sesamum, turmeric, ginger, etc.; and on professions of fishermen, potters, weavers, barbers, washermen, oil-mongers, toddy-drawers and painters. As the inscription is damaged and is built in in different places, it is not safe to extract the rates as obtaining at the time. A third record (No. 91 of 1918) of the same king from Vriddhāchalam dated in Śaka 1352, fixes the rates of taxes as settled by the nāṭṭavar Iruṅgōḷa pāḍi, the Ūrār of Erumbūrparṟu, Vīragōmapura-parṟu and another, the people of the 18 districts, the kaikkōḷar, the tandirimār, the śēṇaikkuḍaiyār, the maṇrāḍis, kaṇmāḷar, the San . . . , and the six classes of kuḍis and the oil-mongers, who met together in the Tirukkāvaṇam called Vīdiviḍaṅgaṇ. They are as follows :—

On one mā of wet lands on which dry crops were cultivated and on one mā of dry land on which wet crops were raised,—including the cultivation of plantains and sugar-cane	One kalam of paddy on each mā.
For dry crops raised on wet lands	Two tūṇi of grain on each mā.
. . . dry lands	One tūṇi and one padakku on each mā.
On each person doing vetti service in the several countries and the 18 districts	Half paṇam.
On kaikkōlas	Half paṇam on each loom (tari).
On śēnaikkuḍaiyār	Half paṇam each.
On fishermen	Do.
On maṇrāḍis	Half paṇam on each kuḍi.
On each of the six classes of kuḍimakkaḷ	Do.
On oil-mongers	Half paṇam each.
On the looms of the paṟaiyas	Quarter paṇam on each loom.
On the koṭṭil of the veṭṭis	One-eighth paṇam on each koṭṭil.

No. 162 of 1918 from Brahmadēśam states that the kaikkōḷar of the place who had not till then the privilege of using daṇḍu and conch were allowed to have them like their caste-men of Conjeeveram and Viriñjipuram.

69. Of the Sāḷuva king Naraśiṅgarāya-Mahārāya there are two records (Nos. 710 and 719 of Appendix B) which mention his subordinates the Tuḷuva minister and general Narasā-Nāyaka, the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Rāyaparāja, son of Ba[yi]rayadēva-Chōḷa-Mahārāja and Immaḍi-Kāchapa-Nāyaka, son of Ādavāni Kāchapa-Nāyaka.

Sāḷuva Naraśiṅgarāya and his subordinates.

No. 143 of 1915 dated in Śaka 1420 Kālayukta, Mēsha, śu. di. 15, Hasta, Sunday, belongs to Dharmarāya-Mahārāya, son of Naraśiṅgarāya-Mahārāya. Naraśiṅgarāya must have therefore been dead subsequent to the date of No. 719 of Appendix B and before the above date, i.e., between A.D. 1497 March 18, Saturday and A.D. 1498 April 6, Friday. Among the several birudas which the last chief bore are Gajapatigaḷaminḍa and Gāyigōvāḷa. The first title might have been conferred on him on account of his success in battle against the Gajapati kings. We know that in the time of Mallikārjunarāya the Gajapati king Kapilēśvara attacked the Vijayanagara capital but was resisted and driven back by Sāḷuva Naraśiṅga (Arch. Sur. Rep. for 1908–09, pages 164–5). Nos. 368 and 374 of 1917 and Nos. 166 and 172 of 1918 of the collection from the Tamil districts belong to one or the other of Sāḷuva kings bearing the name Narasiṁha. Two of these inscriptions are dated in Śaka 1392, Vikṛita, while the third (No. 374 of 1917) which is in Telugu is undated and incomplete. But all the three refer to gifts made by an officer of Narasiṁha named Annamarasayya. The office he held is called avataram in Tamil and avasyara in Telugu. What its exact function was is not known. This must refer to the officer avasaram (i.e. king's representative ?) mentioned in No. 14 of 1915. One of the agents of this official was Timma-Nāyaka who figures in the donations made to the temple at Brahmadēśam and Tiruvāṇḍārkōyil in the South Arcot district. No. 166 of 1918 mentions a servant of this Annamarasayya by name Śevvana-Nāyaka. It is worthy of note that in all these cases Narasiṁha is not expressly stated as ruling the country and this is quite consistent with the fact that during the period he was only the generalissimo of the effeminate princes of the first Vijayanagara dynasty that lived at the time. One other record, probably of the same king, is dated in Śaka 1404 (No. 103 of 1918). It registers an order of Chikka-Parvata-Nāyaka, the king's cousin, issued to the residents (nāṭṭavar) of the countries situated on the southern bank (of the Penṇai). It was to this effect. The inhabitants of this country (śīrmai) had formed themselves into a single community and two leases were imposed. The village-taxes such as nallerudu, narkiḍā, narpaśu and oṭṭiyam were levied at the rate of one in ten and a half in ten. Adigāri-varttaṇai and nōṭṭavarttaṇai were also taken. The price of the sheep was required to be determined by the price of ghee per measure. Ālamañji was obtained in excess of the stipulated number. Besides these, there was a rule that the juice of the sugarcanes grown in a village should be pressed out in the same place. By these and other hard conditions imposed on the people, they were forced to leave the country. It was, therefore, decided to remove all the aforesaid disabilities and to enforce only the customary ancient rights; and that with regard to dēvadāyas and brahmadāyas also, the same revision should be adopted. That the officer Chikka-Parvata-Nāyaka who, recognizing the difficulties that the people were labouring under, allowed them to have the old constitution, is not new to epigraphy. He is probably the same as Parvatarāja-Nāyaka who according to a stone inscription dated in Śaka 1387 built a maṇḍapa in the temple on the hill at Tirupati (Arch. Sur. Rep. for 1908–09, page 167).

Revision of taxes.

Here, the contents of four other inscriptions, somewhat of an earlier period, relating to taxation, similar to the one noticed above, may be considered :—

Four other inscriptions dealing with remission and revision of taxes.

(i) No. 259 of 1917 :—Seeing that according to an order engraved on stone, the fee 'for the protection of the country' was to be raised only in kind and not in money, it was decided to dispense with the money payment and to obtain only payment in kind so that the practice might be in conformity with the ancient regulations. This inscription seems to indicate that at a certain stage both kinds of payment, i.e., in money and in kind were resorted to and that it was found difficult to realize the former which was accordingly given up.

(ii) No. 109 of 1918, dated in Śaka 1336, Jaya :—Rāyappa-Nāyaka issued an order stating that as the Magadai-maṇḍala was given away to the residents of the country (nāṭṭavar) and a certain amount of money was received as subsidy in lump sum (kāṇikkai) that year, it was unlawful to demand kāṇikkai in future years.

(iii) No. 97 of 1918, dated in Śaka 1369, Prabhava :—The settlement made by Vāsudēva-Nāyakkar-Tirumalai-Nāyakkar to the resident of Magadaimaṇḍalam :—From early times up to date lands in the Magadai-maṇḍalam were measured by a rod 18 feet in length and assessed. This procedure having affected rājagaram and given room for theft and ruin, it was thought that if two feet more were added to the old measuring rod, the tax would become easy of payment and the cultivators would be in a flourishing condition and be able to answer for the rājagaram. On this representation it was ordered that the length of the measuring rod should thereafter be fixed at 20 feet, by increasing the length of the old rod by two feet; that the lands, both wet and dry, should be measured out again by the new rod; and the changes entailed noted in the account books.

(iv) No. 96 of 1918, dated in Śaka 1386 Tārana :—The order of Immaḍi-Rāyappa-Nāyaka-Timmayya-Nāyaka to the residents (nāṭṭavar) of Magadaimaṇḍalam directing, that the taxes kālvāśi and the kaivilai-dhānyam collected in excess of the rates that obtained till then and the dues such as anuvarttaṇai, kōvai-varttaṇai, adigāra-varttaṇai, and taṭṭāyakoḷ, shall no more be collected that the one kuṟuṇi and four nāḻi shall be added for puravaṭṭam, that daśavandas shall not be demanded, that vāraparṟu paddy shall be measured into the granary of the villages, that kāṇikkai shall be obtained at the prevailing rate and that no tax (illegible) shall be demanded. At the end on oath on Varadaya-Nāyaka is made. No. 778 of Appendix B dated Śaka 1418 which belongs to this time mentions the Mahāprādhāna Tipparasu-Oḍaya of Penugoṇḍe who might be the same as that referred to in No. 47 of 1916.

Immaḍi-Narasiṁha : His other names.

70. A much damaged record (No. 787 of Appendix B) mentions the name of Vīra-Dammarāya-Mahārāya who is the same as Immaḍi-Nṛisiṁha or Narasiṁha, the son of Sāḷuva Naraśiṅga (vide paragraph 64 of the Annual Report for 1916). Two of the inscriptions of Kugaiyūr (Nos. 122 and 123 of 1918) are dated in Śaka 1424, Raudri-saṁvatsara. Though one of these omits the name of the king, the other calls him Bhujabala Tammarāya. The first part of the name was corrupted into Buzbal by Nuniz and the second was the original of his Tamarao. In the year quoted, the temple of Rājarāja-Viṇṇagar of the place, having gone out of repair, Penugoṇḍa Tammaiya-Nāyaka built the mahāmaṇḍapa, set up pillars and pinnacles, constructed wells, dug tanks and provided for celebrations of festivals to Rāma, Rāghava, Nārāyaṇa and Kṛishṇa. No. 368 of 1917 is dated in Śaka 1425 and the king is simply called Narasiṁha instead of Immaḍi-Narasiṁha. According to this record an agent of the Tuḷuva general Narasā-Nāyaka bestowed on the weavers of the 3 villages Tribhuvaṇamahādēviparṟu, Naḍuvukaṟaipparṟu and Neṇmalipparṟu, the right to have daṇḍu and śaṅku on all good and bad occasions as the weavers of the country situated on the bank of the Peṇṇai river were privileged to have. It is further added that those who objected to this right should undergo the punishment fixed for it in an inscription engraved at Śeḷiyaṅganallūr.

Privileges conferred on the weavers.

71. Two other records in the year's collection attributable to the time of Immaḍi-Narasiṁha's rule are Nos. 98 and 118 of 1918 which are dated in Śaka 1426 and which come from Kugaiyūr in the South Arcot district. These inscriptions speak of a chief named Eramañchi Tulukkaṇa-Nāyaka "who inspired fear in the Chēra, Chōḷa, Pāṇḍya and Vallāḷa kings, who established the Yādavarāya, who was the enemy of Śambuvarāya and who protected in advance the prestige of the Sultan of Madura." The titles Nāyaṅkarāchārya, Naralōkagaṇḍa and Vaṅgināthārāyaṇa are given to him. He and another chief of the family named Eramañchi Timmappa-Nāyaka are known to us from other lithic records and from the Tamil work Kōyiloḷugu (Annual Report for 1914, p. 98, and Ind. Ant., Vol. XL, p. 142). It is worthy of note that all the records of Tulukkaṇa-Nāyaka are dated in Śaka 1426 and do not mention his overlord. Nos. 270 and 346 of 1917 also belong to the time of Vīra-Narasiṁha.

Eramañchi Tulukkaṇa-Nāyaka.

72. No. 717 of Appendix B belongs to the time of Kṛishṇarāya and is dated in Śaka 1432, i.e., the second year of his accession which took place in Śaka 1431. It records the remission of the tax on marriages in the Ghanagiri-rājya (i.e., Penugoṇḍa-rājya), Kandanavōlu, Ghaṇḍikōṭa-sthala, Sidhavaṭṭa, Siddhāpura-sīma, Chandragiri-rājya, Nāgamaṅgila-sīma, Mula-rājya and Rāyadurga-rājya; other provinces which were benefitted by this order are mentioned in foot-note 5, page 181, Arch. Sur. Rep. for 1908–09.

Kṛishṇarāya.

Two records of the king discovered at Korukkai (No. 235 of 1917) and Perumuḷai (No. 210 of 1917) in the Tanjore district give a detailed account of his conquests and enumerate the Śiva and Vishṇu temples in whose favour he remitted taxes amounting to 10,000 varāhas. Both the inscriptions are dated in the cyclic year Īśvara corresponding to Śaka 1439 though in the former the Śaka date is wrongly engraved as 1409 instead of Śaka 1439. Thus to the half a dozen places in the Presidency which we have ascertained in previous years' explorations to have also enjoyed the benefice of this sovereign we have now to add Korukkai and Perumuḷai. No. 100 of 1918 mentions the account officer Timmarusayya and refers to the revival of worship for the period of 7½ days by appointing new persons. Three records of Kugaiyūr (Nos. 115, 116 and 117 of 1918) are dated in Śaka 1446 and in the reign of Tirumalaidēva-Mahārāja. This king is said to have been the son of Bhujabala Vīrapratāpa-Krishṇadēva-Mahārāya. I have already identified (see my Annual Report for 1912, p. 80) Tirumalaidēva-Mahārāja, with the prince who, according to Nuniz was nominated for succession by Krishṇarāya and died soon after his accession. It is worthy of note that the year obtained for him in this year is the same as that in previous records. The surname Bhujabala given to Krishṇarāya has been pointed out (vide Annual Report for 1914, p. 98, paragraph 29) to be the equivalent of Nuniz's Busbalrao and adopted for the first time by Immaḍi Narasiṁha. It now appears to have been assumed by his successor Krishṇarāya as well.

Prince Tirumala.

A suspicious record referrable to this king is No. 19 of Appendix A, dated in Śaka 1415. The king is mentioned by the title Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara and is stated to have been ruling at Penugoṇḍa. A genuine record of the king (No. 744 of 1917) coming from a village in the Madakasira taluk, in the Kanarese country, dated in Yuva (i.e., Śaka 1438) Kārttika records a grant for his merit by the Gajapati prince Vīrabhadrarāya. The capture of Koṇḍavīḍu and of the Gajapati prince Vīrabhadra which took place in June A.D. 1515 (Arch. Sur Rep. 1908–09, pp. 177 and 178) was followed within four months by the appointment of Vīrabhadra to the governorship of a Kannaḍa province. The two known grants of Vīrabhadra in the Kanarese country (Ep. Carn., Vol. XI, Dg. 107 and No. 74 of Appendix B) are dated in the month of Kārttika of the year Yuva corresponding to Śaka 1438, i.e., October A.D. 1515.

Vīrabhadra.

73. Of Achyutarāya, there are twelve records ranging from Śaka 1453 to 1465. Among these No. 331 of 1917 is of some special interest as it gives Sāḷuva birudas to Achyuta, and says that he destroyed the army of the Muhammadans, despoiled their ambition, was the Sultan of Orissa, levied tribute from Ceylon and was a Navakōṭi-Nārāyaṇa (possessor of immense wealth). In general terms it gives us an insight into the military activity of the king against perhaps the Bahmani and the Gajapati kings and against Ceylon. No. 108 of 1918 mentions one of his officers Mallappa-Nāyaka who made rich grants to the temple at Kugaiyūr in Śaka 1465. His officer Ayyaparasayya who was in charge of the Ghaṇḍikōṭa division (No. 499 of 1907) is mentioned in No. 802 of Appendix B. No. 785 of Appendix B, which was copied at Chalivendala is dated in Śaka 1453. Excepting the portion giving the boundaries of the village the whole record is written in Sanskṛit verse and Kanarese characters. The introduction as well as the genealogy is almost the same as that given in the Ūṇamañjēri plates (Ep. Ind., Vol. III, page 147 f). It records the gift of the village Chalivindla surnamed Achchutēndrapura in Roddanāḍu in the Ghanagiri-rājya (i.e., Penugoṇḍa-rājya) for worship and offerings to the god Pāpavināśēśvara at Lēpākshi by the king at the instance of Virupaṇṇa, son of Nandi Lakki-śeṭṭi and Muddamma. From another record copied in the same place he is known to have been the taḷavāra (talayāri) of Vidyānagara (i.e., Vijayanagara) and the village Cheluvindla is called Kōmāra-Veṅkaṭādripura, evidently after prince Veṅkaṭādri or Veṅkaṭarāya, the son of Achyuta who did not survive him long (Annual Report for 1912 paragraph 56). No. 781 of Appendix B also refers to the same Virupaṇṇa mentioned in the other epigraphs collected at Lēpākshi (Nos. 68 to 90 of 1912). A hitherto unknown subordinate of Achyuta was Śalukarāju-Raghupatirājayyadēva-Mahārāja. He must have been a near relation of the king's minister and brother-in-law Salukarāja Tirumalarāja (Annual Report for 1916, page 144, paragraph 69). His subordinate was Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Hanumayadēva-Mahārāja, son of Chintakuṇṭa-Śiddhayadēva-Mahārāja (No. 680 of Appendix B).

Achyutarāya's conquests and his subordinates.

74. A few inscriptions of the current year's collection (Nos. 332 and 334 of 1917 and Nos. 106, 112, 114 and 119 of 1918) which fall into the reign of Sadāśiva introduce an official subordinate of this king, by name Sūrappa-Nāyaka. This chief is stated to be the younger brother of Aḍappa-Baiyapa-Nāyaka and is said to have repaired or re-constructed in Śaka 1465 (=A.D. 1543) the temple at Ennāyiram which had been originally built by Rājēndra-Chōḷa and had become dilapidated (No. 334 of 1917). It is worthy of note that the elder brother of the chief had served under the great Kṛishṇarāya and had another brother named Vīrappa-Nāyaka who also held an important position under the same king (Annual Report for 1916, page 142). The grant registered in No. 99 of 1918, dated in Śaka 1465 was made for the merit of a certain Viśvanātha-Nāyaka who may be identified with Viśvappa-Nāyaka, the brother of Sūrappa-Nāyaka. In Nos. 114 and 119 of 1918 mention is made of a certain Vaḍamalai-Nāyaka, the son of Śōḍi-Pāppu-Nāyaka who was an agent of Sūrappa-Nāyaka. Another agent of the same chief was Veṅkaṭappaiya noticed in No. 112 of 1918 along with his sub-agent Uṟattu-Pāppa-Nāyaka. Veṅkaṭādri-Nāyaka who made a grant for the merit of Sadāśiva-Mahārāya to the temple at Ennāviram, according to No. 337 is still another officer of the king.

Sūrappa-Nāyaka and his brothers Viśvappa-Nāyaka and Aḍappa Baiyapa-Nāyaka.

A Vaishṇava celebrity of the time named Tirumalai Tāttayyaṅgār of Tiruppēṟṟūr who belonged to the Aghamarshaṇa-gōtra, Āpastamba-sūtra and the Yajuś-śākhā figures in No. 130 of 1918, dated in Śaka 1482. It is not known if he is identical with Kumāra Tirumalai Tāttāchāriyar-Ayyaṇ of Ēṭṭūr who figures with his agent Periya-Nambi-Ayyaṇ and the latter's agent Emberumāṇār-Ayyaṇ in a record of king Śrīraṅga dated in Śaka 1505. The fact that Tāttayyaṅgār was a native of Tiruppēṟṟūr while Tāttāchārya belonged to Ēṭṭūr would preclude any such possibility of identification.

Tirumalai Tāttayyaṅgār and Tāthacāray.

It has been suggested that the civil war for the Vijayanagara throne between Salakarāja China-Tirumalayyadēva-Mahārāja and his party supporting the cause of Achyuta's son and Rāmarāja who upheld the claims of Sadāśiva must have come to an end by Śaka 1465 and Sadāśiva must have been securely installed on the throne by Śaka 1466. But No. 800 of Appendix B, dated in Śaka 1465, Śōbhakṛit, Vaiśākha, śu. di. 15, enables us to fix the latest date for Sadāśiva's undisturbed accession of the throne. It states that Daḷavāyi Kṛishṇappa-Nāyaka, son of Daḷavāyi Chennama-Nāyaka, granted the village of Chernūru to the god Chennakēśava in discharge of a vow to the god for favouring this accession of Sadāśiva to the throne. This chief might be identical with Daḷavāyi Kṛishṇama-Nāyaka mentioned in No. 590 of 1912.

Daḷavāyi Kṛishṇappa-Nāyaka.

Rāmarāja, the chief minister of Sadāśiva, is mentioned in the stone record No. 769 of Appendix B. Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara China-Timmayadēva-Mahārāja of the Āravīṭi family ruling the Avuku-sīma (Nos. 671, 674 and 700 of Appendix B), the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Avubhalēśvaradēva-Mahārāja of the Naṇḍēla (i.e., Naṇḍyāla) family governing the Kōvilakuṇṭla-sīma (No. 690 of Appendix B) and the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Naṇḍēla Timmayadēva-Mahārāja governing the Ghaṇḍikōṭa-sīma (No. 689 of Appendix B) were his other subordinates. Of these, Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara China-Timmayadēva-Mahārāja of the Āravīṭi family is the younger brother of Viṭṭhala mentioned in paragraph 50 of Annual Report for 1915. A copper-plate record of the king, secured in two batches (No. 24 of Appendix A to the Annual Report for 1917 and No. 5 of Appendix A to this report) refers to the grant of the village Marṟipūṇḍi in the Valanāṇḍu-vishaya of the Koṇḍavīḍu-rājya to a great scholar Sarva-Bhaṭṭa of Penumpnali (Penumnpali ?). Penumpnali must be the modern village Penumūli in the Guntūr taluk, Guntūr district, where even now exists the temple of god Gōkarṇēśvara (see No. 121 of 1917) whose devotee the donee is said to have been. Marripūṇḍi which is no other than the modern village of that name in the Bapatla taluk of this district was granted by the king at the request made by Rāmarāja his minister, on behalf of Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Raghunātharājayyadēva-Mahārāja.

Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Raghunātharājayyadēva-Mahārāja.

Raghunātharājayyadēva-Mahārāja was the nephew of Rāmarāja and the son of Tirumala I, the younger brother of Rāmarāja He must have been now governing the Koṇḍavīḍu-rājya. Kandālam Śrīraṅgāchārya, referred to in No. 801 of Appendix B was the son of Bhāvanāchārya and the teacher of Rāmarāja Kōnēṭi-Timmarāja (paragraph 70 of the Annual Report for 1916).

75. Of Tirumala I there are two records (Nos. 698 and 699 of Appendix B) dated in Śaka 1495 and 1493 respectively. In the former his son Śrīraṅga is mentioned with the title Mahārāya applied generally to the ruling Vijayanagara emperor only. At the time of this grant Śrīraṅga who gave the Kōvilakuṇṭla-sīma as nāyaṅkara to the Nandyāla chief Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Naraśiṅgarājadēva-Mahārāja must have been associated with Tirumala in the government as Yuvarāja.

Tirumala I.

Tirumala I must have been only passing for the emperor in name about this period, for Śrīraṅgadēva appears as independent in No. 823 of 1917 dated in Śaka 1494 Śrīmukha. It records the gift of a village to Tirumala Komāra-Tātāchārya by Śrīraṅgadēva-Mahārāya (i.e., Śrīraṅga II) for the merit of his mother Veṅgalāji-Amma. Veṅgalāji-Amma or Veṅgalāmbā was one of the wives of Tirumala I. Tirumala-Komāra Tātāchārya is the same as Ēṭṭūr Tāttāchārya or Kōṭikanyādānam Tātāchārya who was the spiritual teacher of Veṅkaṭa I and the supervisor of the Vaishṇava temples at Conjeeveram in the Chingleput district (paragraph 74 of Annual Report for 1916). As already noticed he figures in another record of Śrīraṅga dated in Śaka 1505. It is worthy of note that No. 129 of 1918 calls him Vēdamārgapratishṭhāchārya and the spiritual teacher of the Vijayanagara kings. This last inscription is dated two years later.

Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Veṅkaṭādrirāja of the Nandyāla family ruling the Kovilakuṇṭla-sīma in Śaka 1506 was a subordinate of Śrīraṅga II (No. 697 of Appendix B). This Veṅkaṭādrirāja was the cousin brother of Naraśiṅgarāja, referred to above who was a subordinate of Tirumala I. Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Naraśiṅgarājadēva-Mahārāja mentioned in Nos. 698 and 699 of Appendix B and Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Veṅkaṭādrirāja mentioned in this grant are two newly known chiefs of the Nandyāla family. The former is the son of Timmayyadēva of Nandyāla and the latter of Krishṇamarāja of Nandyāla (vide the genealogical table given on page 201, Arch. Sur. Rep. 1908–09).

76. The earliest notice of the Harati chiefs by Mr. Rice refers to them as the subordinates of the Vijayanagara king Sadāśiva (Ep. Carn., Vol. XI, introduction, page 27f.). No. 721 of Appendix B informs us that these were the subordinates also of Śrīraṅga II, the predecessor of Veṅkaṭa I. The record also states that the chief belonged to the Yanumala family and the Vāmlikā (Vālmīka ?)-gōtra, facts not known hitherto. Elsewhere (Nos. 741 and 743 of 1917) a chief of this family is said to have belonged to the Ātrēya-gōtra. The chiefs of the Kāmagētivaṁśa (Ep. Carn., Vol. XI, page 28) are stated to have belonged to the Vālmīki-gōtra. The chiefs also bear the title Bhāshegetappuvarāyaraganḍa, a title characteristic of the Vijayanagara kings. Mahānāyakāchārya Raṅgappa-Nāyaka, who was the son of Lakshmīpati-Nāyaka, the son of Harati Guṇḍappa-Nāyaka, was a subordinate of Śrīraṅga II and of Veṅkaṭa I (Nos. 721 and 728 of Appendix B). Immaḍi-Raṅgappa-Nāyaka of No. 736 of Appendix B was a later subordinate of Veṅkaṭa I. The Harati chiefs seem to have shaken off the Vijayanagara yoke about Śaka 1615. In a record dated in this year (No. 706 of Appendix B) the chief Harati Sarajarāyapparāja's (son) Rāyapparāja assumes the title of Mahārāja. The later chiefs (Nos. 737, 740, 741 and 743 of Appendix B) appear with the title Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara and make no mention of the ruling Vijayanagara kings as their overlords. These should have become independent not long after the Mysore Rājas who shook of Vijayanagara suzerainty about A.D. 1576 (Sewell's List of Antiquities, Volume II, page 194).

77. Of the time of Śrīraṅga VI we have only one record (No. 691 of 1917) dated in Śaka 1565. He is said to have been ruling at Penugoṇḍa-sthala, though in fact his capital was now at Chandragiri. It records that his subordinate of the Haṇḍe family named Siddharāmappa-Nāyaka issued an order that the kāpus who had held any temple or Brahman lands on 'mortgage by possession' (bhōgya-āyakam) should restore these lands to the original owners after 12 years of enjoyment, without demanding any money from them giving them at the same time written deeds (bhōgya-patra) recording the reconveyance. The order was issued with the consent of the reḍḍis, karaṇams and the other people of the place (sthala). The defaulters were to be fined by the palace (nagari), i.e., king (or chief?). The legislation appears evidently to have been made as a remedy against the conveyance by the owners of these lands for long periods to the kāpus in consideration of the loans paid on such usufructory mortgages decidedly favourable to the mortgagee. Even now the temple lands in many cases are mortgaged under similar conditions to the great disadvantage and detriment of the charities intended by their original donors. The Haṇḍe chiefs who had for a time been hostile to the Vijayanagara king and even went to the length of combining with the Muhammadans against him about Śaka 1506 (No. 70 of 1915) seem to have been reduced to submission in later times as suggested by this inscription and as a result probably of the expedition carried against them as narrated in No. 70 of 1915.

Miscellaneous.

78. A line of kings with the lion for their crest who claimed descent from the quasi-historical Karikāla, were born of the Solar race and bore the title of 'the lord of Oṟeyūru' has already been noticed in paragraph 5 of the Epigraphical Report for 1905 and in Ep. Ind., Vol. XI. Only one inscription of this dynasty (No. 792 of Appendix B) has been copied during the year in the Hindupur taluk of the Anantapur district. The ruling king is mentioned as Śōḷa-Mahārāja with the usual epithets of the kings of this dynasty, Karikālānvaya, Dinakarakulanandana, Oṟeyūrpuravarādhīśvara, etc. This chief might be the same as Chōḷa-Mahārāja of the Solar race, the Kāśyapa-gotra and the Karikāla family who was ruling the Rēnāḍu Seven Thousand country, a part of which lay in the modern Cuddapah district (No. 466 of 1906). But no definite clue is furnished to help us to find out the exact period to which the record belongs. Palaeographically it may be placed in the 10th century A.D. The inscription shows that the power of these kings extended also into the modern Anantapur district.

Chōḷas.

No. 797 of Appendix B refers to a certain Dantiyamma Maṁgu-Chōḷa who was stabbed to death in the fight by a certain Arivarajama (i.e., Arivarayama, the God of Death to his enemies). In No. 798 of 1917 is mentioned a certain Aravala-Mahēndra, a subordinate of Chōḷa-Mahārāja. Dantiyamma Maṁgu-Chōḷa and Chōḷa-Mahārāja must belong to some branch of the early Chōḷas whose inscriptions have been found in the Cuddappah district as referred to above.

Dantiyamma Maṁgu-Chōḷa and Chōḷa-Mahārāja.

79. The copper-plate record No. 4 of Appendix A received from M.R.Ry. M. Kalidasu Garu, High Court Vakil, Guntur, belongs to a Chōḷa chief of the Telugu country, hitherto not known, who claims to have ruled over the country between Nellūru and Kāliṅgaka, i.e. (Kaliṅga). The record which now consists only of three copper-plates is incomplete. One or two plates appear to be missing. No seal accompanies the plates though near the centre of the proper right margin of them is the ring-hole. The plates are reported to have been found in the possession of a private person in the village Pachchala-Tāḍiparṟu in the Bapatla taluk of the Guntur district. They are rectangular in shape with low rims and measure about $8\frac{3}{4}$ inches in length and 4 inches in breadth. On the first face of the first plate are carved two

Śaṁbhu-Chōḍa of the family of Kuśa and of the Kāśyapa-gōtra.

The king of this grant, Saṁbhu-Chōḍa, who was the son of Rāma-Chōḍa traces his descent from Brahma through his son Kasyapa-Prajāpati and his son Vivasvān (i.e., the Sun). To the family of king Kuśa of this (i.e., Solar) race and to the Kāśyapa-gōtra is the king said to have belonged. His queen was Periyanārchchi (a Tamil name), the daughter of a certain Chit-Chakravarti. The king is reported to have defeated his enemies in a battle at Pīṭhapurī (i.e., modern Pithāpuram). God Bhairava who is stated to have become almost the king's servant on account of his mantraśakti is reported to have been much pleased with him and appearing before him to have led him by the hand and pointed out a hidden treasure on the summit of the Kōṭyadri hill. He begot two sons after performing the Putrārthi-yajña (i.e., sacrifice for sons) in the presence of the god Agastyēśvara at Kammēru and of the god Shaṇmukha at Tāmrapura. They were named Agastīśvara-Chōḍa (colloquial form of Agastyēśvara-Chōḍa) and Shaṇmukha-Chōḍa respectively after the two deities through whose favour they were evidently believed to have been born.

His two sons Agastīśvara-Chōḍa and Shaṇmukha-Chōḍa.

In the 50th year of the king's reign in which took place the battle with the king of Kaliṅga the king installed his two sons as Yuvarājas. The installation most probably preceded the king's march to the battle. The battle with the king of Kaliṅga is probably the same as the one stated earlier in the inscription to have taken place at Pīṭhapurī. On the occasion of the said installation the king granted the village of Kummaḍūru on the bank of the Tuṅgabhadrā to the god Agastyēśvara at the village Mandara (stated in the inscription to have borne the surname Kammēru) and the god Shaṇmukha at Tāmrapura, to his purōhita to the servants of the two temples, etc., as detailed in Appendix A. Mandara is identical with the modern village Mandaḍam in the Guntur taluk, Guntur district, which is also mentioned in an inscription of the time of the Kākatīya queen Rudrāmbā (No. 94 of 1917). Tāmrapurī was the ancient name of the village Chēbrōlu (Chembrōlu) in the Bapatla taluk of the Guntur district which was also called Shaṇmukhapurī, i.e., 'the city of Shaṇmukha' (Ep. Ind., Vol. V, page 143). This order of gift was addressed by the king to his chief provincial officers (rāshṭrakūṭa-pramukha) among whom are mentioned Periya-Śaṁbhurāya and Chiriya-Śaṁbhurāya. The king Śaṁbhu-Chōḍa who was a Chōḷa must have got into power in the Telugu country as a result of the Chōḷa conquest of Kaliṅga in the time of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I and of Vikrama-Chōḷa. They might have belonged to the family to which Rājanārāyaṇa Śaṁbhuvarāya belonged (South-Ind. Inscrs., Vol. I, pages 101 and 102, etc.) The Śaṁbhuvarāyas must have accompanied the Chōḷa kings to the north to help them in the conquest of the Telugu country and continued to rule there subsequently as local officers. The record is not dated but it may be assigned palaeographically to about the twelfth century A.D.

80. In the year's collection there are six records belonging to the reign of Ballāḷa III with whom the Hoysaḷa dynasty practically came to an end. The records range in date from Śaka 1238 to Śaka 1265. Ballāḷa III had a son named Vīra-Virūpākṣha Ballāḷa IV, also known as Haṁpayya (Haṁpa-Voḍeya) (Arch. Sur. Rep. 1909–10, page 160). No. 738 of Appendix B, dated in Śaka 1238, mentions another son of Ballāḷa III named Tipparasu-Bhairavadēvarasu. Aḷiya Mācheya-Daṇṇāyaka was the Mahāpradhāni as well as the son-in-law of the king. In Śaka

Hoysaḷas.

Vīra-Virūpākṣha Ballāḷa IV alias Hampayya.

1243 he was the Governor of Penugoṇḍa which in later times under the Vijayanagara dynasty became an important seat of government. In the period following the Mussalman invasion under Malik Kafur when the power of the Hoysaḷas became weak, local chiefs seem to have taken the opportunity for attempting to shake off the central authority. From an inscription at Sirivaram in the Hindupur taluk (No. 772 of Appendix B) it is seen that there was a rising of the chiefs of [Ye]lumāvu and that the Mahāsāmantādhipati Hiriya Bommaya-Nāyaka, son of Gaṅgeya-Nāyaka of Hoḷakallu died in a battle against them. Nos. 780 and 791 of Appendix B mention Vissama-Daṇṇāyaka and Gaṅgidēva-Daṇṇāyaka, sons of Mācheya-Daṇṇāyaka noted above. In Śaka 1261 Gaṅgidēva-Daṇṇāyaka was ruling at Penugoṇḍa. It is interesting to learn from No. 791 that the village of Sēnagavuḍanahaḷi (i.e., the modern Śānagānapalli in the Hindupur taluk) was granted to a goldsmith Sēḍōja-Pōtōja for his having executed a bracelet set with diamonds and rubies.

81. Between Śaka 1429 and 1456 there is a break in the inscriptions of the later Pāṇḍya kings. It is exactly during this period that we get many records of the Travancore chiefs in the Tinnevelly district. We know that a major portion of the Pāṇḍyan kingdom had been occupied by them having been wrested from their hands. During this time, however, there were two kings Māṟavarman Kōnērmaikoṇḍāṉ Parākrama whose 30th year corresponds to Śaka 1457 (No. 4 of 1916) and Māṟavarman Kōnērmaikoṇḍāṉ Sundara whose latest inscription is dated in Śaka 1463 which was his 11th year (No. 2 of 1916). It is a significant fact that the inscriptions of these two kings till now secured are found only in Vallanāḍ, Kayattār and Gaṅgaikoṇḍāṉ, places very near Tinnevelly and far removed from Teṉkāśi, showing that they were pushed far back to the east by their conquerors and were ruling over an insignificant tract. Two kings of the Travancore family are represented in the inscriptions copied in the Tenkasi taluk this year which range in date from Śaka 1431 and 1469. Nos. 506 and 517 of 1917 dated, respectively, in Kollam 685 (Śaka 1431) and Saka 1447 register the order of Udaya-Mārttāṇḍavarman, the mūttavar of Śiṟaivāy and Vīra-Marttāṇḍan, the mūttavar of Śiṟaivāy regarding some grant of land, appointment of servants, etc., in the Teṉkāśi temple. Both these names appear to belong to the same chief. I have also pointed out (Annual Report for 1917, page 130) that Vīra-Mārttāṇḍa should have been a surname of Udaya-Mārttāṇḍavarman. No. 576 is another record of Vīra-Mārttāṇḍavarman, which informs us that he made some repairs to the Teṉkāśi temple and revived the festivals and other services in the temple. In No. 423 of Appendix B we meet with a certain Vīra-Mārttāṇḍaṉ Parākrama-Pāṇḍyadēvaṉ. It is not clear to whom this refers. But we may suppose that Udaya-Mārttāṇḍa probably assumed this Pāṇḍya name after his conquest and occupation of the Pāṇḍya country.

Udaya- or Vīra- Mārttāṇḍavarman.

The other chief Rāmavarman (No. 528 of 1917) calls himself 'the mūttavar of Jayatuṅga-nāḍu' and has the titles Śaṅkaranārāyaṇamūrtti, Veṉṟu-maṅkoṇḍa and Bhūtalavīra which we know (Annual Report for 1917, page 128) were also borne by his predecessor Udaya-Mārttāṇḍa who assumed them after his conquest of Tinnevelly (Travancore State Manual, Vol. I, page 295). This record of the chief which is dated in Śaka 1469 is also from Teṉkāśi. It is doubtful how he could have wielded his influence there even so late as Śaka 1469, seeing that Śrīvallabha and his successors had already come into possession of their lost territory, as can be seen from the existence of their inscriptions also in the same place. Our record states that Rāmavarman being encamped at Ēṟupāḍi (Eruvāḍi) ordered the grant of some lands to the Viśvanātha temple for a service called Śeṇbagarāmaṉ-śandi.

82. No. 16 of Appendix A is a copper-plate record of a minor chief of the Telugu country who flourished in the 14th century A.D. This is a set of seven plates rectangular in shape, written in Telugu characters. They are hung on a ring which has a circular seal bearing no emblems or legends. The record belongs to king Uṇḍirāja of the Solar race. Uṇḍirāja of that branch of the Solar race in which Ikshvāku and Rāma had been born and of the Harita-gōtra. His genealogy is given as shown below :—

Dēvarāja of the Solar race and of the Harita-gōtra.

Uṇḍīśa m [Bi]mmidēvī.

|

Tammarāja m Vīramadēvī.

Uṇḍirāja m Rudramadēvī of the Mānavyasa-gōtra.

The last of these (Uṇḍirāja), the king of this grant, assumes the epithets, Rājavēśyābhujaṅga, Yōdhanandīmēru, Naḍagōṭamalla and Aśvadānadīkshāguru. His capital town was Śūravaramu which may have to be identified with one of the two villages of this name in the Bhadrachalam taluk of the Godavari district. His queen who belonged to the Mānavyasa-gōtra was probably a princess of Chālukya blood. In the Saka year 1304 denoted by the chronogram aṁbōdhi (the seas), i.e. 4, viyat (the sky) i.e., 0, guṇas (qualities), i.e., 3, and indu (moon), i.e., 1, Dundubhi, Māgha, śu. di. daśamī, Thursday, (=A.D. 1383, January 28), the king granted the village Rāvulapaṛti which consisted of 80 shares to Brahmans. The village was on this occasion surnamed Uṇḍīśapuram probably after the king. More than a dozen other villages granted as agrahāras by the king to Brahmans and named in the record are Gōpavaram, Tvōṁkapalli, Chervukanma, Kāśapādu, Chintapali, Vipparṛu, Kāṭlaparṛu, Bhaṇḍārupalli, Kārikarlapalli, Uṅguṭūru, Koṁḍruprōlu, Kaḍakatlu, Niḍumrānūru, Pallivāḍa, Paruṁballi, Gūḍaparṛu, Tāṁḍiparṛu and the khēṭaka Tāṁḍipalli. These are mostly distributed among the Bhimavaram and Tanuku taluks of the modern Kistna district and some lie in the southern part of the Godavari district. The political relationship of king Uṇḍirāja to the contemporary Reḍḍi chief Aṇna-Vēma of Koṇḍavīḍu who was powerful in this part of the country about the time of this inscription is not known. It has to be noticed however that no reference is made to the Reḍḍi king in the record as the overlord. And the large number of villages granted by Uṇḍirāja suggests that he owned a large territory. The record closes with the signatures (vrālu) of Peda Ūṇḍrāju and Veṅgu. The former must be the name by which the king was familiarly known. His gifts.

83. A genealogy of the family of the Cheṁji (i.e., Giṅgee) chiefs is furnished by Nos. 860 and 861 of Appendix B. These are dated in Śaka 1593 (A.D. 1670-71) and belong to Varadappa-Nāyaka of this family. The lists of kings given in the two records are identical and begin with the 25th generation prior to this chief. A certain Śirigiri-Nāyaka (i.e., Śrīgiri-Nāyaka) who belonged to the 12th generation prior to Varadappa-Nāyaka of the inscription is stated to have migrated from Maṇināgapura (Manikpur) in the Āryāvarta (northern India) to Vijayanagara, evidently the capital of the Vijayanagara empire. This immigration, allowing 25 years on the average for each generation, may be considered to have taken place about A.D. 1370. The migration of this family in the time of Peda Krishnappa-Nāyaka from Vijayanagara to Cheṁji five generations before Varadappa-Nāyaka must have happened about the middle of the 16th century A.D. A genealogy of the Cheṁji i.e., Ginjee chiefs. Their immigration from Maṇināgapura in the Āryāvarta to the south. Further emigration from Vijayanagara to Cheṅji, i.e., Ginjee.

84. No. 18 of Appendix A is a copper-plate grant of the latter part of the 17th century and belongs to the time of the Golkonda king Abdul Hassan, the last of the Kootb Shāhi line. His minister Mādanna and the latter's brother, the generalissimo of the Golkonda forces, Akkanna have already been brought to notice in the Annual Report for 1915 where are also given plates of the portraits of the king and these two brothers. Another copper-plate record dated in Śaka 1608, Prabhava, Vaiśākha, śu. di. 15 (= A.D. 1687, April 16, Saturday) referring to a grant by the two brothers to the Śaṅkarāchārya-maṭha at Kāñchīpuram has been brought to notice in the same report for 1915 (No. 6 of Appendix A).

Akkanna and Mādanna.

The record under review, dated in Śaka 1602 (= A.D. 1680) happens to be the earliest epigraph referring to these two Brahman officers of the Golkonda king. Mādanna-Paṇḍita, as he is called, is stated to have been the chief officer of the king of Bhāgnagara. The reference here is to the capital of the Golkonda king at the time of the inscription. A magnificient city called 'Bhaugnuggur' (laterly called Hyderabad) had been built about A.D. 1581 eight miles from Golkonda after his favourite mistress Bhagmutty, a public singer of whom he was greatly enamoured, by king Muhamad Kooly Kootb Shah (A.D. 1581–86—Brigg's Rise of the Muhammadan Power in India, Vol. III, page 335). The name often assumes the Hindu form Bhāgyanagara (i.e., city of wealth) on the analogy of the second name Vidyānagara (i.e., city of learning) of Vijayanagara the capital of the Vijayanagara empire. The Penugoṇḍa province which was at this time included within the Golkonda empire was under the rule of a certain Liṅgōji-Paṇḍita who calls himself a subordinate of Akhanna, the younger brother of Mādanna.

Bhāgnagar, ancient name of Hyderabad (Deccan).

The inscription also records a donation made by the several communities and contains incidentally a few interesting statements. The description of the several communities is full of social interest and its abstract appended here would be of value. The several members of the league (samaya-pekkaṇḍru) of the lords of Ayyāvaḷi, indigenous (svadēśa), foreign (paradēśa), both (ubhaya), and the itinerants (nānādēśa) among them, who had the hōṁkāḷikā-praśasti, who were the devotees of gods Gaṇēśvara and Gaurēśvara, the Vaiśyas of the 102 gōtras with the several śeṭṭis including Pṛithvi-Śeṭṭi Rāyani-Bhāskaranna (vide page 84, paragraph 60, of Annual Report for 1912) who had the grace of the goddess Kamala-Vāsavakanyakā of Vindhyavāsi, who obtained favours from god Nagarēśvaradēva, who were great devotees of (god) Janārdana-Peruṁāḷ and who were favoured with sons, grandsons, riches, gold, materials and vehicles through the blessings of Bhāskarāchārya (vide Part I, paragraph 53 of Annual Report for 1915), the several maṭha-mahats, i.e., the great men of the maṭhas, viz., of Gavi-maṭha, Halukūri-maṭha, etc., certain Sāmpradāyikas, the Yajamānas (i.e., Masters), the gavuḍa (i.e., village headman), the karaṇams and the Sāmpradāyikas of the Lēpākshi-sthala, the Paṭṭaṇa-svāmi-Sāmpradāyikas of Penugoṇḍa-sthala, the several śeṭṭis of the fifty-six countries including those of that sthala and of the other sthalas, the landowners (bhūmi-prabhu) belonging to the four reḍḍi families, the eighteen sects among Brahmans, Kshatriyas, Vaiśyas and Śūdras together, viz., Vyavahārikas, Pāñchālas (five sects of smiths), Kumbhālikas (potters), tantuvāyins (weavers), vastra-bhēdakas (cloth-dyers ?), tila-ghātakas (oil-millers), kuraṇṭakas (kuraṭakas? : shoemakers), vastra-rakshakas (tailors), dēvāṅgas, pa[ri]kelili (parikelettēvāru (keepers of pack-bullocks ?), gōrakshakas (cow-herds), kirātas (hunters), rajakas (washermen) and kshaurakas (barbers) being assembled and being seated on a diamond throne in the mukhamaṇḍapa made in the form of a moon (chandra-maṇḍala) in the presence of the deities, Pāpavināśēśvara, Vīrēśvara and Rāghavēśvara (in the temple) at Lēpakshi-kshētra, to the south of the capital Ghanagiri (Ghanagiri-siṁhāsana) called also Roddhanāḍu-Penugoṇḍa which was the holiest spot in the entire Jambū-dvīpa and was the chief seat (mātri-sthāna) for the seventy-seven siṁhāsanas, are stated to have made the gift of certain rates to be paid on shops, looms and on occasions of auspicious ceremonies taking place in their houses. Certain rates on the pack-bullocks both of that sthala and of other sthalas (parasthala) passing through or from the several villages were also granted for offerings and lamps to the god Nañjuṇḍēśvara at Lēpākshi.

Pṛithviśeṭṭi Rāyani Bhāskaranna and Bhāskarāchārya.

The Eighteen Phaṇas.

A communal grant of the 17th century.

The prominent feature of this communal grant is the comprehensive character of the assembly which made it. The Ayyāvaḷe merchants, the Vaiśyas of the 102 gōtras, the representatives of the several chief Śaiva maṭhas, the sāmpradāyikas (caste leaders ?) the members of the 18 sects (phaṇa) the yajamānas, gavuḍas and karaṇams of the Lēpākshi-sthala at which the gift was made, the Paṭṭaṇasvāmi-sāmpradāyika, the representatives of the four (chief) Reḍḍi families who were landowners (bhūmi-prabhus) (evidently of Lēpākshi) and the members of the eighteen professional classes are represented. In this connexion it may be pointed out that a grant made by a member of the śeṭṭi community to a temple at Ghaṇṭasāla in Śaka 1142 (No. 851 of Appendix B) was placed under the care of the Nākaramu 102 i.e., the (Vaiśya) merchants of the 102 gōtras.

The Eighteen Sāmayas and Seventy-four sub-divisions of Pāñchālas.

85. A record of the time of the Hoysaḷa king Vīra-Ballāḷa (III ?) registers a grant of land made by the paṭṭaṇasvāmin, the gavuḍas of the nāḍu and the 18 samayas. The eighteen samayas (leagues ?) probably of the 18 phaṇas (sects) above mentioned figure as a recognized part in the assemblies that met to make gifts (No. 729 above noticed and No. 804 of Appendix B). The latter refers to certain privileges granted formerly to the seventy-four sub-divisions of the Pāñchālas (smiths) by Harihara-Mahārāya (i.e., Harihara I), Bhikshā-vṛitti Tātayya, the six darśanas and the eighteen samayas for their having made the entrance-throne (hajāra-simhāsana) of the palace. A record from the Hindupur taluk of the Anantapur district (No. 814 of Appendix B) dated in Śaka 1345 refers to a member of the Vaiśya-vaṁśa with a praśasti (eulogy) which refers to its members as experts in the examination of the nine gems. It states that Agastya was their purōhita, Garuḍa, the favourite of Kamalāpriya, i.e., Vishṇu, was the banner (dhvaja) of a certain Siriyāḷa-Śeṭṭi. The title Ayōdhyāpuravarēśvara (lord of Ayōdhyā, the best of towns) is applied to another member of this sect who is said to belong to the Kaṇva-Ṛishi-gōtra.

Chōḍa-Vāṇḍyavura, i.e., Chōḍa-Pāṇḍyapura, surname of Ghaṇṭasāla.

86. We learn that Ghaṇṭasāla was called Chōḍa-Vāṇḍyavura, i.e., Chōḷa-Pāṇḍyapura, about Śaka 1061 and after (Nos. 855, 848 and 847 of Appendix B). Chōḷa-Pāṇḍya was the title of the Chōḷa princes appointed to rule over the Pāṇḍya country as viceroys (see Ep. Ind. Vol. XI, page 292 f). How this title appears in the surname of a village in the Telugu country remains yet to be explained.

Hero-stones in the Anantapur district.

87. Among the inscriptions copied during the year in the Madakasira and Hindupur taluks of the Anantapur district are a number of hero-stones (vīragals) a few of which appear also to have been set up as tomb-memorials. A number of other records of this nature from the Madakasira taluk have been noticed already on page 112 of my last Annual Report. In a few instances provision was made for the worship of these memorials as noted below. Some of the deaths recorded in these obituary inscriptions appear to have occurred at tanks (Nos. 805 and 806 of Appendix B). These must have been related to disputes about water (for irrigation ?) as to cattle in the other cases (No. 746 of Appendix B). A few of these give us the names—and in some cases the titles too—of the heroes, from which could be learnt their connexions. No. 759 of Appendix B mentions a certain Prabhumēru Aṇṇiga Dhanañjaya. The titles and names of Bāṇa chiefs generally, ending in Mēru, this chief may be presumed to be one of the Bāṇa family. In the genealogy given on page 21 of the Supplement to the Southern List of Inscriptions by Dr. Kielhorn, Prabhumēru is mentioned as the son of the Bāṇa king Bāṇavidyādhara. Arivīramēru Ayyapaśu mentioned in No. 806 of Appendix B must also be a Bāṇa chief.

A Bāṇa chief named Prabhumēru Aṇṇiga Dhanañjaya.

Gaṅga-Triṇētra Aṇi-Bhīma and Apimana-Gaṅgu.

Gaṅga-Triṇētra Aṇi-Bhīma (i.e., Ani-Bhīma, a Bhīma in battle) who fell in an attack against the Kuṟumas (i.e., Kurumbas ?) must be of Gaṅga origin. Apimana-Gaṅgu (i.e., Abhimāna (?)-Gaṅga) Kannarāju who made a gift of a tank at Vaṇavoḷu (No. 811 of Appendix B) (modern Vānavōlu, Hindupur taluk) must have been an early Gaṅga chief. No. 734 which comes from Madhūḍi refers to the death of a certain Mārappa in a cattle-feud at Madivāḍi (i.e., Madhūḍi) in Śaka 924 Śubhakrit. No. 745 from Narasāmbudhi,

3 miles from Iṅgalūru, refers to the death of Gāvuṇḍa, and No. 746 to the death of Mayiṇḍa-Gāvuṇḍa, the younger brother of Mādaṇṇa, the son of Keraḍara Beḷḷi-Keraḍara Bijayi (i.e., Vijayi), son of Beḷḷi-Gāvuṇḍa of Piri-Yiṅgaḷūru. Land is stated in the latter to have been granted for the benefit of those who put flowers (on the memorial). Similar gift of land for conducting worship to such a hero-memorial is recorded in Nos. 732 and 772 of Appendix B. The former of these in characters of the same period as No. 772 ascribes the death of the hero to the Hoysaḷa invasion (Hoysaṇa-dāḷi). The latter states that the hero of the record, Hiriya-Bommeya-Nāyaka, son of the Mahāsāmantādhipati Hoḷakalla Gaṅgeya-Nāyaka, met his death in the battle at Hoyikuṇṭa in Śaka 1243. It is very probable that Bommeya-Nāyaka took part in the Hoysaḷa expedition referred to in No. 732 of Appendix B.

Gift of land for flower service to a hero-stone.

Hoysaḷa invasion and the battle at Hoyikuṇṭa.

88. No. 809 of Appendix B dated in Śaka 1327 refers to the agni-pravēśa made by Gaṅgāsāni, the daughter of Bayiri-Śeṭṭi of Pāmiḍi at Penugoṇḍe where her husband Rāmadēva-Nāyaka died. In praise of her act a vīrakai (hero-hand) was set up at Vānavōlu. No. 19 of Appendix A and No. 857 of Appendix B give us the rather rare instances of sacred foundations made on divine directions given in dreams to the donors. Nos. 708, 709, and 711 give a few instances of the favourite deity manifesting Himself before His devotee.

An instance of agni-praveśa (sati) in the 15th century.

Order—No. 1172, Home (Education), dated 6th September 1918.

Recorded.

2. The Government are glad to observe that the number of inscriptions copied and examined rose from 668 in 1916–17 to 876 during the year, under review, which is the highest on record. Besides the work of collecting copies of inscriptions, the Epigraphical department has to discharge the important duty of making the transcripts of the inscriptions copied available to students and scholars. The Government trust that under the arrangements sanctioned in G.O. No. 890, Home (Education), dated the 5th July 1918, the Assistant Archæological Superintendent for Epigraphy will make a substantial advance in the work of publication of inscriptions. The Assistant Archæological Superintendent is requested to expedite the issue of the volume of "South Indian Inscriptions" already in the Press.

3. The Superintendent, Archæological Survey, is requested to submit his views in regard to the conservation of the two monuments referred to in paragraph 19 of Part I of the report.

4. The programme of work for the ensuing field season is approved.

PART I.

Office Routine.

2. I availed myself of three months' privilege leave from 3rd April 1918 to 2nd July 1918 during which period Mr. G. Venkoba Rao was appointed to act for me [G.O. No. R. 77, Home (Education), dated 27th March 1918]. The latter also went on privilege leave for sixteen days from 17th October to 2nd November 1918 and the typist and clerk were granted privilege leave for one month and twelve days and three months respectively, the one from 11th November 1918 and the other from 24th February 1919.

Publication.

3. One of the important Government Orders that was issued during the year under review is G.O. No. 890, Home (Education), dated 5th July 1918, which has directly brought about a complete change in the system of the working of this office. So far, the main charge of my office consisted in carefully listing the large number of inscriptions collected by the department during the year and drawing up a detailed account of them in the form of a report for Government. The publication work which was necessarily slow was attended to only at the intervals of reporting, by continuing the old series of South-Indian Inscriptions on the lines originally laid down by Professor Hultzch. The Government had for some time under consideration the best plan for expediting publication simultaneously with collection. They found that the complete critical method of editing inscriptions with texts, translations and historical notes as in the Epigraphia Indica and other standard antiquarian journals and the South-Indian Inscriptions as published till now, was a slow and costly process and that supplied with the bare epigraphical material, viz., the transcripts of all inscriptions carefully printed, scholars and students interested in South-Indian antiquities could easily take up the work of the translation and exegesis. It was thus that the Government Order under question was issued. It lays down a minimum publication of 2,000 inscriptions each year by this department and the establishment of the office is necessarily also strengthened by sanctioning temporarily for two years a special Assistant on Rs. 200 per mensem, a proof reader on Rs. 40, and a pandit on Rs. 30. The work was taken on hand at once on the receipt of the order and in the nine months from August 1918 to April 1919, 2,121 folio-pages of manuscripts containing the texts of 1,176 inscriptions have been sent to the press. A detailed report has also been separately submitted (vide this office letter No. 230, dated 25th April 1919, on this subject). On account therefore of the heavy publication work and the greater attention paid to it both by the Collection and Publication sections, the report for the year under review has been curtailed to a certain extent in Part II. This same course has already been suggested by one of the Government Orders issued in previous years [G.O. No. 98, Home (Miscellaneous), dated 28th August 1916], when still the question of expediting publication had not been finally settled.

4. Speaking of publication work, it may be reported also that Vol. III, Part III, of South-Indian Inscriptions referred to on page 5 paragraph 4 of the last year's report, was read in proof. The printed pages of the 116 inscriptions mentioned therein not being found enough to fill up a complete part of the South-Indian Inscriptions the Tiruvālaṅgāḍu copper-plates which had been proposed to go into Part IV of Vol. III, were included in Part III, thus making up nearly 190 printed pages for this part. It was sent for final stitched proof to the Government Press on 5th March 1919 with 13 illustrative plates and is expected to be in the hands of Government within a month. Material for Part IV which is also being got ready will consist of the two important Pāṇḍya copper-plate inscriptions from Vēḷvikuḍi and Śiṇṇamaṇūr. Some minor Chōḷa copper-plate grants, an index and the historical introduction to Vol. III will close the old series of South-Indian Inscriptions and the continuation of that series in the new form will henceforth be the "(Texts of) South-Indian Inscriptions" now being printed to the same size and form in the Government Press.

Mr. V. Rangachariyar, Professor, Anantapur College, has also completed his laborious work in connexion with "The topographical list of inscriptions in the Madras Presidency." The Government of India have been pleased to duly award Mr. Rangachariyar an honorarium of Rs. 1,000 for his labours. This encouragement on the part of the Government is sure to be highly appreciated and should, in my opinion, attract many more scholars to volunteer their help in bringing out other such useful epitomes on South Indian Archæology and Epigraphy.

Dr. F. W. Thomas of London recently suggested to me the preparation of a quinquennial index to the Annual Reports on Epigraphy in the Madras Presidency so that the 'vast amount of useful material well digested' in them may be saved the risk of not being sufficiently used by oriental scholars. The Government while receiving this suggestion favourably, consider that the question of the preparation of a quinquennial index might be conveniently deferred till some progress has been made in regard to the publication of inscriptions ordered in G.O. No. 890, Home (Education), dated the 5th July 1918.

Assistant Superintendent's Tour.

5. My tours during the year were chiefly in connexion with the publication work of the office. I left Madras on 5th November 1918 and returned on 1st January 1919, visiting in this interval of nearly two months, Hampi (Bellary district), Tādpatri (Anantapur district), Avanigaḍḍa, Gaṇapēśvaram, Srīkākuḷam and Bezwada (Kistna district), Mukhaliṅgam (Vizagapatam district) and Śrīkūrmam and Sālihuṇḍam (Ganjam district). Again I spent a further week at Conjeevaram from 19th March 1919 to 26th March 1919 also in connexion with the publication work.

6. Of course though the chief object of my tour was for examining and checking the readings of inscriptions directly from the stone, other items of archæological or epigraphical interest that attracted my attention in these places were also examined and noted. I beg to subjoin the results of a few of them for the information of Government for such action as they may deem necessary to take:—(1) A deserted temple situated north-east of the famous Viṭṭhala temple at Hampi was found to bear the board 'Śiva Temple' put upon it by the Archæological Department. On careful examination I saw from the distinctly numerous Vaishṇava marks depicted on the pillars, lintels and walls, that the temple must have been one dedicated to Vishṇu. Consequently the Archæological Superintendent, if he approves of the suggestion, may be requested to change the board, since it is misleading. So also is the board 'Jaina Temple' which is seen on the wall of a temple on a low rock between the Viṭṭhala and the Kōdaṇḍarāma temples. I know that Mr. Longhurst advances a number of arguments in his Hampi Ruins, page 121 f., in support of his contention that this temple must have been Jaina. There do exist undoubted marks of Vaishṇavism, as Mr. Longhurst also admits. Evidently the peculiar style of the gōpura on the central shrine—a pile of narrowing rectangles placed one over the other—must have given rise to the notion that the temple is Jaina. In Hampi such a gōpura is seen already on the oldest of the Hindu shrines, viz., that of Pampādēvī in the Virūpāksha temple. The so-called Jaina temples on the rock adjoining the Virūpāksha temple to the south of it, may also for the matter of that, be all of them Śaiva shrines of the pre-Hoysala period. In some of these I even saw broken Nandis. It is unfortunate, however, that none of these temples in question have images in them nor bear sculptures or inscriptions on their walls that would then clearly point to the origin of these ancient monuments.

(2) Again at Hampi the photographer Mr. Visvanatha Ayyar prepared a careful sketch of a very curious mystic charm (yantra) which is the object of worship in the temple called Yantrōddhāraka Hanumān close behind the Kōdandarāmasvāmin temple, to which Rao Bahadur C. H. Gowd of Hospet kindly drew my attention. It consists of jumping figures of the monkey-god each holding the tail of the other and all arranged round another monkey-god seated in the centre of a hexagon. In the interspaces of the whole circle and the hexagon are inscribed letters in Grantha and Kannada characters which were not clearly visible on account of the very scanty light in the shrine where of course no brush, paper and dabber could be used. This yantra is supposed to be a rare one of very great sanctity by the community of the Mādhva Brahmans and is reproduced on the plate opposite to this page. Regarding its interpretation I beg to invite the help of Mādhva scholars who may be interested in the subject.

(3) The unfinished northern gōpura of the Rāmasvāmin temple at Tādpatri which on account of its exquisite sculptures has been already included in the list of conserved monuments in the Madras Presidency as No. 82, is in great danger of becoming disjointed by the spreading roots of two big pipul trees which now grow on it. These must be removed at once and the Archæological Superintendent may be requested to take the necessary steps. From one of the inscriptions dated in A.D. 1509 in the Rāmasvāmin temple, it is inferred that this beautiful gōpura was under construction in that year.

(4) The Bhīmēśvara temple at Drākshārāma which is epigraphically the most important of the temples in the Godavari district, if not in the whole of the Telugu country, is No. 14 in the List of Conserved Monuments of the Madras Presidency and is classed as "Private." The present trustee of the temple is the Zamindar of Ramachandrapuram who on account of certain private disputes with the servants of the temple has not been bestowing as much attention on its repairs as it really deserves. The roofs of the Nandi-mandapa and the Kalyāṇa-mandapa of the temple are leaky; the upper storey of the main temple also is in a similar condition and the enclosing compound wall has collapsed in two places. The grand gōpura at the western entrance into the temple is a huge and magnificent structure and has at its base sculptures of two royal figures who had evidently a hand in constructing it. From the inscriptions on the temple walls of the Chōla period, it is gathered that this western gōpura was the main entrance to the temple though now it has ceased to be so on account perhaps of Muhammadan occupation in the neighbourhood, the southern entrance being more commonly used by the people. The temple of Drākshārāma containing as it does the most representative collection of the records that go to make up the history of the Telugu country, it is highly important that no attempt should be spared in preserving this monument in perfect order and repair.

(5) Bhīmavaram near Samalkot is another such important place, with two historically interesting temples of Śiva (Bhīmēśvara) and Vishṇu (Vīranārāyaṇa) in it. These are under the direct supervision of the Zamindar of Piṭhāpuram and are kept in good repair. It is desirable, however, to include them in the list of conserved monuments so that further improvements, if any, made to these temples by the Zamindar, might also have the benefit of expert advice and co-operation. The Śiva temple is in a style quite similar to the one at Drākshārāma and if my inference is correct, it must, like the other temple, bear, on its walls and basement which are now covered with a thick coating of plaster throughout, inscriptions of great value and interest though not in very large numbers. I would strongly recommend therefore the removal of the plaster on the walls of this temple right up to the roof and the careful pointing of the crevices between stones with cement or other suitable material as not to interfere with the writings thereon. The peculiarly northern style of the Vishṇu temple at Bhīmavaram is by itself a strong recommendation for including it in the list of conserved monuments, besides its many inscribed pillars bearing valuable historical records.

(6) Mukhaliṅgam is a village in the Zamindari of Parlakimedi. It is a very ancient place being the site of the old capital of the kings of Kaliṅga (Ganjam and Vizagapatam) as proved by Rao Saheb G. V. Ramamurthi Pantulu in Epigraphia Indica, Volume IV, pages 187–188. The chief temple here is that of Mukhaliṅgēśvara which is richly sculptured. There are one or two other temples which are much neglected but deserve also protection on account of their historicity and design. Mukhaliṅgam itself is surrounded by evident ruins of a great city and by numerous mounds which are suggested to be sites of buried temples. One of the sculptured lintels in the Mukhaliṅgēśvara temple is plainly Buddhistic and excavations in and around Mukhaliṅgam are expected certainly to reveal more definite evidence as to the existence of Buddhism in this ancient capital town. Again from an examination of certain other sculptured panels, statues and paintings which are preserved in the temple and in the Rāja's choultry, I am inclined to believe that Śāktaism in one or other of the debased forms of latter-day Buddhism such as the Vajrāyana, with its blood-thirsty deities and its immoral worship, must have also been once prevalent at Mukhaliṅgam. The place and its temples richly deserve to be included in the list of conserved monuments and operations for exploration may also be advantageously commenced.

7. The Śrīkūrmam temple belongs to the Vizianagram estate. It is in perfect order and requires no precautionary measures on the part of the Government to conserve its antiquities. It is, however, strongly rumoured here that the temple contains within it two strong-rooms (temple treasuries) called Śaṅkhanidhi and Padmanidhi from time immemorial and that these are now hidden by two huge statues of Dvārapālas (guardian deities) placed at the narrow entrance into them on either side of the sacred shrine. Inscriptions of Śrīkūrmam to a certain extent also support this vague tradition, when they state that Padmanidhi was actually the name of the temple treasury. Śaṅkhanidhi, however, is not mentioned in the inscriptions. The association of the two names Śaṅkhanidhi and Padmanidhi together to denote the two treasuries of the temple is peculiar and reminds us of the two famous treasuries (nidhi) of which the god of wealth (Kubēra) is supposed to be the overlord. These are of course mythological treasures represented even to-day in some of the South Indian temples by two dwarf statues (not by Dvārapālas). Still, even, for the possible little truth that may be contained in the popular tradition there appears to be no harm in shifting the Dvārapāla images from their present position and examining the contents of the two bogus nidhis of the temple. The Śrī-Vaishṇava priests who are in charge of the institution are themselves very eager about it and do not at all seem scrupulous about the shifting of the images. Again there is an equally strong rumour in Śrīkūrmam—but in this case perhaps more reasonably—that a house-site in the main Sannidhi street opposite to the house of Mr. Tiruvenkata Ramanujacharya being dug up recently for laying foundations for a new house, people discovered the top of the stūpi of a buried temple. The attempt of building was at once given up, the diggings were re-filled and the site was declared unfit for a private house. No attempt, however, seems to have been made since to unearth the old building with which the stūpi was connected. This in my opinion should be done immediately as there is every likelihood of the rumour being proved true and of an ancient Buddhist stūpa being recovered. For, not far from Śrīkūrmam are a range of low hills near Sālihuṇḍam on the Amidalavalasa-Calingapatam road on which are conspicuous and extensive Buddhist remains and these are intimately connected with Śrīkūrmam by a myth in which a certain Śvētachakravarti and his fortress figure. The Superintendent, Archæological Survey, has been informed of the Buddhist remains at Sālihuṇḍam and he has promised that he will personally inspect the site in question as early as possible.

Tours of the Establishment.

8. Mr. G. Venkoba Rao the Senior Assistant of this office also toured from 1st December 1918 to 19th February 1919 in the Madura, Tanjore, Trichinopoly, South Arcot, North Arcot, Salem and the Coimbatore districts, for recopying or checking on the spot certain damaged inscriptions of earlier years, which are now in the course of publication. He was accompanied by the Acting Tamil Assistant Mr. A. S. Ramanatha Ayyar and along with his special mission he also carried out a part of the collection programme of copying inscriptions in about a dozen villages. Mr. C. R. Krishnama Achari having accompanied me to the Telugu districts for checking the Telugu inscriptions under publication was not available for finishing the village-war survey of the Tenali taluk and a few other places in the Telugu districts which had been put down for him. Most of the responsibility therefore of carrying out the programme of last year was left solely in the hands of Messrs. K. V. Subrahmanya Ayyar, G. V. Srinivasa Rao and K. R. Srinivasa Ayyangar each of whom toured for about three months in the course of the year between August 1918 and March 1919. During this period they finished examining the villages of the Tenkasi taluk left over from the Programme of 1917–18, the village-war survey of the Shiyali taluk (Tanjore district) and of the Harpanahalli taluk (Bellary district) and examination of 24 other villages noted in the programme printed with G.O. No. 1172, Home (Education), dated 6th September 1918. They also visited a dozen other new villages not included in the programme but had been brought to the notice of this office for urgent action either by the Archæological Superintendent or by other officers. Thus the only items of the programme which had to be omitted for want of time and men were those of the Telugu taluk of Tenali in the Guntur district and some 18 other villages. These are repeated in the current programme for 1919–20 printed at page 9 below.

The Year's Work.

9. The volume of work done by the office during the year under report has surpassed all expectations. The activity in the publication section and the work in connexion with the publication of South-Indian Inscriptions has been already referred to in paragraph 4 above. It remains only to speak of the collection and other miscellaneous work turned out by the office during the year. The drawing up of the Annual Report for 1917–18 and reading of the proofs thereof occupied the whole establishment almost till the middle of July 1918 when the final copy of it was submitted to Government. In August 1918 the Government Order regarding publication came into operation and tours for collection began. The result of the latter has been the thorough examination of 398 villages and a collection of 900 new inscriptions. Of these, 200 are not included in the lists as these were copied and transcribed on the spot for the volume of South-Indian Inscription Texts now under publication (see above, paragraph 4). All the remaining 700 records have been transcribed for the report; but will have to be carefully revised once again before the end of August 1919, when they will be handed over to the publication section.

In the course of the year Mr. Longhurst, the Superintendent of Archæology, sent for examination four estampages containing 8 inscriptions from Timmalāpuram (Hospet taluk, Bellary district) which are new and historically interesting. These are retained in the office and included in Appendix B of the report as Nos. 300 to 307 of 1918. He again sent two estampages from Chejerla, Guntūr district, one of which contained a very late record of the 18th century and the other corresponded with No. 157 of 1889 which had been already examined by this office. Five photographs of inscribed antiquities from Amarāvati were also examined for Mr. Longhurst.

An inscription found on a small bell from Wesali in the Akyab district, Burma, was sent for examination by Mr. Taw Sein Ko, Archæological Superintendent, Burma. It was an inscription in Gupta characters of about the 8th century A.D. and Buddhistic. The exact nature of the gift was not ascertained on account of the damaged state of the record; but a text and translation of the inscription so far as could be made out was supplied to Mr. Taw Sein Ko. A further communication from the same officer regarding certain interesting events in the life of Kyanzittha, king of Pagan, revealed by some Telaing inscriptions intimately connecting him with Rājēndra-Chōla Kulōttuṅga I, the Chōla king of Tanjore, led to several important questions which were all duly studied with reference to Tamil inscriptions. It was found that the astounding statements of the Telaing inscriptions, that Kulōttuṅga resided at Pegu or Kaḍāram, that he visited Pagan bearing tributes to Kyanzittha, that he presented the latter with a daughter and that he became himself a convert to Buddhism could none of them be corroborated. The historic and epigraphic connexion of Burma with Southern India which is thus being eagerly inquired into by Mr. Taw Sein Ko naturally led him to take up the question of the origin of the script and numerals of Burma. I have given him my opinion that these have closer relation with the Telugu and Kannaḍa than with the Tamil. Five inscriptions in the Kanarese script and one in the Nāgarī were examined for Mr. Yazdani of the Archæological Department of Hyderabad.

10. Of the 22 copper-plate records noted in Appendix A of the Annual report for 1918, one set (No. 3) was kindly presented to the Museum by Mr. Muddappa, a ryot of Timmalāpuram, hamlet of Nāgalāpuram, Rayadrug taluk, and four sets were purchased for Rs. 140 by the Superintendent, Government Museum, on my recommendation. The others were returned to the owners as these were not willing to part with their documents.

Twelve copper-plate inscriptions have been secured for examination during the year. Of these three were sent to me by M.R.Ry. Diwan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai Avargal, with the information that they 'were found in the soil in the field of one Gulam Husain Sahib of Udayagiri (Nellore district) when he was getting it repaired on 13th January 1919.' With the three sets of copper-plates which together contain nine copper-sheets, were also found one broken metal bell, one broken metallic kūja-pot and seven broken plates. These are of the ordinary kind and are not of much interest. The inscribed plates give an elaborate list of the lively achievements of a set of merchants of the Vīra-Balaja community whose eulogy though it may here and there smack much of the impossible and the ridiculous shows still the high ideals that guided the creed of that community. I have referred to many earlier references to the mercantile communities in my former reports. These merchants had evidently an extensively organised guild 'whose ornaments', as the record says, 'were the numerous virtues (acquired) under the guidance of the five hundred heroes (that controlled it), who were resplendent on account of their truth, cleanliness, religious tradition, noble behaviour, politeness, humility, knowledge, the vow of carrying out the high principles of Vīra-Balanja (religion) and their sacred Garuḍa banner.'

Six sets of copper-plates collected by Mr. Chilakuri Narayana Rao Pantulu, M.A., L.T., of Chicacole for original research and publication under the guidance of his teacher Rao Sahib G. V. Ramamurti Pantulu of Parlākimedi were very kindly placed at my disposal for preliminary study and inclusion in the Epigraphical Report. Mr. Narayana Rao takes great interest in original epigraphical work and the plates in question will be published in the Epigraphia Indica under the joint editorship of himself and his teacher Mr. Ramamurti Pantulu.

All the six sets of plates refer themselves to the Eastern Gaṅga kings of Kaliṅga. No. 3 which belongs to the time of Vajrahasta III corresponds in the introductory portion completely with the published inscriptions of Nadagam and Narasapatam and is dated in Śaka 971, which is the earliest date for this king known so far. The next inscription No. 4 giving the very same genealogy takes us one step further to Vajrahasta's son Rājarāja surnamed Dēvēndravarman. We are told that Vajrahasta ruled for 33 years and married queen Anaṅgamahādēvī. The date of the coronation of Rājarāja is given in ll. 43 to 46 to be 'Śaka 992, Jyaishṭha, Ashṭami, Simhalegna, Uttara-Phalguni, Thursday, and the bright fortnight.' This date of coronation given for Rājarāja fits in quite correctly with the period of rule, viz., 33 years ascribed to his father Vajrahasta III. A record of the 15th year of his reign combined with the Śaka date 976 was noticed in the last Annual Report, Part II, page 138. Still another inscription in the same series now secured (Copper-plate No. 6), gives the regular genealogy of the Gaṅgas down to Rājarāja and states that the latter ruled for 8 years and took for his chief queen Rājasundarī, a daughter of king Rājēndra-Chōḷa. This Rājēndra-Chōḷa has already been identified by Dr. Fleet with Kulōttuṅga I, who had the other name Rājēndra-Chōḷa II. Their son was Anantavarma-Chōḍagaṅga who was crowned in Śaka 999.

The three remaining records of Mr. Chilakuri Narayana Rao's collection belong to the earlier Gaṅga period between which and the later represented by the copper-plates mentioned in the previous paragraph, no proper connexion has yet been established. These earlier ones are generally dated in the Gaṅga era whose initial year is still disputed. The two plates (Copper-plate Nos. 7 and 8) which bear no date refer to king Dēvēndravarman, son of Rājēndravarman and to Anantavarman, son of Dēvēndravarman, and perhaps supply three successive generations, though by no means certainly. In the last Annual Report, Part II, page 137, reference was made to the plates of Rājēndravarman, son of Mahārāja Anantavarman, which are now in the possession of Śri Raja Sahib of Mandasa. Copper-plate No. 5 is of special interest in that it belongs to the Gaṅga king Madhukāmārṇava, son of Anantavarman and bears the date 526 of 'the prosperous and victorious year of the rule of the Gaṅgas.' This is an abnormally high figure for the Gāṅgēya-Śaka the latest of which recorded in Professor Kielhorn's lists is 359. But if it is correctly given it may give us a sure date for Madhukāmārṇava, the only king of that name that figures in the later Gaṅga genealogy. But here he is not the son of Anantavarman. The Nandi seal which holds the plates together is not of the usual type. It is a negative mould which pressed on a lump of wax or other soft material gives us the recumbant bull, the aṅkuśa, lamp-stands and the crescent, in high relief.

The two copper-plates (Copper-plate Nos. 1 and 2) received from the District Munsif of Ambāsamudram, Tinnevelly district, are of a very late date issued in the time of the Nāyakas of Madura in Śaka 1617.

All the twelve copper-plates registered in Appendix A will be negotiated for, for deposit in the Government Museum and such of the important ones as may not be presented will be recommended for purchase.

11. One stone inscription of about the 9th century A.D. which was long lying buried outside the Bhīmēśvara temple at Bhīmavaram, was removed and planted within the compound of that temple, in order to avoid further injury being done to it by cowherd boys and cattle. With this stone which records the suicide committed by a saintly man called Kēdāra-Śakti of evidently the Pāśupata sect were also found two other stones bearing similar figures and these too were removed to the inner court-yard of the same temple. There are eight small written slabs in the store-room of the Drākshārāma temple, which bear inscriptions of the early Eastern Chālukya kings and a bronze elephant which belongs to the 14th century. They would be valuable acquisition to the archæological section of the Madras Museum if the Zamindar of Rāmachandrapuram, the present trustee, could be induced to part with these. There are also other fine images in the store-room of the Drākshārāma temple which are not used. These too may be acquired.

Appendix E.—Dates from Appendices A, B and C to the Annual Report for 1918–19, calculated by M.R.Ry. Diwan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai Avargal, M.A., B.L., LL.B., I.S.O.

Note.—The following abbreviations have been employed in these statements:

1. Śu. and ba., respectively, for Śuklapaksha and Bahulapaksha, the bright and dark fortnights of the lunar month.

2. The ending moments of tithis and nakshatras are expressed as decimal parts of the day, and in a normal date the first decimal shows the ending moment of the tithi and the second the ending moment of the nakshatra. Thus the result—

A.D. 1510: Monday, Decr. 30; ·94; ·50 means that on the day in question the tithi quoted in the inscription ended at ·94 of the day, i.e., 56½ ghaṭikas after mean sunrise, while the nakshatra quoted in the inscription ended at ·50 of the day, i.e., 30 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise. A key to this decimal notation will be found in the book-marker supplied with "Indian Ephemeris" A.D. 1800—2000 by the author.

When only the tithi is quoted, its ending moment is shown by decimal figures next to the day of the month, thus, "A.D. 1289, Monday, Nov. 28, ·70" is a convenient way of indicating the fact that a tithi ended at ·70 of the day (42 ghaṭikas after sunrise) on Nov. 28 A.D. 1289, which was Monday.

3. When a tithi or nakshatra that is quoted in a record only commenced on the week-day quoted in the same record the fact is indicated by the symbols f.d.t. or f.d.n. Thus:

"Wednesday 6 Ap. A.D. 1384; ·68; f.d.n. ·29" means that the tithi quoted in the inscription ended at ·68 (= 41 ghaṭikas after sunrise) on Wednesday, 6 Ap. A.D. 1384, but that the nakshatra quoted in the inscription only commenced on Wednesday and came to end at ·29 (= 17½ ghaṭikas after sunrise) on the following day, Thursday.

Similarly "Friday, Ap. 26; f.d.t. ·08; f.d.n. ·13" means that the tithi and nakshatra quoted were current for the greater part of Friday, but came to end next day at ·08 (= 5 ghaṭikas after sunrise) and ·13 (= 8 ghaṭikas after sunrise), respectively, on Saturday.

4. An asterisk after the figure indicating a Śaka year (e.g. Ś. 1235*) means, as in Kielhorn's list of dates, that the year is current, not expired.

5. When it is necessary to distinguish the name of a nakshatra from that of a month and generally, as a useful convention, the names of nakshatras are printed between inverted commas, thus "Magha" is the nakshatra, Māgha is the month.

,,	489	1[4]th year, Aṉi, Monday, Tiruvōṇam = Monday, 5th June A.D. 999, which fell within the 14th year of the reign of Rājakēsarivarman Rājarāja I, as determined by Kielhorn. Reign commenced between 25th June and 25th July A.D. 985. (Ep. Ind. Vol. IX, page 217.) On this day nakshatra Śravaṇa or Tiruvōṇam ended about 38 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise.
		Parakēsarivarman Rājēndra-Chōḷa.
1919	187	29th year, Mithuna, Sunday, Viśākhā. = Sunday, 22nd June A.D. 1040. On this day Viśākha nakshatra commenced at 7 ghaṭikas after sunrise, ending next day at 6 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise.
,,	189	16th year, Mithuna, Friday, Uttiraṭṭādi. In Mithuna, A.D. 1027, at the beginning of 16th year, Uttiraṭṭādi commenced on Tuesday 27th June and ended on Wednesday 28th June. In Mithuna, A.D. 1028, at the end of the 16th year, the same nakshatra began on Sunday 16th June and ended on Monday 17th June. The date seems irregular.
		Rājakēsarivarman Rājādhirājadēva I.
	176	30th year, Mīna, Wednesday, Uttiram. = Wednesday 2nd March A.D. 1048. In Mīna A.D. 1047–48, which was the 30th year of this reign, nakshatra Uttiram or Uttara-Phalguni began on Wednesday 2nd March A.D. 1048 at 13 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise and ended next day at 12 ghaṭikas after sunrise.
,,	210	Year lost, Makara, śu. di. Wednesday, Tiruvūdirai (Ārdrā). Details cannot be verified for want of regnal year. Every three or seven years, Wednesday in any month would be a day of "Ārdrā."

1919	179	7th year, Mithuna, ba. di. 4, Thursday, Aviṭṭam. The day intended was apparently Thursday, 3rd June A.D. 1059, on which day nakshatra "Aviṭṭam" or "Śravishṭha" ended at 20½ ghaṭikas after mean sunrise. But the tithi was ba. 5 and not ba. 4 and it ended at 27½ ghaṭikas after mean sunrise. Note.—Ba. 4 probably an error for ba. 5.
,,	180	6th year, Vṛiśchika, ba. di. 13, Tuesday, Svāti. In 1057 A.D. which fell in the 6th year of the reign, Tuesday 25th November (= Vṛiśchika) was a day of "Svāti," which nakshatra began at 3½ ghaṭikas after sunrise ending next day at 2 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise: but the tithi was the beginning of the 12th, not of the 13th in Bahuḷa-paksha.
,,	181	6th year, Mēsha, śu. di. 13, Hasta, Thursday. =Thursday, 9th April A.D. 1058, on which day Śukla 13 ended at 36½ ghaṭikas after mean sunrise and nakshatra "Hasta" at 41½ ghaṭikas.
,,	183	7th year, Kanyā, Sunday, Pūraḍam (Pūrvāshāḍhā). = Sunday, 27th September A.D. 1058, on which day nakshatra "Pūrva-Āshāḍhā" ended at 29 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise.
		Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīrarājēndradēva.
,,	376	6th year, Mīna, ba. di. 3, Thursday, Śittarai. = Thursday, 12th Mar. A.D. 1069 on which day ba. 3 began at 54½ ghaṭikas after mean sunrise and nakshatra "Chitra" ended at 21 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise. The tithi was properly ba. 2 and not ba. 3.
		Rājakēsarivarman Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa.
,,	177	[6]th year, Siṁha, ba. di. 11. Punarvasu, [Tuesday]. Perhaps Tuesday, 8th September A.D. 1075, when Siṁha ba. 11 ended at 58 ghaṭikas but the day was one of Pushya (ending at 22 ghaṭikas), Punarvasu having ended on previous day.
,,	178	9th year, Ṛishabha, śu. di. 7 Āślēsha, Thursday. = A.D. 1079, 9th May, Thursday; f.d.t. ·31; ·63.
,,	184	9th year, Karkaṭaka, ba. di. 9, Rōhiṇi, Thursday. = A.D. 1079, 25th July, Thursday; ·38; ·93.
,,	186	9th year, Mithuna, ba. di. 3, Thursday, Pūraṭṭādi. Mithuna, Pūraṭṭādi was a Monday in A.D. 1078 and a Saturday in A.D. 1079. The date seems irregular.
,,	198	27th year, Karkaṭaka, śu. di. 2, Pushya, Wednesday. No suitable date in A.D. 10 96, 1097 or 1098.
,,	201	[2]8th year, Mēsha, ba. di. 13, Uttiraṭṭādi, Friday. = A.D. 1098, 2nd April, Thursday; ·48; ·60.
,,	212	13th year, Siṁha, ba. di. Monday, Ekādaśi, Punarvasu. In A.D. 1083, Siṁha ba. 11 and Punarvasu fell on Saturday; but in A.D. 1082, Siṁha ba. 11 and Punarvasu fell on Monday ending at ·79 and ·48 respectively.

,,	380	3rd year, Siṁha [ba.] di. 9, Monday, Pūraḍam. =Monday, 19th August A.D. 1135; ·35; f.d.n. ·62.
,,	528	10th year, Makara, śu. di. 9, Monday, Viśākhā. =Monday, 11th January A.D. 1143; ·62; ·42.
		Note.—It is note worthy that these three epigraphs, as proved by their dates, should belong to the reign of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa II whose dated inscription, have so far occurred only in Telugu districts (vide the article on this reign by the present writer in Epigraphic Indica, Vol. XI, page 287). There are no dates satisfying the given details in the reign of either Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I or Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III. The blank in No. 380 of 1918, which has been read conjecturally as "bahula" should be "sukla," while "pūrvapaksha" or "su. di." in No. 528 of 1918, which is quite clear in the impression, is clearly an error for "apurapaksha" or "ba. di.," the combination of su. 9 and nak. "Viśākha" in Makana month not being possible except in aparapaksha. See the present writer's Eye-table.
		Parakēsarivarman Vikrama-Chōḷa.
,,	438	5th year, Karkaṭaka, śu. di. Wednesday, Trayōdaśi, Uttiraṭṭādi. = A.D. 1122, Wednesday, 19th July; ·18; f.d.n. ·10. The nakshatra "Uttiraṭṭadi" seems to be an error for "Uttirādam."

		Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III.
,,	505	26th year, Karkaṭaka, śu. di. 13, Wednesday, Uttirāḍam. = A.D. 1203, July 23, Wednesday, ·60; f.d.n. ·35.
,,	512	37th year, Mēsha, ba. di. 3, Sunday, Mūlā. The day intended was presumably Sunday, 19 April, A.D. 1215, on which day Nak. "Mūlā" ended at 14 ghat. after mean sunrise; but the tithi was ba. 4 not ba. 3.
,,	515	26th year, Ṛishabha, Monday, Mūlā. = A.D. 1204, May 17, Monday, Nak. "Mūla" ended at 26 ghat. after mean sunrise.
,,	519	27th year, Simha, ba. di. 13, Tuesday, Āyilyam. = A.D. 1204, August 24, Tuesday; ·91; ·72.
,,	520	26th year, Mēsha, śu. di. 5, Wednesday, Punarvasu. The day intended was perhaps Wednesday, 7 April, A.D. 1204, on which day Nak. "Punarvasu" began at 13 ghat. after mean sunrise, ending next day at 9 ghat.; but the tithi was śu. 6 not śu. 5.
,,	531	13th year, Vṛiśchika, ba. di. 26. Wednesday, Pushya. If '26' means the day of solar month then there is no suitable date in the present reign except in A.D. 1195, the 18th year, and that date is Wednesday, 22nd November, A.D. 1195; f.d.n. ·17.
,,	533	36th year, Makara, śu. di. 9, Tuesday, Kārttigai. = A.D. 1214, January 21; Tuesday; f.d.t. ·08; ·62.
		Tribhuvanachakravartin Rājarāja (III).
,,	389	24th year, Kumbha, śu. di. 5, Monday, Anisham. Should be ba. 5; but even this did not combine with "Anusham" on a Monday in the 24th year of this reign A.D. 1239-40.

,,	518	2nd year, Makara, śu. di. 13, Friday, Mṛigaśīrsha. A.D. 1305, Jan ·8; Friday; f.d.t. ·70; ·52. A.D. 1278, Jan. 7, Friday, f.d.t. ·58; ·52. The first is the date probably intended as it fell in the second year of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya who ascended the throne in A.D. 1303 and for whom a Śaka date was recently found.
,,	536	9th year, Tulā, śu. di. 4, Monday, Makhā. Irregular, because śu. 4 and "Makhā" cannot combine in Tulā month.

PART II.

Excluding the 200 stone inscriptions newly copied this year but not included in the appendices to the report, since they had been taken up for immediate publication, most of the remaining 700 records are assignable to specific dynasties of kings. Two hundred and seventy-four epigraphs belong to the Chōlas, 60 to the Pāṇḍyas, 89 to Vijayanagara, 38 to the Western Chālukyaṣ, 14 to the Pallavas, 15 to the Hoysalas, 12 to the Śambuvarāyas and 8 to the Yādavas. Besides these, there are some records of the Rāshṭrakūṭas, the Eastern Chālukyas, the Nāyakas of Madura and Tanjore, the Mysore Chiefs, the Gajapatis, etc. About 160 miscellaneous inscriptions in the collection cannot be definitely ascribed to any particular dynasty.

Antiquities of the Shiyali taluk.

2. Shiyali, one of the taluks selected for village-war inspection during the year 1918–19, was important in ancient times in more respects than one, and it may be said, that few tracts could compare with it in point of antiquarian interest. Here was Kāvirippūmpaṭṭiṇam, the once richest city of Southern India and the capital of the Chōla empire for some time. It was picturesquely situated at the mouth of the river Kāvērī and foreign ships laden with rich cargo touched at this important port. In its best days it contained several massive structures of various descriptions. The description of the city as given in the Tamil classical works, such as, Paṭṭiṇappālai composed about the time of Karikāla in the 6th century A.D., Śilappadigāram assigned to A.D. 756 by Diwan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai, etc., shows the prosperity it once enjoyed, its wealth and industrial activity. According to some, it is the Chabaris Emporium mentioned by Ptolemy in the 1st century A.D. The inscriptions secured from the modern Kāvērippaṭṇam and its vicinity leave no doubt as to its identity with Kāvirippūmpaṭṭiṇam alias Pugār, though the monuments of Pallavanīchcharam and Sāyāvanēśvara are not of such early date as could be expected.

Śaiva places.

3. Other places in the taluk which contain ecclesiastical monuments of the 7th century A.D., celebrated in the pious hymns of Jñānasambanda and which were visited during the year under report are (1) Tirunallūrperumaṇam, (2) Tirumahēndrapalli, (3) Teṇṭirumullaivāyil, (4) Tirukkalikkāmūr, (5) Tiruveṇkāḍu, (6) Kīlai-Tirukkāṭṭuppalli, (7) Tirukkurugāvūr-Velladai, (8) Śīrgāli (Shiyali) which bore 12 other names, (9) Tirukkōlakkā, (10) Tiruppullirukkuvēḷūr now known as Vaidīśvaraṇkōyil and (11) Tiruppuṅgūr. Of these eleven places which are situated on the banks of the Kāvērī, Tirunallūrperumaṇam now called Āchchāpuram, Shiyali and Tirukkōlakkā are closely connected with the life of the Śaiva saint Jñānasambanda. It was at Shiyali that this devotee of Brahman parentage who is said to have lisped in numbers even from his third year was born and brought up; and Tirukkōlakkā, which is almost a suburb of Shiyali, marks the spot where he obtained a pair of gold cymbals as a reward for the devotional songs which he composed and as an incentive for the prosecution of his life-work, i.e., the spread of Hindu religion. His images are largely worshipped in Śaiva temples in the south under the name Āḷuḍaiya-Piḷḷaiyār and are distinguished from those of other saints by a pair of cymbals which they are made to hold in their hands. At Tirunallūrperumaṇam the saint was, on the direction of his parents, wedded to the daughter of the pious Nambāṇḍārnambi and, strange as it may appear, entered godhood on the very day of the marriage celebration together with all his relatives who had gathered on the spot. In all these three places, Jñānasambanda receives prominent worship, and annual or monthly festivities, are conducted in his honour even to this day. Also the inscriptions of these places record munificent grants made for the purpose. The name of the consort of Jñānasambanda is not given in the Periyapurāṇam which describes the lives of the Śaiva saints, but from No. 527 of Appendix B it looks as if her name was Śokkiyār. Though none of the eleven places mentioned above has been omitted in the Dēvāram hymns of our saint, by far the largest number amounting to very nearly 700 verses has been sung in praise of the god at Shiyali and ten stanzas each have been contributed to Tirukkōlakkā and Tirunallūrperumaṇam.

4. Besides the above-mentioned Śiva temples, the taluk contains as many ancient Vishṇu temples celebrated in the hymns of the Nālāyiraprabandham. These are found in and around Nāṅgūr. They have been mostly sung by Tirumaṅgai-Āḻvār whose birth-place is believed to be Kuraiyūr, a hamlet of Tiruvāli-Tirumaṅgai, a village in Tiruvāli-nāḍu. The saint having flourished in the 8th century A.D., it is certain that the following eleven temples viz., (i) Tirumaṇimāḍakkōyil, (ii) Tiruvaiguṇḍa-Viṇṇagaram, (iii) Tiru-Arimēya-Viṇṇagaram, (iv) Tiruttēvanārtogai, (v) Tiruvaṇpurushōttamam, (vi) Tiruchchemboṉseykōyil, (vii) Tirutteṟṟiyambalam, (viii) Tirumaṇikkūḍam, (ix) Tirukkāvalampāḍi, (x) Tiruvellakkaḷam and (xi) Tirupārthaṇpaḷḷi should have been in existence prior to that date.

Vaishṇava places celebrated in the Nālāyiraprabandham.

5. Thus though the taluk is studded with ancient shrines celebrated in the hymns of the Dēvāram and the Nālāyiraprabandham and is remarkable as containing the birth-places of two of the greatest religious reformers of the 7th and 8th centuries A.D. who have earned immortal fame by their works, it is strange that the very places where the scene of their activity was laid should be so poor in respect of any architectural remains worth the name. The only structure that could be cited as an example of antique art is the Śvētavanēśvara temple at Tiruveṇkāḍu which according to the lithic records engraved on the walls of its central shrine cannot be taken further back than to the end of the 10th century A.D., as, at best, the temple could have been constructed only in the days of Rājarāja I. A few other structures such as those at Shiyali, Vaidīśvaraṇkōyil, Tiruppuṅgūr and Tirumullaivāyil have been thoroughly renovated in modern times leaving no trace of their antiquarian remains, and sometimes without even a notice to this department. It is a striking feature, quite peculiar to this tract, that many of the ancient shrines, mostly Vaishṇava and a few Śaiva, remain to this day as brick structures, while only a few have been built of stone in later times.

Paucity of architectural remains.

6. Among the causes for the absence of early stone monuments may be mentioned, in the first place, the absence of hills in the vicinity of the taluk to supply the necessary material and, secondly, the encroachment of the sea on this side of the Coromandel coast which could be inferred from the Tamil literature to have occurred several times and which in consequence must have washed away at one sweep such of the ancient buildings as may have existed. In Śilappadigāram, canto xxviii, we find an account of an inundation which resulted in the destruction of the ancient Chōḷa capital Kāvirippūmpaṭṭiṇam. It may be noted that this encroachment did not confine itself solely to the coast towns and villages but extended, on one occasion, as far as Shiyali which is 12 miles from the coast. This is evident from the writings of Jñānasambanda and some stone epigraphs which describe the incident poetically that "Kaḷumalam (i.e., Shiyali) floated when the sea carried away (all the surrounding parts)".

Causes for the absence of early monuments.

7. Another result of these inundations was that most of the lands in the taluk got submerged and silted up with sand and had to be reclaimed at much cost. Nos. 504 and 505 of Appendix B acquaint us with the cost of converting such land into fields fit for cultivation. In one case (No. 504 of 1918), while the cost of six mā of land was 2,000 kāśu, the cost of reclamation was 3,000 kāśu. Other epigraphs show that many lands which were originally given to temples had to remain uncultivated perhaps under similar circumstances.

Reclamation of lands in Tiruveṇkāḍu.

The Pallavas.

8. Only two inscriptions of Pallava kings were secured during the year under review. Of these No. 158 of Appendix C, dated in the 3rd year of the reign of Vijaya-Nandivikramavarman, states that the temple of Tigaittiṟal–Vishṇugṛiha at Kiḷiñalūr in Ōymā-nāḍu was built by a certain Tigaittiṟalār and No. 283 of the same appendix, dated in the 26th year of the reign of Vijaya-Kampavikramavarman, records that a private individual of Kulattūr in Teṉṉārṟūr-nāḍu, a subdivision of Kuṉṟa-kōṭṭam, purchased some lands and presented them as ērippaṭṭi, evidently for keeping the tank at Maḍam in proper repair.

Cholas.

9. As has been already pointed out, the largest number in the current year's collection belongs to the Chōḷas. The earliest of these (No. 353 of 1918) introduces a hitherto unknown queen of Parāntaka I, named Âdittaṉ Kaṟṟaḷippirāṭṭi.

An unknown queen of Parāntaka I.

10. Of the inscriptions of Rājakēsarivarman, without any distinguishing marks of identification, copied during the year, none could be safely attributed to Āditya I. Nos. 346 and 348 of Appendix B are dated in the 5th year of a Rājakēsarivarman when a sōmagrahaṇa occurred in the month of Kaṇṇi and register gifts by Mahimālaya Irukkuvēḷ alias Parāntakaṉ Vīraśōḷaṉ. The latter part of the chief's name suggests that he must have been originally employed under Parāntaka I. The Rājakēsarivarman of these inscriptions must, therefore, belong to one or the other of the only two Rājakēsarivarmans, i.e., Gaṇḍarāditya or Parāntaka II that followed him prior to the succession of Rājarāja I. No. 349 of 1918 provides for the singing of the Tiruppadiyam in the temple at Paḷḷūr, while No. 491 mentions a body of weavers called "Pārthivaśēgaraṭṭeriñja-Kaikkōlar" who might have been so named after Rājarāja I.

Rājakēsarivarman.

11. Sure records of Rājarāja I with the introduction "Tirumagaḷpōla" are not few and some of them are interesting. We learn from Nos. 442 and 448 of Appendix B that Vāṉavaṉmahādēvi alias Tribhuvanamahādēvi was one of his queens and the mother of Rājēndra-Chōḷa I. A record of the latter (No. 460 of 1918) also states that Tribhuvanamahādēvi was his mother. No. 443 refers to the treasures which Rājarāja I had taken from the Chēra king and No. 449 mentions another queen of his, viz., Kūttaṉ Vīrāṇiyār. Rājarāja's elder sister, Kundavai, is distinctly spoken of in the inscriptions of Dādāpuram as the daughter of Poṉmāḷigaiyiṟṟuñjiṉadēva thus clearly settling the identification of Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II with Poṉmāḷigaittuñjiṉadēva. From the Tanjore inscriptions published in Volume II of South-Indian Inscriptions we know the active part played by this lady in the munificent gifts made to the temple of Rājarājēśvara built by Rājarāja I. The Dādāpuram records state that she built three temples at that place, one to Śiva called Ravikulamāṇikka-Īśvara, another to Vishṇu named Kundavai-Viṇṇagar-Āḻvār and a third to Jina called Kundavai-Jināḷaya and made costly gifts to them. No more instances are necessary to show the religious toleration of the times. The Śiva and Vishṇu temples built by this princess exist at present, but there is no trace of the Jina shrine.

12. The names of two of the officers of the king, viz., Sēnāpati Mummuḍiśōḷa-Brahmārāyaṉ (No. 14 of Appendix C) and Parākramaśōḷa-Mūvēndavēḷāṉ (No. 17 of Appendix C) suggest that Rājarāja I bore the surnames Mummuḍi-Chōḷa and Parākrama-Chōḷa.

Rājarāja's surnames Mummuḍi-Chōḷa and Parākrama-Chōḷa.

13. No. 444 of 1918 from Tiruvenkāḍu which is dated in the 6th year of Rājakēsarivarman is probably also a record of Rājarāja I, who in the earlier years of his reign was known chiefly by that title. The object of this inscription is to engrave on stone the grants made by Parāntakaṉ Mādēvaḍigaḷār alias Śembiyaṉmādēviyār, the queen of Gaṇḍarādityadēva and the mother of Uttama-Chōḷa. In the body of the inscription, she is stated to be the daughter of Maḷavaraiyar or Maḷavarkōṉ. The grants consisted of copper vessels, ornaments and images made of gold and silver set with precious stones, such as pearls rājāvindam, māṇikkam, pavaḷam, kuppi, vayiram, maratakam, etc., presented by the lady at different times. The inscription commences by saying (1) that in the 4th year of the reign of Uttama-Chōḷa, she presented certain copper vessels and that in the 6th year of the same king she gave gold ornaments set with a number of gems. In the 6th year of Rājakēsarivarman, the same queen is stated to have given a gold pot probably for the pinnacle, a gold image of Chandraśēkhara of great weight and a large number of gold and silver ornaments also set with several precious stones. Incidentally the inscription says that in the same year the queen of Uttama-Chōḷa named Sēṭṭaṇśorambaiyār alias Tribhuvanamādēviyār presented a silver pot and then enumerates other gifts made by the queen Śēmbiyaṇmādēvi in the same year and in the 10th and 11th years of Parakēsarivarman. Then after referring to some more gifts made in the 4th year of Uttama-Chōḷa, the record says that in the 6th year of Rājakēsarivarman, the assembly of Nāṅgūr in Nāṅgūr-nāḍu who had received in the 2nd year of Gaṇḍarādityadēva alias Mummuḍi-Chōḷadēva, 400 kāśu presented by Parāntakaṇmādēvigaḷār alias Sembiyaṇmādēviyār, the queen of Gaṇḍarāditya, the mother of Uttama-Chōḷa and the daughter of Maḷavaraiyar for bathing the god on all the monthly saṁkrāntis, not having made the required land provision at that time, now allotted lands in the southern hamlet of the village.

Gifts of Śembiyaṉmādēvi at Tiruvenkāḍu.

Gaṇḍarāditya alias Mummuḍi Chōḷa.

14. This inscription is of some interest as showing the religious bent of mind of the widowed queen of Gaṇḍarāditya in undertaking costly charitable works, about which references have already been made in previous epigraphical reports. From this record we learn, for the first time, that there was on the Chōḷa throne a ruling king who bore the name Gaṇḍarāditya and the surname Mummuḍi-Chōḷa. Since the inscription is dated in the 6th year of Rājakēsarivarman and refers to the reign of Uttama-Chōḷa, it is fairly certain that it is one of Rājarāja I, who, it may be remarked, was the first sovereign after Uttama-Chōḷa to assume the title, Rājakēsarivarman. In this connexion, it may also be said that palæographical considerations do not militate against this view. Still, it is not easy to determine who the new king mentioned in it is. In the first place it is very doubtful if the record in question enumerates the presents made by Śembiyaṇmādēvi in any chronological order at all. If it does, it should not, after enumerating the gifts made in the 4th and 6th years of Uttama-Chōḷa and the 3rd year of Rājakēsarivarman (i.e., Rājarāja because Uttama-Chōḷa's queen figures as donor in it), revert back to the 10th and 11th years of Parakēsarivarman and again to the 4th year of Uttama-Chōḷa and then again to the 6th and 2nd years of Rājakēsarivarman. As such, anything said about the identity of the new king must be purely conjectural. Mummuḍi-Chōḷa known so far is one of the recognized surnames of Rājarāja I. If, however, we suppose that the reference in the inscription is actually to Gaṇḍarāditya, the second son of Parāntaka I, it follows that he must have had the hitherto-unknown surname of Mummuḍi-Chōḷa which like Irumuḍi-Chōḷa, the surname of his father Parāntaka I, indicated probably the third great ruling king of the revived Vijayālaya line of the Chōḷas.

Trumpets blown to summon village assemblies.

15. One of the inscriptions of the year's collection (No. 156 of Appendix C), dated in the 16th year of Rājarāja I (A.D. 1001), reveals to us the fact that the members of a village assembly were called together by the blowing of a trumpet and that the herald was entitled to get daily 2 śōṟu from the village. Another interesting information regarding village assemblies is that the members met together and transacted business even during night (Nos. 180 and 186 of Appendix C), though in the generality of cases, it is found that business was conducted during day time.

An officer who inquired into the management of temple lands and expenses.

16. A record of the 17th year of Rājarāja I states that one of the officers called Ārūraṇ Udaiyadivākaraṇ Aruṇmoḻi Mūvēndavēḷār of Araiśūr while camping at Paṭṭiṇam in Paṭṭiṇa-nāḍu, a subdivision of Ōymā-nāḍu, made inquiries as to the villages that were owned by the temple of Bhūmīśvara and on the report of the dēvakanmis that since the time when Marakkāṇam was assigned as dēvadāna to the temple, no scale of expenses had been fixed for it, he at their request called before his presence, all the dēva-kanmis and the farmers who cultivated the temple lands, ascertained the produce of the dēvadāna land and drew up in detail a scale of expenditure for the temple. The inscription under reference shows that in the 11th century A.D. a responsible officer was appointed to conduct inquiries into the lands owned by temples, to see whether the provisions made were regularly met and if not to fix a scale of expenses for them. In previous reports it has been pointed out that Madhurāntakaṇ Gaṇḍarādittaṇ and Tiruvaḍigaḷ Śāttaṇ were such important state officials who discharged similar functions and even went to the length of imposing fines on defaulters (A.R. for 1918, p. 142).

Ēri-āyam.

17. Some of the inscriptions of Rājēndra-Chōḷa I record a few fresh facts. From No. 464 of Appendix B we learn that Nakkaṇ Karukkamarndāḷ alias Pañchavaṇmādēvī was his queen. The name Kalikaṇṭhaka occurs for the first time in the records of Rājēndra-Chōḷa I (No. 140 of 1919) and as such might be supposed to be a surname of that king. No. 192 of Appendix C states that the great men of the village of Tribhuvanamādēvi-chaturvēdimaṅgalam made an order to the effect that every six mā of land situated within a specified locality and irrigated by the tank called Madhurāntakappērēri must pay 1 kalam of paddy as ēri-āyam and that the great men in charge of the tank supervision committee of the year ought to collect the dues and maintain the tank in proper repair. Thus, besides private donations as ērippaṭṭi (vide paragraph above) the income from which went to meet the cost of repairs of tanks, there was also a regular tax called ēri-āyam collected for the same purpose. This is again illustrated by an inscription from Muṇṇūr (No. 66 of 1919) which records that a private individual purchased the right of collecting 1 tūni on each mā of wet land and 1 tūni on the dry lands, kaḷani-puñjai and kāṭṭu-puñjai and gave it over to the assembly of the village for strengthening the tank bund wherever necessary.

Provision made for Vedic study in the 11th century.

18 No. 176 of Appendix C from Tribhuvaṇi in the South Arcot district called Tribhuvanamahādēvi-chaturvēdimaṅgalam is dated in the 30th year of the reign of the Chōḷa king Rājakēsarivarman Rājādhirāja I (A.D. 1018–1050). The details of the date given in the record work out correctly for Wednesday, 2nd March, A.D. 1048. On this day the great assembly of the village met together in the pavilion erected by Śembiyaṇ Umbaḷanāṭṭuvēḷār and purchased lands in the name of the god Vīraṇārāyaṇa-Viṇṇagar-Āḻvār to meet all the requirements of the charity known as Rājēndraśōḷaṇ-uttamāgram established in the temple by the general (sēnāpati) Rājēndraśōḷa-Māvali-Vāṇarāja, in order to secure the health of king Rājēndra-Chōḷa. Evidently, the charity was instituted while yet the king was living and was named after him. Land also was purchased to the extent of 72 vēli which could yield an annual rental of 12,000 kalam of paddy, which quantity was required annually to conduct the charity in all its details. Besides providing for offerings, worship, etc., on a grand scale to Vīṟṟirunda-Perumāḷ Aḻagiyamaṇavāḷa and Naraśiṅga-Āḻvār, for conducting the festivals of Māśi-tiruppunarpūśam, Jayantyashṭami, Mārgaḻi-tiruvēkādaśi, for Uttarāyaṇa, Dakshiṇāyaṇa, Aippaśi and Śittirai Vishus, for feeding the Śrī-Vaishṇavas and for reciting the Tiruvāymoḻi—all of which required 2,475 kalam of paddy annually—the grant made further provision also for (i) 3 teachers of the Ṛig-Vēda, 3 of the Yajur-Vēda, one each of Chhandōgasāma, Talavakārasāma, Āpūrva, Vājasanēya, Bōdhāyanīya and Satyāshṭa-(āḍha) sūtra, thus making a total of 12 teachers with a daily allowance of 4 kalam of paddy; (ii) for one person each for expounding the Vēdānta, Vyākaraṇa, Rūpāvatāra, Śrī-Bhārata, Rāmāyaṇa, Manu-Śāstra and Vaikhānasa-Śāstra, (iii) for sixty students each of the Ṛig-Vēda and Yajur-Vēda, twenty of Chhandōgasāma and fifty of other śāstras, thus making a total of 190 persons with a daily ration of 11 kalam, 10 kuṟuṇi, 4 nāḻi; and (iv) for 70 other students of the Vēdānta, Vyākaraṇa and Rūpāvatāra. The provision thus made for feeding the teachers and students detailed above consisted of 9,525 kalam of paddy. In all, the total requirements for the year came to 12,000 kalam which were ordered to be measured out by the holders of the 72 vēli of land purchased and given for the purpose. It was stipulated that the taram (i.e., the class) of the land should not be altered even when the general classifications were undertaken; that on this land, except ēri-āyam, pāḍikāval, and ēri-amaṇji, no other taxes or obligations should be imposed and that the teachers who gave instruction in the Vēdas, the Bhaṭṭas who expounded the śāstras and the students who learnt the Vēdas, etc., were also exempted from certain payments or obligations. The rest of this huge record is damaged. Nevertheless, it adds to the already-collected vast amount of epigraphical evidence to show that temple charities were not exclusively meant for ceremonials in the temple but also for scientific (śāstraic) and religious (Vēdic) education.

19. Two inscriptions dated in the 14th year of Rājakēsarivarman Rājādhirāja II (Nos. 429 and 538 of Appendix B) 'who was pleased to take Madura and Ceylon' are quite similar in respect of their contents and are worthy of notice here. They register a reduction in the rate of rents to be paid on variśaippaṛṛu and vārapparṛu lands held under lease from the temple, through the great men forming the assembly of Pañchavaṉmādēvi (i.e., Āchchāpuram) by the cultivators residing in the hamlets of Pirpaṭṭanallūr, Aḷaganallūr, etc.

Reduction of rents.

The changes effected in the quantity of rents to be paid are shown in the following table :—

Up to the year of the record.	From the year of the record.	Reduction.
80	70	10 kalams
75	65	10 kalams
70	60	10 kalams
60–45	55–35	5 ,,
40–30	35–25	5 ,,
25	21½	3½ ,,
20	18	2 ,,

The following further reforms were also made :—

Farmers cultivating lands which do not come under variśaippaṛṛu or vārapparṛu but are classed as veḷḷāṉparṛu, dēvadāna and purapparṛu shall take 2/5 of the yield and those who cultivate under kudiparṛu shall be entitled to a third of the produce. For lands cultivated with water baled from a source, the cultivator shall reserve half the produce (śevvāram) and pay the other half to the owner. For lands cultivated with payaru, the quantity that is usually paid shall continue. On such cultivable lands as are left uncultivated, if green pulse and sesamum are sown broadcast, the cultivator shall have a right for śevvāram. The charges for taking out the paddy for being measured during kār, shall be borne by the cultivators. The amount of money required for the kuṇḍigai during kār and paśāṇ shall be met from the sale of paddy. Half the śeṇṇel produce which forms the share of the peruṅguḍi shall be conveyed by the farmers, the incidental charges such as the wages of those who carry being borne by themselves.

For lands cultivated with dry crops and for lands which had hitherto to pay a kaḍamai of 20 kāśu, only 17 kāśu shall henceforward be taken. Those that had been paying from 18 to 10 kāśu shall get a reduction of 2 kāśu and from the kaḍamai of lands ranging from 10 to 5 kāśu, two kāśu shall be reduced. Thus shall the dry assessment be fixed.

Reduction of kaḍamai.

At the time of realising the kaḍamai so settled, the state officials shall not enter any dwelling houses nor levy fines. One cultivator shall not be made liable for the revenue dues of another. Those persons who do not agree to the above-mentioned rates of kaḍamai and vāram should be moved from their tenancy, and in their places, persons agreeing to the altered conditions should be secured.

From the 14th year, it shall be a rule that a woman who is wedded to a person, shall, on the demise of the latter, become the owner of the lands, slaves, jewels or other valuables and the cattle of her deceased husband. But if before his death, he had made default and his lands had been sold, the purchaser shall have the right over the lands and slaves that belonged to the deceased. Brahmans shall not till lands with bulls yoked to the plough. Those classes that are engaged as labourers shall not become vēḷ and araśu. Kāvidis, potters, drummers, weavers and barbers shall not keep locks of hair. During their mournings and joyous occasions big drums (bērigai) shall not be beaten; and they shall not have sway over slaves, i.e., shall not keep any slaves. Bullocks grazing near the village channels shall be impounded in pens erected for the purpose. Cattle-stands or house-sites of the village shall not be permitted to be converted into paddy fields. Potters who make and sell small lamps and pots shall wear an upper-cloth.

Rights of women to hold property.

Other social laws prevalent in the 12th century A.D.

Though this interesting inscription does not record the reason for reducing the rents and rates, and for fixing the rights and duties of certain classes of people, it may be said that the war of the Pāṇḍya succession which was waged at the time and which set the entire south in utter confusion reducing it to very straitened circumstances as revealed by the Ārapākkam and the Tiruvālaṅgāḍu epigraphs of the same king (A.R. for 1906, p. 70) might have, as a necessary consequence, brought about a paucity of cultivating men, the difficulty of obtaining labour, resulting in a complete want of competition. The wording of the record leaves enough room to think that the cultivators were subjected to harassment by officials and had to bear the burden of heavy customary obligations imposed by landlords. The rigidity of caste regulations should also have relaxed to certain extent and brought relief to sufferers.

Reward for a literary composition.

20. No. 198 of 1919 dated in the 27th year of the reign of Kulōttuṅga I is of special interest as it records that the assembly of Tribhuvanamahādēvi-chaturvēdimaṅgalam met in a pavilion erected in front of the temple of Vīra-Nārāyaṇa-Viṇṇagar-Āḻvār in obedience to a royal order which required them to adjudge the merit of a work, probably in verse, composed by the poet Tirunārāyaṇabhaṭṭaṇ alias Kavikumuda-chandrapaṇḍita of Mānakulāśanichchēri, in the name of the king (Perumāl) and called Kulōttuṅgaśōḻaṇ-charitai. The work was accordingly heard and the author, as a reward for his composition, obtained half a vēli and two mā of land to be enjoyed in perpetuity. Students of Tamil literature may find here a lingering literary tradition of the more ancient Dravidian śaṅgam established in Madura to scrutinise the works of Tamil poets and advance the cause of Tamil literature. The composition under reference, i.e., Kulōttuṅgaśōḻaṇ-charitai must have, as its name denotes, been a highly interesting historical work very much like the Tamil Kulōttuṅgaśōḻaṇ-ulā of the same period and its discovery if made must lead to a flood of light being let in for the elucidation of Chōḻa history.

Śambuvarāyans as Chōḻa feudatories.

21. From the latter half of the 12th century A.D. the central Chōḻa power was becoming weaker and weaker and there were also evident signs of decay amongst the Pāṇḍyas who had allowed internal dissensions to creep in into their family. Thus the two chief powers of southern India were in a rather miserable plight. In the Pāṇḍya territory even the succession of the legitimate king was disputed and foreign aid had to be called in to play one party against the other. As a result, the whole country including the Koṅgu was thrown into utter confusion and was convulsed in a civil war, the like of which the country had never witnessed before. Foreign armies thirsting for blood overran the country from one end to the other, causing destruction everywhere and making life and property insecure. The times were therefore particularly favourable for feudatory families with mushroom growth to come into prominence. One such parvenu was the family of the Śambuvarāyas who held a subordinate position under the Chōḻas and rendered signal service to them during the days of the four successive sovereigns Rājarāja II, Rājādhirāja II, Kulōttuṅga-Chōḻa III, and Rājarāja III, when Chōḻa power was on the decline and who now tried to assert themselves. In the current year's collection there are a number of inscriptions of Chōḻa kings which introduce some of the members of the Śambuvarāya family. Nos. 71 and 252 of Appendix C are both dated in the 11th year of Rājādhirāja and register gifts made by Śeṅgēṇi Ammaiyappaṇ Śīyaṇ Pallavāṇḍāṇ alias Rājanārāyaṇa Śambuvarāya and Śeṅgēṇi Miṇḍaṇ Pallavaṇ alias Rājēndraśōḻa Śambuvarāyaṇ. In the records of Tribhuvanachakravartin Kulōttuṅga III (Nos. 234, 235 and 254 of Appendix C) figure Śeṅgēṇi Nālāyiravaṇ Ammaiyappaṇ alias Rājēndraśōḻa Śambuvarāyaṇ and Śeṅgēṇi Vīraśōḻaṇ Attimallaṇ alias Kulōttuṅgaśōḻa Śambuvarāyaṇ. Ammaiyappaṇ Attimallaṇ alias Rājēndraśōḻa Śambuvarāyaṇ, Ammaiyappaṇ Śīyaṇ Pallavāṇḍāṇ alias Rājanārāyaṇa Śambuvarāyaṇ and Śeṅgēṇi Ammaiyappaṇ Rājarāja Śambuvarāyaṇ held subordinate positions under Rājarāja III (Nos. 238, 52 and 57 of the same Appendix). As has already been said, the times were troublous when these chiefs flourished. No. 254 of Appendix C dated in the 11th year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III registers a political compact between Kūḍal Araśanārāyaṇaṉ Āḷappirandāṉ alias Kāḍavarāyaṉ and Seṅgēṇi Vīraśōḷaṉ Attimallaṉ alias Kulōttuṅgaśōḷa-Śambuvarāyaṉ whereby both swore that they should not do anything that would be detrimental to the interests of either; that the latter should not form any alliance with Āḷappirandāṉ Ediriliśōḷa Śambuvarāyaṉ; that he should confine himself to certain specified tracts of country which if he transgressed, the mudalis would send up arms and horses and cause him injury; that if Āḷappirandāṉ Ediriliśōḷa Sambuvarāyaṉ inflicted any trouble on Kulōttuṅgaśōḷa Śambuvarāyāṉ, Kāḍavarāyaṉ would support him; that in case Āḷappirandāṉ Ediriliśōḷa Śambuvarāyaṉ ran away from his hill (residence) leaving behind him all arms, Kulōttuṅgaśōḷa Śambuvarāyaṉ should have possession of them subject to the condition that he would not shelter or form any alliance with the other and that if Kāḍavarāyaṉ allied himself with the relatives of Kulōttuṅgaśōḷa Śambuvarāyaṉ and with Āḷappirandāṉ Ediriliśōḷa Śambuvarāyaṉ against the interests of Kulōttuṅgaśōḷa Śambuvarāyaṉ, he (Kāḍavarāyaṉ) would demean himself to the position of carrying the sandals of his enemies and of eating the chewed betel leaves thrown out from their mouths.

Administration of criminal law in the 13th century A.D.

22. Administration of criminal law in the 13th century A.D. for which there appears to have been much occasion is illustrated by the following six cases which occurred during the reign of Kulōttuṅga III and Rājarāja II:—

(i) While hunting, a native of Arumbondai aimed an arrow at another mistaking him for an animal. By the effect of the shot, he was laid up in bed for some days and died. The Brahmans and nāṭṭār assembled together and decided that as the two were not on inimical terms before, the death was only accidental and that, on behalf of the deceased the accused must provide for a lamp in the temple of Bhūmīśvara at Marakkāṇam (No. 33 of Appendix C).

(ii) A certain Śēdirāyaṉ caused the death of one Ēraṉ by some indiscreet act of his. The uncle of the murderer, in order to expiate the sin gave lands for a lamp to the temple of Mūlasthāṉamuḍaiya-Mahādēva at Muṉṉūr (No. 67 of Appendix C).

(iii) While hunting on horseback, a certain individual killed another by mistake. On the direction of the nāṭṭār, 48 sheep were given for burning a lamp in the temple of Tiruvagnīśvara at Kuḷattūr (No. 273 of 1919).

(iv) Two persons went ahunting on horseback. A deer running between them, one of them aimed an arrow which missing the animal killed the man. The Periyanāṭṭār ordered gift of sheep for burning a lamp (No. 279 of Appendix C).

(v) Two persons beat a man who had allowed his buffalo to enter the fields of the former and spoil the crop. By the effect of the beating the man died. The two asked the Bhaṭṭas and they advised them to present a lamp which they did by giving 48 sheep (No. 110 of 1919).

(vi) Thinking that it was an animal, perhaps in a hunting expedition, a man shot his uncle. The people of the several districts assembled together in the maṇḍapa of the temple and decided that a lamp must be maintained in the temple (No. 106 of 1919).

From the above, one may perhaps be led to think that the offenders were let off cheaply and that the punishment meted out was not adequate to the enormity of the crimes committed; and this clemency has only to be explained by the fact that the offences were purely unintentional or the result of mere accidents.

The Pandyas.

23. Many inscriptions of the medieval Pāṇḍyas have been copied during the year under review. These do not supply us with any historical or chronological data for constructing a regular genealogy of the Pāṇḍyas of this period; yet they are of interest and value to the student of village economics and administration. No. 299 of Appendix C of the time of Jaṭāvarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya, for instance, gives us the details of the kaḍamai assessment for different crops fixed on a specified land of given extent. We find a similar settlement (ஒடுபாடு) recorded in No. 302 of Appendix C which affected a whole district.

24. The word கண்டது found at the beginning or the end of many of the Pāṇḍya inscriptions copied this year clearly suggests that the engravings on stone and copper of the edict issued by the king were compared carefully with the original documents on palm leaves (ōlai preserved in the Imperial office of Registry, and were so attested by the word கண்டது evidently in the name of the king himself (see e.g. No. 510 of Appendix B).

Attestation of early documents.

25. An undefined Pāṇḍya king with the titles Tribhuvanachakravartin and Kōnēriṉmaikoṇḍāṉ appears in No. 480 of Appendix B from Tiruveṉkāḍu. The minister that issues the grant here is Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāladēva surnamed Aḍaiyavaḷaindāṉ, the younger brother of Maḷavarāyar. The latter name is familar in Pāṇḍyan records of the time of Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I who ruled from A.D. 1216–1235. The relationship herein mentioned of Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāladēva to Maḷavarāyar is highly interesting, since nothing has been certainly known as yet of the connexions of this chief whose records are largely found in the South Arcot district, directly or indirectly with the ruling family or its ministers.

Vijayagaṇḍagōpāla surnamed Aḍaiyavaḷaindāṉ the younger brother of Maḷavarāyaṉ.

26. Again, Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnēriṉmaikoṇḍāṉ, the king who figures in No. 366 of Appendix B and, in whose name was instituted in the temple at Shiyali (Tirukkaḷumaḷam) a shrine for the god Rājākkaṇāyaṇār and the goddess Maratakachokkiyār, was evidently also a Pāṇḍya king, since in the body of the record reference has been made to a land which had been lying as an uncultivated waste up to the 18th year of the king's elder brother (aṇṇāḷvi) Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva. Perhaps the Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnēriṉmaikoṇḍāṉ of this inscription has to be identified with Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara I who was the earliest of the Pāṇḍya kings that held the title of Rājākkaṇāyaṉ (see Annual Report for 1917, page 127). But we do not know of any Sundara-Pāṇḍya that was his elder brother. It is interesting to note that in a record of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya of his second year, we are casually informed of a new (flood) embankment substantially built on the side of the Kāvērī river, the old one having evidently breached and covered with sand the neighbouring lands under cultivation. The record coming as it does from Tiruveṉkāḍu in the Shiyali taluk of the Tanjore district, the reference must evidently be to an embankment on the Coleroon which branches off from the Cauvery near Trichinopoly. No. 481 of Appendix B attributes to this same king Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I, the special title Ellārku-Nāyaṇār which means "the lord of all" and corresponds to Ellāṇḍalaiyāṉ, a recognized surname of Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. As it is the case even to-day, the popularity of this great king was in the 13th century commemorated by the inauguration of several religious and civic charities. A record from Chidambaram (No. 546 of Appendix B), for example, registers the establishment of a grove and a street of cocoanut trees (planted on either side of it), for the recreation and habitation of the people. The repairs to the Cauvery (Coleroon) embankment above referred to, were recognized to be of so much importance at the time, that even a small cess seems to have been raised on this account. It is called காவேரிக்கரைத்தெவைமன்று in No. 510 of Appendix B.

Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I.

27. The contents of No. 514 of Appendix B give us a clue to the probable period to which we may have to assign the kings Perumāḷ Śrīvallabhadēva and Perumāḷ Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva who appear to have been ruling together. It is stated that since the time when the king Peruñjiṅgadēva being opposed to the Kannadiyaṉ (i.e., the Hoysaḷa Vīra-Narasiṁha II) raised a fortification on the north bank of the river Kāvērī until the 32nd year of Perumāḷ Śrīvallabhadēva the festivals in the temple of Tiruveṉkāḍu had been stopped and that these were now revived in the 33rd year. The date of Peruñjiṅga who was the enemy of the Hoysaḷa is known from his inscriptions to be the beginning of the 13th century A.D. Perhaps Śrīvallabha and Sundara also belonged to this period and in his chronology of the Pāṇḍyas, M.R.Ry. L.D. Swamikannu Pillai refers also to a Jaṭāvarman Śrīvallabha who ascended the throne in A.D. 1291 (vide Annual Report for 1918, page 155, paragraph 49). I have identified a Jaṭāvarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Sundara-Pāṇḍya in one of whose records a reference has been made to an earlier grant by Peruñjiṅgadēva, with Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II (A.D. 1276–1290) (Annual Report for 1910, page 97, paragraph 34).

Conflict of the Pandyas with the Hoysalas.

28. The damaged inscription No. 293 of Appendix C which is dated in the reign of Māṟavarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnērimēlkoṇḍāṉ and refers to the delimitation of boundary (stones) made previously in the reign of the king's elder brother (annāḷvi) Śrīvallabhadēva is perhaps to be attributed to Perumāḷ Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva mentioned above as a joint ruler with Śrīvallabha. No. 525 of Appendix B supplies astronomical details for a date in the 8th year of Tribhuvanachakravartin Parākrama-Pāṇḍyadēva and refers incidentally to the 10th year of the king Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva. The characters are not very old and the king Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa referred to here might therefore be presumed to be the third of that name in the Chōḷa genealogy, whose initial date was A.D. 1178.

Western Chalukyas of Kalyani.

Jagadēkamalla Jayasimha II and his subordinates.

29. The Harpanahaḷḷi taluk of the Bellary district which was epigraphically surveyed during the year has brought to light many inscriptions of this dynasty, the earliest of which is dated in Śaka 943 (No. 294 of 1918) and belongs to the reign of Jagadēkamalla who must be identified with Jayasiṁha II whose full name occurs in No. 228 of 1918. One of his Pallava subordinates was Jagadēkamalla-Noḷamba-Pallava-Permānaḍi also called Jagadēkamalla-Noḷamba-Pallava Permānaḍi Udaiyādityadēva (see Annual Report for 1915, page 87, paragraph 5). The latter was in charge of the districts of Noḷambavāḍi 32,000, Kaḍambaḷige 1,000, Ballakunde 300, Paravi 70 and Kariviḍi 30 in Śaka 955 and 959. Noḷamba-Pallava-Permānaḍi mentioned in No. 258 and the Daṇḍanāyaka Poḷalamayya mentioned in No. 294 of 1918 were other subordinates of the king.

Trailōkyamalla Āhavamalla Sōmēśvara I.

30. Jayasiṁha II was succeeded by Trailōkyamalla Āhavamalla Sōmēśvara I, called in his inscriptions only by the title Trailōkyamalla. Of his reign there are records ranging from Śaka 966 (i.e., the year of his accession) to Śaka 987. The reign of this king was a period of continual war with the Chōḷas who were trying to re-conquer Noḷambavāḍi and other provinces which had been overrun by the Chōḷas during the time of Rājarāja I and Rājēndra-Chōḷa I. That Sōmēśvara was also taking retaliatory measures is borne out by the fact that prince Viṣṇuvardhana-Vijayādityadēva who was in charge of Kōgaḷi 500, Ballakunde 300 and Kaḍambaḷi 1,000 in Śaka 987 was encamped at Aṟasiyakere on his way to the conquest of the south under the orders of the king (No. 278 of 1918). No. 286 of 1918 which was copied at Uchchaṅgidurga is dated in Śaka 986 and states that Vishṇuvardhana-Vijayādityadēva was ruling Noḷambavāḍi 32,000. He is here given the title 'Āhavamallanaṅkakāra' while No. 278 of 1918 referred to above gives also the titles 'Vēṅgī-maṇḍalēśvara' and 'Chāḷukya-Māṇikya.' A certain Bijjaladēva is stated to have granted a tank in Uchchaṅgi fort to the temple of Gaḷagēśvara. No. 139 of 1899 which was copied in the same place mentions perhaps the very same Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Bijjaladēva. No. 286 of 1918 further gives the origin for the different names in the different yugas to this Uchchaṅgidurga as follows: Being the residence of a Rākshasa by name Mēghanāda in Kṛita-yuga, it received the name of Mēghanāda-parvata. In Trēta, it was the abode of Hiraṇyaka and Nārāyaṇa having killed him lost all thirst for gold (kanaka or hiraṇya). It was therefore named Kanakagiri. In Dvāpara, it was the hermitage of Uttuṅgamahā-ṛishi. Hence the name, Uttuṅgaparvata. In the Kali age, Uchchaṅgiyabbe and two other Brahman maids performed penance and attained salvation by the grace of the god Īśvara. The place was called after them Uchchaṅgiya-parvata. This Uchchaṅgidurga which is in the Harpanahalli taluk of the Bellary district was the capital of Noḷambavāḍi 32,000 and was the seat of government of the Pāṇḍya feudatories of the later Western Chāḷukyas. It must have surely been a powerful stronghold; for No. 284 of 1918 states that it withstood attack for 12 years (?) and finally fell into the hands of one Mādava of the Yādava family and a sāmanta of Ballaha. Rudrabhaṭṭa, the author of Jagannāthavijaya in commemorating the conquests of Vīra-Ballāḷa describes 'the fort of Uchchaṅgi which was hitherto considered impregnable' (Lives of Kannaḍa Poets, Vol. I, page 212).

Of Sōmēśvara's other subordinates may be noted Kaṭeya Nāgāṭyarasa of the family of Mayūravarmma ruling Kaḍambaḷige 1,000 in Śaka 974; Jagadēkamalla Nambi-Nolamba-Pallava-Permmāḍidēva ruling in Śaka 966, the districts Kadambaligo 1,000, Kōgaḷi 500, Ballakunde 300 and Kaṇeyakallu 30.

31. Records of Vikramāditya VI Tribhuvanamalla who succeeded Sōmēśvara II, range in date from the 6th year of his reign to Śaka 1049 which is the latest date found for him till now. No. 245 of 1918 which is a damaged record mentions the conquest of the king over the Drāviḍas and the Pāñchālas. In No. 214 of 1918 we find the king chastising his own subordinate, a certain Mannaya Boppaya, who capturing Gaṇḍarādityanaholalu (also called Gaṇḍarādityana-chaturvēdimaṅgala; A.R. for 1915, page 89, paragraph 8) had plundered private property and killed Brahmans. Vikramāditya ordered him to forfeit all claims for the mannaya of the village.

One of the feudatories of the king was Tribhuvanamalla-Pāṇḍyadēva who held the titles of the 'punisher of the Parichchēdins' and 'vanquisher of the hopes of the Chōḷa king Rājiga-Chōḷa.' In Śaka 1049 (No. 229 of 1918) he was ruling Nolamba-vādi 32,000 from his residence at Bēlūru which might be the same as Beltūru in the Dāvanagere taluk of the Mysore state (Ep. Carn. Vol. XI, Intr. page 11). No. 227 of 1918 gives the genealogy of another subordinate the mahāsāvanta Singarasa of the Bāyara-vaṁśa, and states that he was the son of Kāmanṛipa and grandson of Bhūpa, whose father was Mārasiṅga, the son of Subhaga and grandson of Beneganga. Still another subordinate of the king was the Mahāsāmantādhipati and Prachaṇḍa-daṇḍa-nāyaka Ananta-Pālayya in charge of the Vaḍḍarāvuḷa tax of the 7½ lakh country.

Bhūlōkamalla Sōmēśvara III and his subordinates.

32. Only one record (No. 234 of 1918) in the year's collection belongs to the reign of Sōmēśvara III who held the biruda of Bhūlōkamalla and had for his subordinates the Mahāpradhāna, Kannaḍasandhi-vigrahi and Daṇḍanāyaka Bhōga-Bhaṭṭay ya and the Mahāpradhāna and Daṇḍanāyaka Chōḷāṇḍa or Chōḷadēva ruling the Nolam bavāḍi 32,000 province.

Pratāpachakravartin Jagadēkamalla II and his subordinates.

33. Sōmēśvara III was followed by Jagadēkamalla II and had the distinguishing title Pratāpachakravartin. Of his subordinates Jagadēkamalla-Pāṇḍyadēva was ruling the Nolambavāḍi 32,000 in the 10th year of the king and in the 9th and 11th years, the same province was under Jagadēkamalla Vīra-Pāṇḍyadēva who was evidently the same. No. 210 of 1918 states that this Vīra-Pāṇḍya was ruling from his capital at Uchchaṅgi. Sōmēśvara's other subordinates were the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Nochidēva who had the title of 'lord of Banavāse' and the Mahāpradhāna and Hiṛayadaṇḍanāyaka Vatsarasa of the Kamme-kula. One of the donees in the record was Chandrarāśi-Paṇḍita, the disciple of Dhammarāśi Munipa whose teacher was Vidyārāśi-Paṇḍita of the Lakuḷīśa-Pāśupata sect and of the Siṁha-Parsha[d] school. To the same school belonged Divyaśakti-Paṇḍita (No. 278 of 1918), Vīrēśvara-Paṇḍita and Vāmaśakti-Paṇḍita (No. 277 of 1918) and Rājaguru Kālēśvaradēva who is called Elukōṭi-chakravartin of Kōgali 500 (No. 204 of 1918). The names of some more teachers belonging to the Siṁha-Parsha[d] school have already been mentioned on page 88 of my report for 1915.

Jagadēkamalla in A.D. 1183.

34. No. 257 of 1918 is dated in Sōbhakṛit, the 4th year of Rāyanārāyaṇa Āhavamalla who was one of the sons of Kalachurya-Bijjala and held the titles Kalachurya-Bhujabala-chakravartin and Vīra-Nārāyaṇa. His first year is already known to be A.D. 1179–1180 (Dynasties of the Kanarese districts, page 488). Hence the 4th year of his reign would be A.D. 1183–84. But Jagadēkamalla is stated in our inscription to have then been ruling at Kalyāṇi. In the genealogy given on page 428 (ibid) there is a break of 20 years between A.D. 1163, the latest date of Taila III and A.D. 1183, the earliest date of Sōmēśvara IV and this period is ascribed to the usurpation of Kalachuryas. In the case of the records of the Pāṇḍya chiefs which are dated after A.D. 1163 and in which the ruling king is given as Taila III, Dr. Fleet states that these chiefs entertained hopes of the restoration of the Chālukyan suzerainty. In the report for 1917, the latest date for Taila III was given as Śaka 1090 (1168 A.D.). In the report for 1918 it was suggested in the case of a record dated in Śaka 1091 (A.D. 1169) and belonging to the reign of Pratāpachakravartin Jagadēkamalla, that Taila III might have assumed the title of Jagadēkamalla in his later days. If the present record is also to be attributed to Taila III, his reign has to be extended to the very commencement of that of Sōmēśvara IV, thus leaving no gap between him and his son for the usurpation.

His Pāṇḍya subordinate.

35. No. 296 of 1918 the date of which is damaged gives the genealogy and a long eulogy of the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Vijaya-Pāṇḍya. The genealogy runs as follows :—

Vishṇu
|
Brahman
|
Atri
|
Moon
|
Yādava, in whose family was born
|
Pāṇḍya
|
Chētarāja
|
Palaṭṭa
|
Irukkavēḷa
|
Rāya-Pāṇḍya married Sōvaladēvi
Paṇḍita-Pāṇḍya | Vīra-Pāṇḍya | Vijaya-Pāṇḍya

From this it is seen that the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Vijaya-Pāṇḍya was the younger brother of Jagadēkamalla Vīra-Pāṇḍya, the feudatory of Jagadēkamalla II referred to above and the son of Tribhuvanamalla Rāya-Pāṇḍya for whose merit a grant is made in No. 289 of 1918. In the report for 1914, it has been pointed out that Tribhuvanamalla Rāya-Pāṇḍya was the grandson of Palaṭṭa-Pāṇḍya. Tribhuvanamalla-Pāṇḍya mentioned in No. 233 of 1918 is probably Irukkavēḷa, the father of Rāya-Pāṇḍya (see genealogy given on page 16 of the introduction to Epigraphia Carnatica Vol. XI).

Kampaṇa II.

36. Of the first Vijayanagra dynasty we have inscriptions to represent almost every king, in the year's collection. Of these No. 305 of 1919 which comes from Āvūr in the North Arcot district is dated in Vilambi and refers to the time of Kampaṇa-Uḍaiyar (i.e., Kampaṇa II) son of Vīra-Bokkaṇṇa-Uḍaiyar. The earliest date for this chief hitherto known is Śaka 1283 (see genealogical table on page 86 of Annual Report for 1907). The cyclic year Vilambi of this record corresponding to Śaka 1281–1282, gives us an earlier date for Kampaṇa. No. 267 of 1919 dated in Śaka 1285 (Śōbhakṛit) states that Gaṇḍaragūḷi Māraya-Nāyaka the son of Sōmaya-Daṇḍanāyaka who was the praahāni of Kampaṇa, defeated and took captive Veṉṟumaṇkoṇḍa Śambuvarāya. This suggests that the early Vijayanagara conquerors in the south met with opposition not only from the Muhammadans of Madura but also from the local Hindu chiefs of the Chōḷa country.

Bukka II.

37. No. 260 of 1919 dated in Śaka 1325 refers to a certain Vīra-Puliyarāya-Uḍaiyar as a son of Bukkaṇa-Uḍaiyar. It is not impossible that this chief is identical with Vīra-Bhūpatirāya whose initial date is Śaka 1331 (see genealogical table on page 86 in the Annual Report for 1907). If this is proved to be correct, our present record would give him a fresh initial date earlier by half a decade.

Dēvarāya II.

38. The only inscription of Dēvarāya II in the year's collection (No. 229 of 1919) is dated in the Śaka year 1355 and refers to an illuminating incident of a lady personally interviewing the king on behalf of a temple and securing a copper-plate grant from him, making the sarvamānya gift of a village. This lady was Aramvaḷatta-Nāchchiyār, the elder sister of a Kaikkōḷa attached to the temple of Agnīśvara at Madam. In return for her services, the Rudra Māhēśvaras of the temple granted the Kaikkōḷa lady one padakku of grain every day and two paṇam of money per mensem.

Mallikārjuna.

39. Mallikārjuna is represented by less than half a dozen records of which No. 113 of Appendix C dated in Śaka 1383 refers to his subordinate Dēvachōḷa-Mahārāja, perhaps of Chōḷa origin. We have known of local Chōḷa chiefs figuring as subordinates of the Vijayanagara kings Krishṇarāya and Achyutarāya. The link of Chōḷa vassalage to Vijayanagara emperors is extended backward by this record to another century before Krishṇarāya. In No. 154 of 1919, the king bears the title of 'destroyer of Muhammadan forces' (Tulukkadaḷavibhāḷan). This must refer to the resistance of the expedition led by the Gajapatis and the Muhammadans in combination, which is mentioned in the drama Gaṅgādāsapratāpavilāsa (Annual Report for 1906, page 81 f). The inscription incidentally records that a severe storm raged on the 15th day of the month Chittirai in the cyclic year Pramōdūta corresponding to Śaka 1372 (A.D. 1450–51).

Sāḷuva Narasiṅgarāya.

40. Two inscriptions of the Sāḷuva king Narasiṅgarāya (Nos. 4 and 53 of Appendix C) respectively dated in Śaka 1388 and 1393 refer to his avasaṛam (officer?) Annamarasayya who is also mentioned in No. 374 of 1917. No. 4 of 1919 informs us that Narasiṅgarāya made over certain revenues, in favour of the temple at Śembēḍu (South Arcot district) for the restoration of worship which had ceased for some time. It may be noted that the charity was made on a Śivarātri day and the author of the Telugu poem Jaimini Bhāratam of which our king was the patron, says that Narasiṅga was deeply devoted to the observance of this festival. No. 39 of 1919 mentions Echchappa-Nāyaka as subordinate of the king.

Tammarāya (i.e., Dharmarāya), son of Sāḷuva Narasiṅgarāya.

41. Narasiṅga's son Dharmarāya is represented by two inscriptions in the year's collection, viz., Nos. 25 and 173 of 1919. The latter which is dated in Śaka 1424 refers to the foundation of a town made by his officer Gauraṇa-Nāyaka.

Kṛishṇarāya.

42. Kṛishṇarāya is represented by about 10 inscriptions in the year's collection of which No. 196 of 1918 and Nos. 2 and 3 of 1919 give him Sāḷuva titles. Similarly No. 40 of 1919 mentions the king Achyuta also with Sāḷuva titles. Inscriptions in the southern districts also in some cases give the Sāḷuva titles to these Tuḷuva sovereigns of Vijayanagara. No. 196 of Appendix B calls him Kṛishṇavarma-Mahāraja, son of Narasiṅgavarma-Mahārāja and registers the grant of a village to Sōmayyadēva-Voḍeya, son of the scholar Bāloḍeya of Mōgūru who was himself the son of Sōmēśvarāchārya. The latter who was a yati is stated to have borne the surname Mallikārjuna, whose disciple was king Vīra-Rudra of Oruṅgallu. It is highly doubtful if Vīra-Rudra of our inscription is identical with Pratāparudra of Warrangal for the latter flourished nearly a century earlier. No. 406 of Appendix B describes his conquests in the east in the usual order and records his gift of jōḍi amounting to 10,000 varāhas to the Śiva and Vishṇu temples (most of these are named) in the Chōḷa country comprising the provinces called Puvanagarpaṭṭaṇa-śīrmai, Rājarājēśvara-śīrmai, Taṇjāvūru-śīrmai, Paṭṭa-śīrmai, etc. The gift was made at the shrine of god Anantaśayana at Uṇḍavilli on the banks of Kṛishṇavēṇi (i.e., Kṛishṇā).

Viṭṭhala's alleged genealogy.

43. No. 401 of Appendix B gives a genealogy in corrupt Sanskṛit, of Viṭṭhaladēva-mahārāja who extended the Vijayanagara dominion into the south to the very end of the peninsula during the reign of Achyutarāya. The ancestry is traced from Vishṇu through Brahmā, Atri, Chandra, Budha, and Purūravas to Pāṇḍu, his son Arjuna and his son Abhimanyu. The line is then continued through Ūttuṅgabhuja and his son Nanda-chakravartin whose coronation is stated to have taken place according to Parāśara 1050 years after Parīkshit, the son of Abhimanyu. From Naramēdhadat, the eldest son of Nanda-chakravartin, the race passed through his son Sahasrānīka, his son Satpurusha, his son Dēvadhīra and his son Ahavamalla. Āhavamalla's son was Tribhuvanamalla whose son was Chaḷukka. Chaḷukkā's son was Cbāḷukka-Nārāyaṇa, whose son and grandson were Vimalanidhi and Rājanarēndra respectively. Rājanarēndra's son was Chālukka-Bhīma. In this line was born Upēndra and the eighth after him was Kalyāṇa-Bijjala. Bijjala's son was Hōmallarāya and his grandson was Vīra-Hēmādri who begot Sōma. From Sōma the chain was made up of Pinna Hemma, Rāghavēndra and Tātapinnama, the well-known ancestor of the Āravīṭi chiefs, with whom the genealogy corresponds regularly to that given on page 201 of the Archæological Survey Report for 1908–09. Speaking of Viṭṭhala's nephew Timma or Nalla-Timma, the record says that a certain Kandāla-Śrīraṅgārya of the Vādhūla-gōtra and the Yajus-śākhā was the guru of the family. Viṭṭhala's conquests, devastations and foundations of villages are all mentioned to have taken place in the Madhura-maṇḍalam. He is stated to have defeated Tumbichchi, etc., of the Pāṇḍya country in connexion with the conquest of the Tiruvaḍi-bhūmi. We know that Tumbichchi-Nāyakaṇ and Sāluva-Nāyakkaṇ were brought into subjection by Achyutarāya (Annual Report for 1907, page 85).

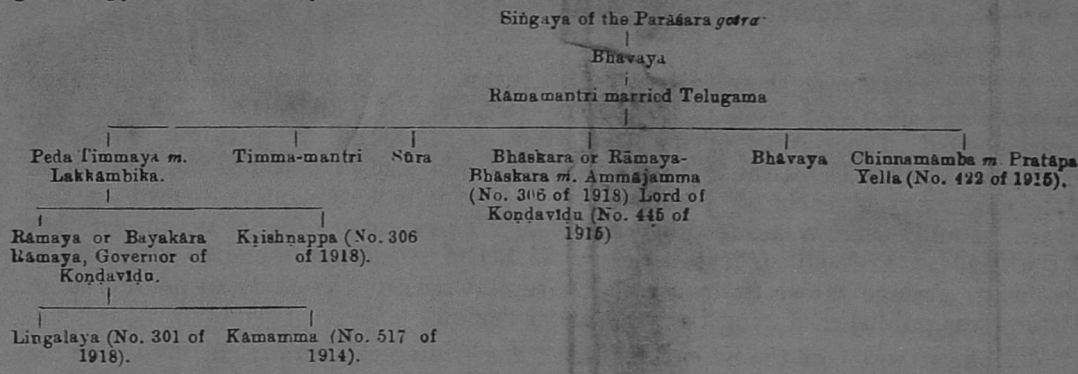
44. Numbers 301, 303, 305 and 307 of 1918 which are four copies of a single inscription dated in Śaka 1461, belong to the reign of Achyutarāya and were copied by the Archæological Superintendent Mr. Longhurst. These refer to the charities made by Bayakāra Rāmappa or Rāmaya who was an officer of Achyuta ruling the Koṇḍavīḍu province. Two other copies of this same record were copied at Magimā-vinahalli in the Bellary district in 1914 (Nos. 514 and 517 of that report). The present record as usual describes the manifold works of philanthropy carried out by this minister and the only thing it adds to what has been already known in this connexion is that the foundation of the town and temple of Gōpinatha at Koṇḍavīḍu there ascribed to Bhāvaya is here attributed to Rāmaya-Bhāskara as in No. 445 of 1915. Putting together the contents of all the records, we arrive at the following genealogy for this family of famous ministers.



Sadāśiva.

45. The last king of the second Vijayanagara dynasty, Sadāśiva is represented by about half a dozen inscriptions. Of these No. 5 of 1919 from Śembēḍu in the South Arcot district dated in Śaka 1497, Yuva, carries his reign to a period of four years beyond the last date hitherto accorded to him, viz., Saka 1493 (Copper-plate No. 1 of 1912-1913). This only suggests the continuance of the nominal rule of Sadāśiva even after Tirumala I had practically assumed the reins of government in Śaka 1493. No. 1 of 1919 calls the king Oḍḍiyaḍalavibhāṭa, Tulukkaḍalavibhāṭa, Īlam-tiṟaikoṇḍaperumāḷ, Śagaram tiṟai-koṇḍa-perumāḷ, Dakshiṇasurattāṇa and Navakōṭi-nārāyaṇa. Some of these epithets have been found already applied to Achyuta (Annual Report for 1918, page 167). They only establish that at this period the complete lordship of the Vijayanagara crown over the southern peninsula was a recognized fact.

Miscellaneous.

Kō-Peruñjiṅgadēva.

46. The later Pallava king Kō-Peruñjiṅgadēva is represented by 12 inscriptions, four of which, Nos. 367, 391, 394 and 395 of 1918 coming from the Shiyali taluk of the Tanjore district on the south bank of the river Coleroon establish for the first time that his dominion encroached southward beyond that river even into the Tanjore district. Reference has been already made to the fortifications on the northern bank of the Kāvērī built by Peruñjiṅga during his encounters with the Kannaḍiyas (i.e., Hoysaḷas). It is not impossible that the march of the king to the south of the river and his eventual occupation of the country there as suggested by the presence of his inscriptions at Shiyali was the result of the encounter with the Hoysaḷas.

Gajapatis.

47. Two inscriptions of the Gajapati chief Kapilēśvara have been found in the village Munnūr in the South Arcot district (Nos. 51 and 92 of 1919). These are dated in the Śaka year 1386 (A.D. 1464–65) and epigraphically confirm the statement about the southern invasion of the Orissa king noticed on page 84 of the Annual Report for 1907. Ferishta again mentions a conquest of Rājahmundry and Condapilly by the combined armies of Gōlkonda and Orissa, the latter being led by Ambur Ray in A.D. 1471 (Brigg's Rise of the Muhammadan Power, Vol. II, pages 487 and 488). Our inscription clearly proves that this southern conquest by the combined armies was an event that happened about six years later. It establishes also that the earlier conquest by Gajapati was not a passing inroad only but almost an occupation of the southern country right up to Tiruvārūr in the Tanjore district and Trichinopoly. Kapilēśvara-Kumāra Mahāpātra, as the chief is called, was the son of Ambīradēva and is stated by both the records to have been previously the Parīksha (Viceroy) of Kondavīdu and Dandapāda; but that (now) he was in the position of the Parīksha of Kondavīdu, Kondapalli, Addanki, Vinukonda, Dandapāda, Padaivīdu, Valudilampattu-uśāvadi, Tiruvārūr, Tiruchchilāpalli (Trichinopoly) and Chandragiri. Kapilēśvara is evidently the son of Ambur Ray mentioned by Ferishta.

Another Gajapati inscription comes from Drākshārāma in the Gōdāvarī district (No. 335 of 1919) and is dated in the 10th year of Vīra-Mukundadēva. The king is stated to have conquered the king of Gauda (i.e., Bengal). This is evidently the Mukunda mentioned in Mr. Sewell's List of Antiquities Vol. II page 208, in whose time certain disturbances with the Muhammadan king of Bengal took place.

Recorded.

2. The Government note with satisfaction that the number of inscriptions copied and examined increased from 876 in 1917–18 to 900 in 1918–19. The Assistant Archæological Superintendent for Epigraphy is requested to push on with the publication of Part IV of the South Indian Inscriptions so as to secure the completion of the old series as early as possible. The instructions separately issued in this regard should ensure a steady progress. The "Topographical list of the inscriptions of the Madras Presidency," prepared by M.R.Ry. V. Ranga Achariyar, Professor, Anantapur College, which forms a valuable contribution to the study of South Indian History was published during the year under review.

3. The attention of the Superintendent, Archæological Survey, is invited to the remarks in paragraphs 6(1),6(3) and 6(4) of Part I of the report and he is requested to consider the propriety of taking action on the lines suggested. He should also, after personal inspection, offer his remarks on the question of the conservation of the temples referred to in paragraphs 6(5) and 6(6) and on the suggestion referred to in paragraph 7 of the report regarding the unearthing of Buddhist remains at Sālihundam.

The attention of the Superintendent, Government Museum, is invited to the suggestion in paragraph 11 of Part I of the report relating to the acquisition of certain written slabs and of the images in the store-room of the Draksharama temple.

4. The programme of work for the ensuing field season is approved.

Letter—from M.R.Ry. G. VENKOBA RAO Avargal, Assistant Archæological Superintendent for Epigraphy, Southern Circle.
To—the Secretary to Government, Home (Education) Department (through the Superintendent, Archæological Survey, Madras).
Dated—Madras, the 22nd September 1920.
No.—694.

In continuation of my letter to Government No. 496, dated the 15th July last, I have the honour to submit herewith the final copy of my Annual Report on Epigraphy for the year ending 31st March 1920 with the final corrections carried out therein and the plates inserted duly. The delay in its submission for so long was due, as already explained by me, to the fact that the Superintendent, Government Press, was, owing to the strike difficulties, unable to send certain portions of the proof of the report in time. On this account it has not been possible to read as usual a second proof before this final copy was submitted.

2. I request I may be supplied with 20 spare copies of the report for distribution among friends and scholars interested in epigraphy.

3. The photographs taken during the year under report are also submitted herewith.

Endorsement No. 516, dated 23*rd*/28*th September* 1920.

Office Routine.

M.R.Ry. K. V. Subrahmanya Ayyar, B.A., the permanent Junior Assistant and Temporary Special Publication Assistant of this office, was transferred to foreign service as Superintendent of Archæology, Travancore, for three years under G.O. No. 445, Public (Political), dated the 20th August 1919, and was relieved of his duties on the afternoon of the 15th September 1919. Mr. K. R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, the probationary Kanarese Epigraphical student, accepted the appointment of the first clerk (Rs. 50—5—75) in the office of the Kannada Translator to Government inasmuch as his pay as probationer, viz., Rs. 50, could not be raised to Rs. 75 unless he graduated and entered into a bond of service with Government. He was an intelligent student of Kanarese and did good work so long as he was in this office. The vacancies thus caused were filled up by promotions given to juniors in the office both in the Collection and the Publication sections. The Kanarese student's place was temporarily offered to Mr. Rangaswami Sarasvati, an outsider. The Tamil Reader in the Publication section not being found enough to cope with the Telugu and Kanarese work of that section, a new Telugu-Kanarese Reader on Rs. 50 per mensem was sanctioned on the Temporary Publication staff by G.O. No. 23, Home (Education), dated the 5th January 1920, and Mr. T. T. Sharman from Bangalore was selected for the new post. The Tamil Reader Mr. V. Venkatasubba Ayyar being promoted as Tamil Epigraphical student, in the chain of vacancies caused by the transfer of Mr. K. V. Subrahmanya Ayyar to Travancore, the services of Mr. P. V. Jagadisa Ayyar, Manager of the office of the Archæological Superintendent, were temporarily transferred to this office by the Government Order quoted above. Mr. P. V. Jagadisa Ayyar is posted as Tamil Reader in the Publication section. Mr. A. S. Ramanatha Ayyar, under G.O. No. 1346, Home (Education) Department, dated 1st November 1919, was appointed provisionally permanent Epigraphical student (Telugu) and was thus entitled to draw Rs. 75, having completed his one year's probation on 28th September 1919.

2. The Senior Assistant Mr. Venkoba Rao was absent on privilege leave for 1 month and 15 days from 1st August 1919; Mr. V. Venkatasubba Ayyar, the probationary Epigraphical student (Tamil), for 21 days from 11th March 1920 and the Pandit Mr. V. Vijayaraghavachari for one month from 19th December 1919.

Assistant Superintendent's Tour.

3. I was on tour in the Guntūr and the Gōdāvarī districts for nearly 3 months (January to April 1920) with my Assistant Mr. C. R. Krishnamachari in connexion, particularly, with the publication work but did not, however, miss the opportunity of examining also some places mentioned in the programme for the year. At Bhadrāchalam, a famous place of pilgrimage on the Upper Gōdāvari, I expected to find some ancient and interesting documents, at least, those of the time of Gōpanna Rāmdās, a nephew of the famous Golconda ministers Akkanna and Mādanna of the 17th century A.D., who by popular tradition is intimately connected with the place and is said to have lent celebrity to it by his unswerving piety and devotion. The visit was, however, void of any discovery worth the name,—the only chief inscription pointed out (No. 304 of 1920) being one of the 19th century A.D., of a namesake of Rāmdās called Varada-Rāmdās who secured for the temple gifts of a large number of villages in the Nizam's Dominions. A modern document, though it may be, the circumstances under which this rich gift was made are interesting enough. It is stated that the (original) śāsana on stone in which were copied the maintenance gifts to Gods and Brāhmaṇas and the details of processional requirements of the blessed Sītā-Rāmachandra at Śrī-Bhadrāchala, which the holy Rāmadāsugāru had previously secured with the consent of the Tānīsha, having been chiselled away by a vandal during an interregnum (?) when the God himself was on exile at Pōlavaram, no opportunity had been afforded to the people to know what the great Rāmadāsu had himself done for the God. The vandal too who destroyed the śāsana perished with his sons, friends and family. Now, in Śaka 1754, Nandana, Chaitra, śu. 9, Monday, there came to Śrī-Bhadrādri from the town of Kāñchī a devotee named Varada-Rāmadāsu who was an incarnation of the great Rāmadāsu. He and his wife gave to the temple all the jewellery and money they owned and, with the approval of Rāmadāsu's mother Raṅgamma, the pious pair continued to serve in the temple, the lady members doing the sweeping and cleaning work and the male members singing His glory. While thus engaged, the God of Bhadrāchalam appeared in a dream to Chandū Lālā, a nobleman (of Hyderabad) in the court of Nāsaruddaulā, and told him that this Varada-Rāmadāsu was an incarnation of the earlier Rāmadāsu, that, consequently, the administration of the parganā of Hasanabāda was to be entrusted to Varada-Rāmadāsu under His own seal and that maintenance gifts to Gods and Brāhmaṇas, which in the period under the rule of evil kings had fallen into complete desuetude or had been conducted only intermittently, must now be restored in full. On this Chandū Lālā whose devotion was great, in complete obedience to the orders of the God, fixed 71,000 current rupees as the total revenue of the (taluk) Hasanabāda parganā, excluding Brahman villages and maintenance gifts to temples and other charity-institutions but including 55 amāni villages, 11 sarabastas (?), sāyar and śivāyibābat. Of this amount, Rs. 32,000 were settled to be paid in cash to the Sarkār; Rs. 8,000 to be disbursed as annual pay to the 100 armed servants to be placed in the service of the God; Rs. 18,500 to be spent on the requirements for the worship and the balance Rs. 12,500 to be spent on administration and staff salaries.

4. With this settlement, the parganā was placed in the hands of Varada-Rāmadāsu and it was thus that the latter came to record on this stone the names of the several villages enjoyed by the temple together with the numerous details connected with its upkeep. Although the facts mentioned in this interesting prologue explain in a way the reason for the absence of earlier documents in the temple contemporaneous with the great Rāmadāsu of the time of Tānīsha, a detailed search made for other written fragments in the temple brought to light a broken pillar with weather-worn characters of the 17th century A.D. in the lower court-yard near the mirror-chamber. It registers that a lady—whose name is not possible to make out on the stone—the daughter of . . . the mother of Sūrappa-Viśvanāyaḍu, wife of Mutyam Akkamappaṅgāru, a Padmanāyaka of Vipparla-gōtra, caused to be made the mukha-maṇḍapa and the prākāra of the Raghunāyaka temple at Bhadrāchala and made provision also for daily offerings, festivals and servants. On another face of the same pillar is registered that Appalammaṅgāru, a daughter of this Mutyāla Rāmakka—evidently meant to be the name of the lady mentioned immediately above—set up a shrine for Nammāḻvār. Another lady of the same family whose name was Akkam . . . built the Bhōga-maṇḍapa for Raghunāyaka. These three ladies herein mentioned as having made charities of buildings in the temple of Bhadrāchalam in the beginning of the 17th century A.D. may be considered as the elder contemporaries of the great Rāmadāsu, and one or the other of them must have been intended also by the tradition in the popular story which attributes the building of the original small shrine of Rāmabhadra at Bhadrāchalam to a Śūdra lady called Dammakka.

5. The disappointment caused by the absence of old inscriptions at Bhadrāchalam was, however, more than compensated for by the discovery of about twelve new inscriptions at Paṭṭisam and Mahānandi, two island-temples very picturesquely situated in the bed of the Gōdāvarī river near Pōlavaram. The former is a fine old monument with good sculptured images. The records in both these temples belong to the period between the 12th and the 15th centuries of the Christian Era and bring to light the name of a fresh dynasty of kings of the Malias (Malaya-maṇḍala).

6. More than a month and a half was spent at Simhāchalam where imperfect transcripts of 125 inscriptions prepared from ink-impressions made in the year 1899 had now to be checked with the original stones and completed. 363 fresh inscriptions besides, were discovered, copied and transcribed on the spot for publication, thus exhausting, without further necessity for another visit, all the inscriptions of Simhāchalam excepting perhaps a very few of the most damaged and built in fragments. The Uriya inscriptions too of which 30 were found in that temple were copied in duplicate and a complete set forwarded to Mr. Ramadas Pantulu, B.A., Jeypore, for interpretation and transcription in modern Uriya characters. These latter will be printed along with the others of Simhāchalam in the forthcoming volume of South-Indian Inscriptions (Texts), Volume V, and Mr. Ramadas Pantulu's assistance shall be duly acknowledged therein. It may be observed as a result of experience of my work at Simhāchalam that in the matter of correct and complete deciphering of inscriptions which are indifferently engraved on undressed and uneven slabs—and particularly too, where the characters are found to be small and faintly cut—the inked estampages, however carefully and scientifically prepared they may be, are as a rule useless showing as they do white blotches with practically no impression of existing letters in the deeper parts of the stone as contrasted with deep dark spots covering up with ink, even the few traces of visible letters in the projecting portions of the surface. In such cases at least, though not in all, an examination of the original stone in situ would enable the epigraphists to arrive at a safely correct reading. The method adopted consists (1) in thoroughly cleaning the stone and (2) in applying carefully with a brush any colouring matter, white or red, mixed with water into a liquid of medium consistency. The colour running into the groves of letters gives in good and favourable light a clear outline of the letter whether it be cut in depths, projections or margins of the stone where brush and paper cannot easily reach. In the publication of inscriptions which is now being pushed through by this office under Government Orders, the above method has been found to have largely helped in the correct reading of the texts which the impressions alone could not have done.

7. With the sanction of Government accorded in G.Os. Nos. 1276 and 1306, Home (Education) Department, dated 21st and 28th October 1919, respectively, I and Mr. C. R. Krishnamachari attended the First Oriental Conference that was held at Poona, in which I read a paper on the old Brāhmī inscriptions in the caverns of Southern India.

Tours of the Establishment.

8. The activities of the Assistants in the search for and the collection of fresh epigraphical material have been quite satisfactory. Mr. V. Venkatasubba Ayyar, Tamil Reader in the Publication section who was recently posted as acting Tamil Epigraphical student, was out on camp duty for more than four months and the acting Telugu Epigraphical student Mr. A. S. Ramanatha Ayyar, for almost five months, part of his time being spent in company with Mr. Venkatasubba Ayyar at Conjeeveram and part independently in the talukwar survey of the Dhārāpuram tāluka of the Coimbatore district. Mr. K. R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, the Kanarese Epigraphical student, finished the talukwar survey of the Ālūr tāluka of the Bellary district in two months, while the Senior Assistant and Manager Mr. Venkoba Rao spent about three weeks on tour giving the necessary training to Mr. Venkatasubba Ayyar at Conjeeveram and Tiruvārūr. The work of copying inscriptions in the places of the Telugu districts noted in the programme for the year and the talukwar survey of Tenāli in the Guntur district were entrusted to Mr. C. R. Krishnamachari, my assistant in the Publication section, and Mr. Rangaswami Sarasvati. They had finished part of this work, when I had to take Mr. C. R. Krishnamachari with me to further north. Mr. Sarasvati, who was left in camp alone for about four months, returned only on 5th May 1920. Being quite new to his work he has not been able to finish all that was entrusted to him. His collection remains to be checked and examined and consequently it has been reserved to be included in the report for the next year. Mr. T. T. Sharman, the newly entertained Telugu-Kanarese Reader in the Publication section, joined my camp at Simhāchalam on 5th February 1920 and returned to headquarters on 6th April 1920. The photographer Mr. P. Viswanatha Ayyar was deputed on an independent tour in the Madura and Tinnevelly districts and the Pudukkottai State to take photographs of all the natural caverns with Brāhmī inscriptions so far discovered and note down full particulars about them. He toured for more than two months from 3rd December 1919 to 21st February 1920 and took 94 photographs and 5 sketches.

The Year's Work.

Publication.

9. In paragraphs 3 and 4 of Part I of my report for last year I had referred to the progress made in the work of Publication. Since then the correcting of Press proofs of South-Indian Inscriptions (Texts), Volume IV, and the preparation of manuscripts for Volume V which, by G.O. No. 961, Home (Education) Department, dated 12th August 1919, is fixed at 3,000 folio pages, have been going on simultaneously. Galley proofs pages 1–277 so far received have been corrected and sent to Press. Pages 278 to 293 are being checked and will be sent to the Press shortly. Further galleys have not been received, and the Superintendent who was addressed regarding the delay writes to me that he has to suspend work on Volumes IV and V of South-Indian Inscriptions (Texts) until South-Indian Inscriptions Volume III, Part III, has been struck off and issued. Hence Volume IV (Texts) for 1919 has not been progressing beyond galley proof page 293. The Government have, in anticipation of its quick issue, ordered 600 copies to be struck and have fixed its price at Rs. 4. They have also prepared a preliminary free distribution list of 60 private individuals and institutions. Manuscript pages 1 to 2998 for Volume V for 1920 have been already sent to the Government Press. The texts of Ceylon inscriptions ordered to be issued with this volume [G.O. No. 1284, Home (Education) Department, dated 23rd October 1919] have been taken up and will be included in the next volume. The publication staff has worked throughout with great zeal and energy. South-Indian Inscriptions Volume III, Part III, mentioned in paragraph 4 of my last year's report, has been printed and issued (G.O. No. 71, dated 16th January 1920).

Collection.

10. The collection work during the year has also been quite satisfactory. The talukwar survey of Ālūr (Bellary district), Dhārāpuram (Coimbatore district) and Tenāli (Guntūr district) has been finished. In the Conjeeveram taluk which was also put down in the programme, it was possible only to finish the Varadarāja temple in the town of Little Conjeeveram within the limited time allotted for it. Of the remaining 35 villages mentioned in the programme only 13 were visited, since, after finishing the talukwar survey, very little time was available for examining the other places. As a result of the long tours of my assistants and myself noticed in paragraphs 3, 6 and 8 above, about 150 villages (excepting those of the Tenāli taluk) have been visited and 721 fresh inscriptions copied and transcribed. To these must be added also the 363 new inscriptions from Simhāchalam sent to the Press for publication (see above paragraph 6), thus bringing the total of inscriptions transcribed and examined during the year to 1,084—a figure which has not been reached since the birth of this department in 1886.

11. All these inscriptions except the 363 of Simhāchalam have been registered in Appendices B and C. Appendix A contains the list of 14 copper-plate inscriptions examined during the year and in Appendices D and E are registered the 94 photographs taken and the 5 sketches prepared by the photographer Mr. P. Viswanatha Ayyar. The contribution on date calculations contained in Appendix F has as usual been made by Diwan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai Avargal. A good portion of it was, however, done in my office with the help of his Ephemeris of which only four volumes (A.D. 700 to A.D. 1399) have hitherto been received in this office.

12. The copper-plates secured for examination are historically valuable and interesting. The more important of these will be fully described and their contents discussed at their proper place in Part II below. No. 4 from Tirumalavādi secured by my Assistant Mr. Venkatasubba Ayyar is dated in Śaka 1654 (= A.D. 1732) Paridhāvi and registers (1) a grant of land by Śukadēvayyan for the marriage festival in the temple of Vaidyanātha at Tirumalavādi, (2) a gift of money for Annābhishēkam, viz., heaping up cooked rice over the Śiva-linga as a part of daily worship, (3) a gift of certain tolls and taxes for maintaing a flower-garden and (4) a gift of money and gingelly-seeds for lamps. The inscription ends with two Tamil verses in praise of Śiva of Māmaḷu, i.e., Tirumaḷavāḍi. Also in Śaka 1666 (= A.D. 1744) Siddhārthin, some śeṭṭis and piḷḷais granted on all articles such as reddle, clearing-nuts, arecanuts, pepper, jaggery, sugar, bengal-gram, wheat, gingelly, ghee, and iron coming into or going out of the village of Tirumānallūr near Tirumaḷavāḍi, certain fixed tolls (magamai) in order to maintain a lamp.

Appendix F.—Dates from Appendices A, B and C to the Annual Report for 1919–20, calculated with the assistance of M.R.Ry. Diwan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai Avargal, M.A., B.L., LL.B., I.S.O.

Note.—The following abbreviations have been employed in these statements :—

1. Śu. and ba., respectively, for Śuklapaksha and Bahulapaksha, the bright and dark fortnights of the lunar month.

2. The ending moments of tithis and nakshatras are expressed as decimal parts of the day, and in a normal date the first decimal shows the ending moment of the tithi and the second the ending moment of the nakshatra. Thus the result—

A.D. 1510 : Monday, Decr. 30 ; ·94 ; ·50 means that on the day in question the tithi quoted in the inscription ended at ·94 of the day, i.e., 56½ ghaṭikas after mean sunrise, while the nakshatra quoted in the inscription ended at ·50 of the day, i.e., 30 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise. A key to this decimal notation will be found in the book-marker supplied with "Indian Ephemeris" A.D. 1800—2000 by the author.

When only the tithi is quoted, its ending moment is shown by decimal figures next to the day of the month, thus, "A.D. 1289, Monday, Nov. 28, ·70" is a convenient way of indicating the fact that a tithi ended at ·70 of the day (42 ghaṭikas after sunrise) on Nov. 28 A.D. 1289, which was Monday.

3. When a tithi or nakshatra that is quoted in a record only commenced on the week-day quoted in the same record the fact is indicated by the symbols f.d.t. or f.d.n. Thus :

"Wednesday 6 Ap. A.D. 1384 ; ·68 ; f.d.n. ·29" means that the tithi quoted in the inscription ended at ·68 (= 41 ghaṭikas after sunrise) on Wednesday, 6 Ap. A.D. 1384, but that the nakshatra quoted in the inscription only commenced on Wednesday and came to end at ·29 (= 17½ ghaṭikas after sunrise) on the following day, Thursday.

Similarly "Friday, Ap. 26 ; f.d.t. ·08 ; f.d.n. ·13" means that the tithi and nakshatra quoted were current for the greater part of Friday, but came to end next day at ·08 (= 5 ghaṭikas after sunrise) and ·13 (= 8 ghaṭikas after sunrise), respectively, on Saturday.

4. An asterisk after the figure indicating a Śaka year (e.g. Ś. 1235*) means, as in Kielhorn's list of dates, that the year is current, not expired.

5. When it is necessary to distinguish the name of a nakshatra from that of a month and generally, as a useful convention, the names of nakshatras are printed between inverted commas, thus "Magha" is the nakshatra, Magha is the month.

		N.B.—All the three dates of Jaṭāvarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya of this year support A.D. 1253 or A.D. 1280 as the date of commencement of the reign. This is the one important reign among the Pāṇḍyas of the 13th century which still presents material for doubt.
		Over twenty dates are now available for this reign, to which may be added some six dates from Pudukkota State. Roughly about half of these dates point to A.D. 1253 (July) as the date of accession and about half to the year A.D. 1254 (end of April). When a like difficulty presented itself in the reign of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya (fl. 1292 A.D.) the writer conjectured that there were two kings of this name, one of whom began to reign in A.D. 1277 (February-March) and the other in A.D. 1303 (April-May)—vide page 97 of Epigraphical Report (Madras) for 1915-16, and this conjecture was subsequently confirmed by the discovery of a Śaka date (12th year—Śaka 1236 = A.D. 1314) for the Sundara-Pāṇḍya of A.D. 1303. Reasoning from analogy, one might infer that there was a Jaṭāvarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya whose reign began in July 1253 and another whose reign began about May A.D. 1281; but this inference is not yet established by indubitable proof. PART II.

Copper-plates.

Of the more important records of the collection registered during the year in Appendices A, B and C, the copper-plates of Appendix A form, as usual, the most interesting.

First in order comes a set of five copper-plates (No. 2 of Appendix A) strung together on a ring bearing a much worn-out seal. They were kindly forwarded to me by the Tahsildar of Nellore at the request of my Assistant Mr. C. R. Krishnama Achari. The plates are extremely thin and are $6\frac{3}{8}''$ long by $1\frac{1}{2}''$ broad. The first and last plates are written only on their inner sides. Each written side contains two lines of clear legible writing, a ring-hole on the right margin and the numerical symbol representing the number of the plate marked near this ring-hole. The plates, ring and seal together weigh $30\frac{1}{2}$ tolas. The ring was not cut when the plates reached me.

The writing is in antique characters of the type of the Guntur district plates of Rāja Attivarman born in the family of king Kandara (Indian Antiquary, Vol. IX, p. 102ff.). Our record is dated in the victorious year [2], Kārttika, śukla-trayōdaśī and is issued from Vijaya-Kandarapura. It states that the Mahārāja Dāmōdaravarman of the Ānanda-gōtra ordered the residents of the village Kaṅgūra informing them that this village was given to the Brāhmaṇas "for elevating (to the higher worlds) my ancestors for seven (successive) generations." Three groups of Brāhmaṇa donees with their respective gōtras are mentioned, viz., 11 of the Koṇḍinna (i.e., Kauṇḍinya)-[gōtra]; 5 of the Kassava (i.e., Kāśyapa)-[gōtra]; 1 of the Vatsa-[gōtra] and 1 of the Āgasti (i.e., Agastya)-[gōtra]. As in the case of the gōtras the names of the donees also are given in their Prākṛit forms, e.g., Ruddajja (Rudrārya), Khandajja (Skandārya), Aggijja (Agnyārya), Savarajja (Śabarārya), and Bhaddajja (Bhadrārya).

Dāmōdaravarman of the Ānanda-gōtra.

Although the exact date of the document is not possible to fix from the materials supplied, still it may safely be inferred from the Prākṛit forms used, that it could not be very far away in point of time from the Prākṛit plates of the early Pallava kings of the third and fourth centuries of the Christian Era. King Kandara after whom the victorious Kandarapura was evidently named and the Ānanda-gōtra to which both the Rāja Attivarman of the Guntur district plates and the Mahārāja Dāmōdaravarman of our plates belonged, are found mentioned also in an early inscription from Chezarla No. 155 of 1899 in the Narasarowpet taluk, Guntur district which by its early type of the Pallava-Grantha character alone must be referred to about the 3rd century A.D. One point, in the present record is of great interest and that is the attribute Samyak-Sambuddhasya pādānudhyātasya which is given to the Mahārāja Dāmōdaravarman. This might be understood in the sense that the king was a devotee of the Buddha or that he was the successor of a certain Samyaksambuddha, if explained in the usual way. Perhaps the former is what is more probably meant and if so this statement strongly supports the view lately expressed by the Archæological Superintendent Mr. Longhurst that the Śiva temple at Chezarla must have been once a Buddhist Chaitya.

2. The next copper-plate record in chronological order is No. 3 of Appendix A. It was received for examination from Mr. K. Nagesvara Rao, Editor of the Andhra Patrika, who states that it is the private property of the Rāja of Urlam, Ganjam district. The inscription consists of three copper-plates strung together on a ring the seal of which is now missing. The ring had been cut when the plates reached me, evidently by those who first examined the document. Mr. T. Rajagopala Rao, the Editor of the South-Indian Research, has given in his journal for July 1919 the text of the inscription. The plates measure $7\frac{1}{2}''$ in length and $2\frac{1}{2}''$ in breadth and with the existing ring weigh 42 tolas.

The record begins with the introduction with which the early Kaliṅga copper-plate inscriptions usually begin and states that 'from the victorious Kaliṅganagara, the worshipper of the divine feet of Gōkarṇasvāmin, he, that acquired the sovereignty over the whole of the country by wielding the sharp edge of his sword, the establisher of the spotless race of the Gāṅgas, the great Māhēśvara, Mahārāja Hastivarmā purchased from the residents of the Brāhman village (agrahāra) of Hoṇḍevāka in the district of Krōshṭukavartanī (a translation of the more common Varāha-vartanī ?), land to the extent of $2\frac{1}{2}$ halas and converting that into an agrahāra, exempted it from all taxes and conferred the same on a certain Jayaśarman, a native of Urāmalla (the modern Urlam), of the Vatsa-gōtra and a student of the Vājasanēya-[charaṇa], for the merit of himself and his parents, on the eighth day of the dark fortnight of the month Kārttika in the victorious year of reign 'eighty'. It is further stated that this edict of Rājasiṁha (or of the lion among kings) was, under the direct orders of the king, written by Vinayachandra, son of Bhānuchandra. On the outer face of the third plate is engraved a eulogistic Sanskrit verse in praise of the unopposed prowess of Raṇabhīta, which was evidently also a surname of our king Hastivarman.

Raṇabhīta Rājasiṁha Hastivarman—an early Gaṅga king.

3. Inscriptions dated in the Gāṅgēya-Śaka have been noted in Prof. Kielhorn's Lists of Northern Inscriptions, Nos. 676 to 684. Excepting No. 682 whose date appears doubtful, the earliest noted is the Achyutāpuram plates which is dated in the Gāṅgēya Era 87 and is a record of the Gaṅga-Mahārāja Indravarman Rājasiṁha. The next in Prof. Kielhorn's list (No. 677), dated in the Gāṅgēya Era 91 might also belong to the same king. King Hastivarman of our plates whose year was the Gāṅgēya Era 80 and who was also known by the surnames Rājasiṁha and Raṇabhīta, was evidently therefore an immediate predecessor of Indravarman Rājasiṁha whose Achyutāpuram plates were also written by Vinayachandra, son of Bhānuchandra. It must be noted that among the distant ancestors of Mādhavavarman of the Buguḍa plates (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. III, p. 41) figures a certain Raṇabhīta who need not necessarily be identical with the Raṇabhīta Hastivarman of our plates.

4. No. 1 of Appendix A is the next record in chronological order. It was received from the trustee of the temple of Guḍimallam at the instance of Mr. P. V. Jagadisa Ayyar, Manager of the Archæological Superintendent's Office, Madras. The record consists of five copper-plates with slightly raised rims, strung on a plain ring which was not cut when the plates reached me. They measure $7\frac{1}{4}''$ in length and $3\frac{3}{8}''$ in breadth and bear writing on the inner side of the first plate and on both sides of the other plates—the second side of the fifth plate bearing only one line of writing. The ring and plates together weigh 133 tolas.

This is the second Bāṇa copper-plate grant hitherto discovered. The first is the one of Vikramāditya (II) published by Prof. Kielhorn in Epigraphia Indica, Vol. III, p. 75 ff. The plates under notice also form a record of Vikramāditya II. They bear no date but may be referred to the beginning of the tenth century A.D. as suggested by his Udayēndiram plates referred to above. The inscription on the plates is written in Grantha characters of about the period to which they belong and in Sanskrit prose and verse except the last sentence which is in Tamil prose and says that "the puṟavu (revenue assessment) of the granted (village) is five hundred kāḍis of paddy and ten poṉ." The Sanskrit portion is corrupt and defective. It commences with a number of verses in praise of Śiva (called variously Vṛishēśa, Rudra, Bhīma and Śambhu) and then introduces king Bali, the chief of the Demons who granted the whole earth to Kṛishṇa (Vishṇu in his Trivikrama-avatār). In Bali's race was born Nandivarmman whose son was Vijayāditya I; his son was Malladēva; his son Jayamēru Vikramāditya I; his son Prabhumēru Vijayāditya II and his son Vikramāditya II. The latter conferred a renewal charter of the village of Viprapīṭha on a number of Brāhmaṇas who were well-versed in the three Vēdas and the Śāstras, who (lived on) Brahmadēya for generations, understood the dharma and performed Vēdic sacrifices without a break. The record closes with the names of the composer Śivatama, son of Śiva-Bhaṭṭāraka and of the scribe Parahitāchāri and the amount of the revenue assessment fixed on the village as already stated.

5. The genealogy given differs from that of the Udayēndiram fragmentary plates. The first name Nandivarman of the former is of course the same as Jaya-Nandivarman of the latter; Vijayāditya I and Malladēva who follow also correspond correctly. The next name, viz., Vikramāditya I Jayamēru of our plates occurs in the other plates two generations later, the intervening names being those of Bāṇa-Vidyādhara and Prabhumēru both of which are evidently general titles and not proper names. After Vikramāditya I came Vijayāditya II who receives the title Prabhumēru in our plates and the Tamil-title Pugaḷvippavarganḍa in the Udayēndiram plates. The last king Vikramāditya II, the donor in both the grants, had the surname Vijayabāhu as we learn from the Udayēndiram plates. Thus we see that in the new grant two generations of kings are omitted and instead of the 8 names of the Udayēndiram grant we have here only 6. It cannot be decidedly stated whether this omission is only incidental and due to a mistake or that it is intentional. Nor could it be said which of the two is correct unless we have outside evidence to confirm the genealogy of either the one or the other. The inference of Mr. Venkayya that Vikramāditya I and Vijayāditya II must have been known by the surnames Jayamēru and Prabhumēru is confirmed by the clear statements to that effect made in our present record.

Bāṇa King Vikramāditya II.

Tamil stone inscriptions of Vikramāditya Jayamēru and of Vijayāditya Prabhumēru dated in Saka 820 and 827 from Guḍimallam have been published both by Mr. Venkayya and Mr. T. A. Gopinatha Rao in Epigraphia Indica, Vol. XI, and Indian Antiquary, Vol. XL, respectively. In these the village of Guḍimallam receives the name Vippirambēḍu which is found in our present inscription in the Sanskritised form Viprapīṭha. Vikramāditya II, the donor of the grant, was a contemporary of the Rāshṭrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa II in the last decade of the 10th century A.D.

6. Mr. A. Rangaswamy Sarasvati while touring in the Tenali taluk of the Guntūr district spared no pains to secure a good number of old copper-plate inscriptions which had been locked up hitherto in a Vishnu temple at the village of Kōḍi-Tāḍiparru and in the house of Mr. Brindavanam Gopalacharlu of Ipūr village in the same taluk. All credit is due to Mr. Sarasvati for having brought these to light with much tact and energy which are required in the discovery of such documents often deposited as heirlooms in orthodox families.

7. Nos. 11 and 12 thus secured are particularly interesting and valuable belonging as they do to the Vishṇukuṇḍins—a family of kings of whom only two records (of about the 8th century A.D.) have been so far published with facsimile plates by Prof. Kielhorn and Dr. Hultzsch in Epigraphia Indica, Vol. IV, pages 193 to 198 and Ibid., Vol. XII, pages 133 to 136, respectively. Of the two new plates now discovered No. 12 is the earlier in point of time while both Nos. 11 and 12 appear very much earlier than the published Chikkulla Plates of Vikramēndravarman and the Rāmatīrtham plates of Indravarman. The characters in which No. 12 is written and which unfortunately are very faint and worn out, are almost similar in script to those of the early Pallava inscriptions and cannot therefore be referred to a period later than the 5th century A.D. The record consists of three thin copper plates strung together on a ring about 3″ in diameter which was not cut when the plates reached me. The plates measure 7″ by 1½″. The outer sides of the first and last plates are blank. A circular seal attached to the ring bears on its much worn-out surface the legend Śrī-Mādhava[varmma] engraved in two lines below a cross-bar over which, however, is seen something which may have possibly been the symbol of the lion as seen on the Chikkulla and the Rāmatīrtham plates or the figure of a Lakshmī or svastika as found on the seal of No. 11 noted below. The weight of the plates with ring and seal is 30 tolas. The grant was issued from Amarapura and the first king introduced is Mahārāja Mādhavavarman who had performed eleven horse-sacrifices and a thousand Agnishṭōma sacrifices and who had many dependent kings to worship his lotus-feet. The son of this Mādhavavarman was the powerful Dēvavarman and his grandson was the overlord of the Trikūṭa-Malaya country, the worshipper at the feet of the glorious god of Śrīparvata (mountain), the Vishṇukuṇḍin Mādhavavarman (II). The grant portion of the inscription with the possible date [30] 7 vā. pa. 7 di. 7 in 1·13 is extremely doubtful on account of the damaged condition of the plates.

Vishṇukuṇḍins.

Mādhavavarman (II).

8. No. 11 of Appendix A which comes from the same place consists also of three thin and small plates without rims, strung together on a copper ring 3″ in diameter which too was not cut when the plates reached me. The writing which is in excellent preservation occupies the inner sides of the first and last plates and both the sides of the second. The plates measure $6\frac{3}{4}$" by $1\frac{3}{4}$". The circular seal on the ring, $1\frac{1}{4}$" in diameter, bears the legend Śrī-Mādhavavarma in two lines, below a cross line which divides the surface into two equal sections. In the upper section is seen in relief the figure of a Lakshmī or a svastika on a pedestal flanked by lamp-stands, the sun (?) and the crescent. The weight of the plates with seal and ring is 30 tolas. The alphabet in which these plates are written is somewhat later than that of the previous record and may be referred to about the 6th century A.D. The inscription refers first to the Vishṇukuṇḍin Mahārāja Śrī Gōvindavarman, a devotee of the God of Śrī-Parvata, and then to his son Mahārāja Mādhavavarman who receives a long list of attributes. Among these are many similar in sense to those that occur in the Chikkulla and the Rāmatīrtham plates. Mādhavavarman is stated to have had his capital at Trivaranagara and to have performed a thousand Agnishṭōma sacrifices. From his victorious camp (vijayaskandhāvāra) at Kudāvāḍa, he informs the residents of Vilembali in the district of Guddādi-vishaya that that village has been granted to the Brāhmaṇa Agniśarman of the Vatsa-gōtra, in the victorious year of reign 37, on the 15th day of the 7th fortnight of the Summer season. The Executor (āṇñā) of the royal gift was the 'dear son' Maṇchyaṇṇa-Bhaṭṭāraka.

9. We know still of another Vishṇukuṇḍin grant which has not, however, been hitherto published. It is noticed on page 102 of the Epigraphical Report for 1914, paragraph 35. The alphabet in which it is written is of a much later type than those of all the others mentioned above; and the names of the kings referred to therein are in order of descent (1) Vikramahēndravarman, Gōvindavarman and Mahārāja Mādhavavarman also called Janāśraya-Mahārāja who 'crossed the river Gōdāvarī with a desire to conquer the Eastern region.' This Mādhavavarman was the latest of the Vishṇu-kuṇḍin kings known so far. The earliest is, as we have stated above, the Mahārāja Mādhavavarman of No. 12, the grandfather of Mādhavavarman who issued his grant from Amarapura. Taking all together we have a number of names of this important family who must have ruled in the Telugu country further north of the Pallava dominion contemporaneously with the Śālaṅkāyanas, the Bṛihatphalāyanas and the early Kaliṅga rulers.

10. These in chronological order are—

(15) his dear son Mahārāja Mādhavavarman or Janāśraya-Mahārāja who crossed the Gōdāvarī to conquer the East.

The Chikkulla and the Rāmatīrtham plates together supply only four names, for Nos. 6 to 8 are identical with Nos. 10 to 12 as proved by Professor Hultzsch. That Nos. 13 to 15 were the successors of Vikramēndravarman (II) of the Chikkulla and the Rāmatīrtham plates is established by the palæography of the plates, No. 7 of Appendix A of 1914, and by the title Janāśraya-Mahārāja applied to Mādhavavarman which does not occur in the earlier inscriptions which mention that king. No connexion can be established between the kings mentioned in copper-plates Nos. 12 and 11 of Appendix A since the latter must at least be a century later than the former, as already stated. But Mādhavavarman III (No. 5 above) and Mādhavavarman IV (No. 6 above) may possibly be identical. The Trikūṭa-Malaya country and the town Trivaranagara which are mentioned with reference to the early kings Mādhavavarman II (No. 3 above) and Mādhavavarman III (No. 5 above) respectively must be looked for to the north of the Gōdāvarī. We have perhaps to connect them with Trikūṭa and Tripura of the Traikūṭa kings mentioned at page 179 of the Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Part II. Trivaranagara is perhaps the same as Tripura or Tripuri which has been identified with Tevar near Jubbalpur (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VIII, p. 285) and Trikūṭa-Malaya is Trikūṭa mentioned in the Bālāghat plates of the Vākāṭaka king Prithivishēṇa II. These identifications, if correct, confirm only my original suggestion (Annual Report for 1909, page 110) that the Vishṇukuṇḍins 'must have been a distinctly northern family.'

11. Copper-plates Nos. 9 and 10 which also belong to the collection of Mr. Brindavanam Gopalacharlu of Īpūr village (Tenali taluk, Guntur district) are, again, two valuable old documents of the Eastern Chalukya kings [Jayasiṁha]-Vallabha Sarvasiddhi and Vishṇuvardhana (III)-Vishamasiddhi (?). Both the sets consist of three plates each of four written sides with slightly raised rims. They are strung on a ring bearing a circular seal. The plates of No. 9 measure a little over 8″ in length and over $2\frac{1}{2}$″ in breadth. Their ring is 3″ in diameter and the seal a little over $1\frac{1}{2}$″. The latter bears on a counter-sunk surface the legend Śrī Sarvasiddhi engraved in old Telugu characters with a lotus below and a crescent above. In the case of No. 10 the plates measure $6\frac{1}{2}$″ by about $2\frac{1}{2}$″ in the broadest part at the margin, the ring is 3″ in diameter and the seal $1\frac{1}{2}$.″ The latter bears on a counter-sunk surface the legend Śrī Vishamasiddhi. Below the legend is an expanding lotus flower of seven petals and above it are the crescent and a star. The plates (in both cases) with seal and ring weigh 35 tolas. The rings of both the sets were not cut when they were received for examination in this office.

Eastern Chalukyas.

The writing on plates No. 9 though very regularly formed is much worn, so much so that the name of the donor-king on the first face of the second plate is extremely doubtful. But the genealogy given commencing as it does with the name Kīrtivarman, his son Vishṇuvardhana Mahārāja and his son the great Bhāgavata. . . . . vallabha-Mahārāja and combined with the legend Sarvasiddhi on the seal, makes it certain that the plates belong to Jayasiṁha-Vallabha, the eldest son of Vishṇuvardhana I. Maṅgi-yuvarāja is mentioned in l. 12 as the master of the donee Maṇḍaśarman and we know that this prince was the grandson of Jayasiṁha-Vallabha's younger brother Indra-Bhaṭṭāraka. It is not impossible that Maṅgi-yuvarāja was already a grown-up prince during the last years of the reign of Jayasiṁha-Vallabha.

[Jayasiṁha]-Vallabha.

12. Plate No. 10 is in clear and legible characters and is very similar to that of the Ēdēru plates of Vijayāditya II (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. V, p. 120 and plate). The kings mentioned are Vishṇuvardhana-Mahārāja II, his son Vijayasiddhi (i.e., Maṅgi-yuvarāja) and the latter's son Vishṇuvardhana-Mahārāja (III). A grant of 20 khaṇḍikas of paddy-land was made in the 23rd year of this king's reign by the princess Prithivipōṛi daughter of Śrī-Maghinduvarāja to a Brahman named Kēśavaśarman. The relationship of Prithivipōṛi to king Vishṇuvardhana III is not made clear by the wording of the inscription. Records of Vishṇuvardhana III (A.D. 709 to 746) are rather rare. The surname Vishamasiddhi which he must have borne, as distinctly indicated by the legend on the seal, deserves to be noted. The executor (āj̃ñapti) of the grant was Kadaeṛeya (i.e., Kaṭakarāja) Tina of the Vāṭaṭṭa-gāma (village ?)

Vishṇuvardhana III-Vishamasiddhi.

We know of three other records of this king which have been hitherto discovered. These are :—(1) No. 9 of Appendix A in the Report for 1914 from which we learn that his queen was Vijaya-Mahādēvī who, it may be hazarded, could possibly be identical with Pṛithivipōṛi of our inscription ; (2) the Māvinṭhipalli grant noted at page 90, paragraph 10 of the Annual Report for 1915 and (3) the Musinikuṇḍa grant made to the Jaina temple at Bezwada (Annual Report for 1917, page 116, paragraph 21). From this last it appears that the Vishamasiddhi seal which we find attached to the present plates may, as in the other case, be possibly also one of Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana I who bore the surname Vishamasiddhi, since Vishṇuvardhana III is not known to have possessed this title from any of his own inscriptions.

The Rashtrakutas, Western Chalukyas and Yadavas of Devagiri.

13. In the collection of Kanarese inscriptions from the Ālūr tāluka of the Bellary district, there are, one Rāshṭrakūṭa record of the time of Amōghavarsha I, eleven of the early Western Chāḷukya kings of Bādāmi and of the later Western Chalukya kings of Kalyāṇi and four of the Yādava kings Kannara and Rāmachandra. The Rāshṭrakūṭa record is not dated ; but it must be one of Nṛipatuṅga Amōghavarsha I who ruled between A.D. 814–15 and 877–78. The name Duddayya referred to in No. 698 Appendix B as a son of the ruling king is not known from other inscriptions. Perhaps he was not in the direct line of ruling kings. The settlement, however, which this non-descript prince conferred on the twelve revenue divisions (viz.,) Indavali, etc., is interesting. It is stated that these were required to pay only the siddhāya-tax and that pulluḷvu, bālavaṇa and the māyiladeṛe taxes were remitted till earth and sun lasted, as a gift of Ballaha (Vallabha), i.e., his father Amōghavarsha I. The imprecation at the end calls upon the six gāmuṇḍas and the twenty-five mahājana-[Ba]ḷañjigas to protect the charity.

Amōghavarsha I.

14. Three records (Nos. 691, 724 and 734 of Appendix B) belong to the early Chāḷukya kings of Bādāmi whose names Vijayāditya Satyāśraya, Kīrtivarma Satyāśraya and . . . . . ditya Bhaṭāra are clear on the impression. In the last of the records where the king's name is not clear, a feudatory chief called Toṇḍamāna Muttarasa is mentioned as having captured Nāgamaṅgala and conferred certain privileges on the gāmuṇḍas, residents and accountants (karaṇa) of that village. The kings Vijayāditya Satyāśraya and Kīrtivarma Satyāśraya are in all probability identical with Nos. 7 and 9 on the genealogical table given opposite page 336 of Dr. Fleet's Kanarese dynasties in Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Part II.

Early records of the Chāḷukyan kings of Bādāmi in the Bellary district.

15. The eight remaining western Chāḷukya records belong to Trailōkyamalla Āhavamalla Sōmēśvara I (A.D. 1044 and 1068), Tribhuvanamalla Vikramāditya VI (A. D. 1076 to 1126), Bhūlōkamalla Sōmēśvara III (A.D. 1126 to 1238–39) and [Perma]-Jagadēkamalla II (1138–39 to 1149). A subordinate of Sōmēśvara I in Śaka 969, Sarvajit, was Gaṇḍarādityarasa, the lord of Māhismatīpura and the ruler of the Madhyadēśa, who was then in charge of Sindavāḍi one thousand, Beṇṇavūr twelve and the āya-bhatta village of Muṛugunda (No. 711 of Appendix B). Another subordinate of the same king was the Pallava chief Vīra-Noḷamba Pallava-Permānaḍidēva whose wife Dharevaladēvī, is stated in No. 710 of Appendix B to have made a grant to the Śiva temple of Kāḷapriya and the Vishṇu temple at Kañchagāṛa Beḷgali, i.e., the present Beḷagallu. Vīra-Noḷamba Pallava Permānaḍi is already referred to in paragraph 40, Part II of my Annual Report for 1916. Of the three records which belong to the time of Tribhuvanamalla Vikramāditya VI, two are in good preservation, i.e., Nos. 697 and 708 of Appendix B, and belong respectively to the 4th and the 50th year of the Chāḷukya-Vikrama Era. They mention the feudatory chiefs Jōgimayya and Daśavarmadēvarasa. The latter who is hitherto unknown to epigraphists was the lord of Miriñje (Miraj) and Gōkāvi (Gokak), born in the Solar race and the Kāśyapa-gōtra, whose distinguishing musical instruments were the Permaṭṭi and the kettle-drum and who bore the emblems of a tiger and an antelope. Jōgimayya may be identical with Jōyimayyarasa mentioned at page 131 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1916 as a feudatory of Vikramāditya VI. To Bhūlōkamalla Sōmēśvara III, the successor of Vikramāditya, belong two records (Nos. 695 and 699 of Appendix B) both of which are dated in the 8th year (Ananda) of Bhūlōkamalla-varsha. It was noticed in the Annual Report for 1918, page 134, paragraph 8, that the Chāḷukya-Vikrama years 8 and 9 given for a Bhūlōkamalla Sōmēśvara III in two records from the Bellary district, were respectively to be restored into 58 and 59. But as Bhūlōkamalla had started an Era of his own called Bhūlōkamalla-varsha, which commenced with the last year of Vikramāditya VI, it will be easier to assume that the mistake in this case is in the name Chāḷukya-Vikrama which must be changed into Bhūlōkamalla-varsha than in the figures of the regnal years.

Sōmēśvara III.

Vīra-Noḷamba Iruṅgōḷa-Chōḷamahārāja who held the titles 'the lord of Oṛeyūr', etc., is mentioned as a feudatory of Bhūlōkamalla Sōmēśvara III in No. 695, and prominence is given in this as well as in No. 699 to a merchant named Saudhare Gaṅgoṇḍa Garuḍi-seṭṭi who was occupying the position of the chief minister in charge of the administration of the State. Pratāpachakravartin Jagadēkamalla or Perma-Jagadēkamalla II who succeeded Sōmēśvara III on the Chālukya throne is represented by two records, viz., Nos. 696 and 701 of Appendix B. The former refers to the Mahāpradhāna, Śrīkaraṇa, Heri-lāḷa-sandhivigrahi and the sēnādhipati Kēsimayya, son of Kamma-Nāya[ka] who was the herggaḍe of Manedaḍe-nāḍu, Mi[diri]-nāḍu, Kosage, ... [lū]lūru-nāḍu, Kallakeḷagu-nāḍu, Koḷipāke-nāḍu and Sindavāḍi-nāḍu. His son the Daṇḍa-nāyaka Chīyamarasa was ruling the Sindavāḍi-nāḍu under his father. The records are dated in the 5th and 6th years respectively of the Jagadēkamalla Era, whose first year according to Dr. Fleet was the Siddhārtin Saṁvatsara = A.D. 1139 (Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts, page 457).

[Perma]-Jagadēkamalla II.

16. Of the Yādavas of Dēvagiri we have four records, viz., two of Kaṇṇara or Kaṁharadēva (Nos. 732 and 733 of Appendix B) and two of Rāmachandra (Nos. 717 and 718 of the same appendix). A Mahāpradhāna of the former was the Sarvādhikārin Jōgama-Rāhutta ruling the Sindavāḍi country. One of the latter's subordinate in the 17th regnal year Sarvajit, was Rāja-kulaḍa-rāya son of Dēvarāṇe who gave four villages in the Sindavāḍi-nāḍu to a certain Nāgeya-Nāyaka, son of Kammeya-Nāyaka who held the titles of Nāyaṅkarāchārya, Ekāṅgavīra, Svayambhu-khaṇḍeya-rāya, etc. Another subordinate officer of Rāmachandra in his 5th year Dhātṛi was Lakhumi-dēva-Nāyaka (son of ?) Vāsudēva not mentioned in other records of the king, known so far.

17. During the year under report the ancient Śiva temples of Tiruvārūr in the Tanjore district, Tirumaḷavāḍi in the Trichinopoly district and the Vishṇu temple of Aruḷāḷapperumāḷ at Conjeeveram which contain a very large number of inscriptions, were visited with the sole object of securing the records left uncopied in previous years.

In Tiruvārūr, the Tyāgarāja shrine was completely covered with chunam plaster; and special arrangements had to be made through the Collector of Tanjore to have the plaster removed by the trustees of the temple. Many records of the time of the early and medieval Chōḷas were secured from Tiruvārūr and Tirumaḷavāḍi. An inscription of Rājarāja I found in the latter place (No 92 of 1895) records an order of the king that the central shrine of the Vaidyanātha temple should be rebuilt and that before pulling down the walls, the inscriptions engraved on them should be copied down to be re-engraved on the renovated wall of the building. The fact is borne out by the form of the characters employed in the re-engraving of the early inscriptions.

18. No. 1 of 1920 dated in the 10th year of Parakēsarivarman who cannot be identified refers to the gift, by the queen Nakkaṇ Tillai Aḷagiyār alias Śōḷamādēviyār, of a silver spittoon (piṅgalam) for the betel leaf offered to the temple of Tirumaḷavāḍi-Uḍaiyār which is referred to in No. 98 of 1920 as Puṉalvāyil Śrī-Kōyil on account of its close proximity to the river Koḷliḍam, a branch of the Kāvēri.

Parakēsarivarman.

19. No. 14 of 1920 is dated in the 27th year of Rājakēsarivarman but from the astronomical details it is attributable to Rājarāja I who ascended the throne in 985 A.D. It records a gift of land by Iḷaṅgōṇ Pichchi, the senior queen (mūtta dēviyār) of Rājarāja I.

20. No. 680 of 1919 copied from the Tyāgarāja shrine at Tiruvārūr and dated in the 20th year (= A.D. 1030) of Rājēndra-Chōḷa I records a long list of gifts made to the god Vīdi-Viṭaṅkar, another name of Tyāgarāja, by Aṇukkiyār Paravai Naṅgaiyār, by Arumoḷikūttaṇ Lōkamārāyaṇ and by Iśaṇaikkurai-uḍaiyār Nakkaṇ Oṟṟi between the regnal years 16 and 18 of the king, in which period the shrine seems to have been built of stone by Aṇukki Paravai Naṅgaiyār and the gifts engraved on the walls in the 20th year. It is stated that between the 38th day and the 199th day of the 18th year the same lady covered the shrine of Vīdi-Viṭaṅkar (Tyāgarāja) with golden tiles mentioning the different weights of gold used in each set whose number is also given. The other parts of the shrine besides the central vimāna appear to have been covered by copper the total weight of which is also noted. The long list of endowments include amongst others, gold ornaments set with jewels, pearls, necklaces, ornaments for images set up in the temple, gold utensils for bathing the god and a large number of lamp-stands. One of the lamp-stands had to be lit at the place where the king Rājēndra-Chōḷadēva and Aṇukkiyār Paravai Naṅgaiyār took their stand in the temple. The above endowments were not recorded in the registers of the temple treasury until the 20th year. During the time of Rājēndra-Chōḷa's successors, viz., Rājādhirāja I and Rājēndradēva more ornaments and utensils appear to have been given and additional parts of the temple constructed.

21. No. 456 of 1919 dated in the 29th year of Kulōttuṅga III, records a gift of lamp by Bētarasa, son of Madurāntaka Pottappichchōḷa Manumasiddarasa to the temple of Aruḷāḷapperumāḷ at Conjeeveram. No. 589 of 1919 copied in the same temple and dated in the 35th year of Kulōttuṅga III records that the shrine of Anantāḻvār was built by Śīya-Gaṅgaṇ son of Chōḷēndrasiṁha, lord of Kuvaḷālapura and born of the Gaṅga family in Śaka 1134 (A.D. 1212).

22. In his Annual Report for 1908 paragraphs 65 and 66, Mr. Venkayya has referred to the sculptures of the Airāvatēśvara temple at Dārāśuram near Kumbhakōṇam which was constructed by Kulōttuṅga III. The north, west and south walls of the central shrine which contain a belt of these sculptures represent scenes from the lives of the Śaiva devotees as related in the Periyapurāṇam. Sketches were prepared in subsequent years by Mr. P. Visvanatha Ayyar, the artist and photographer of my office, and these scenic representations of the 13th century are now reproduced in plates I to VI. Detailed descriptions of the scenes seriatim are appended below to help easy identification of the sculptures.

Kulōttuṅga III.

Periyapurāṇam sculptures in the temple at Daraśuram near Kumbhakonam.

North Wall.

1. Avanāśiyāṇḍār Mudalaivāyppiḷḷai—(No. 1 on the north wall). Here a crocodile disgorges a male child which is being received by a woman, evidently the mother of the boy in accordance with the tradition relating to this incident. Sundaramūrtti Nāyaṇār, by singing a hymn in praise of the god, makes the crocodile in the tank in front of the temple at Avanāśi (in the district of Coimbatore) vomit forth the child which it had swallowed while the mother was bathing therein. The father of the child is close by, uplifting his hands in an attitude of worship.

2. Tirumuruganpūṇḍiyil perṟapaḍi (No. 2 on the same wall). Enroute to Tiruvārūr from the Chēra country and very near Tirumuruganpūṇḍi the treasure which Sundaramūrtti had obtained from the king was carried away by the pseudo-robbers sent by the god. At this he approached the deity in the temple at Tirumuruganpūṇḍi when the god commanded the wealth to be restored to him. The thieves are seen piling up the wealth in front of Sundara.

3. Uḍaiyanambiyai vēḍarvaḷiparittapaḍi (No. 3 on the same wall).—This refers to the above incident. The thieves are seen molesting the men that accompanied the treasure and carrying it away.

4. Uḍaiyanambikku ōlai veṇṇaruḷiṇapaḍi (No. 4 on the same wall).—Herein the sculpture refers to a quite different story altogether from what is understood by the label above. There was a young woman by name Śaṅgili who was leading a life of celibacy spending her time in the service of the god at Tiruvoṛṛiyūr. At the time when Sundaramūrtti visited the temple at Tiruvoṛṛiyūr he was enamoured of her and the god arranged to get them united in marriage but stipulated that Sundara should take an oath, as desired by Saṅgili, "never to part". As it was sacrilegious to take oath in a temple Sundara prayed that the god should absent himself from the temple temporarily and stop below the ಅಶ್ವತ tree. But the god instructed Śaṅgili to insist on the oath being taken below the tree under which he would stop. She points out the tree in the sculpture. Every year a grand festival is conducted in commemoration of this event under that particular tree.

5. Uḍaiyanambiyai āṇḍukoṇḍaruḷiṇapaḍi (No. 5 on the same wall).—When the marriage of Sundara was arranged, God in the form of an aged Brahman suddenly appeared before him and proved by documentary evidence that he was his vassal from his grandfather's time. When asked to point out his residence the old Brahman entered the temple at Tiruvennainallūr and there miraculously disappeared into the liṅga while Sundara observed.

6. . . . . vaṇa-ōlai kāṭṭiṇapaḍi (No. 6 on the same wall).—This refers to the proof given by God by showing the cadjan leaf containing the bond referred to in No. 5 above.

7. Uḍaiyanambi eḻundaruḷugirār (No. 7 on the same wall).—This sculpture cannot be identified clearly. Probably this refers to the birth of Ālālasundara, one of the beloved devotees of God Siva. On one occasion Ālālasundara while collecting flowers for God met by chance the two celestial women Aninditai and Kamalini who also came there to gather flowers for Pārvatī. There was mutual admiration. Śiva on this account directed Ālālasundara and the two ladies to be born on the earth in order that they might live together as husband and wives. Ālālasundara was born as Sundaramūrtti and the ladies as Śaṅgili and Paravai both of whom married Sundaramūrtti.

N.B.—The above 7 scenes relate to the miracles in Sundarar's life.

8. Iśaiñāniyār (No. 8 on the same wall).—The woman who brought forth the great Sundarar.

9. Śaḍaiyaṇār (No. 9 on the north wall).—The father of the famous Sundarar.

10. Tirunīlakaṇḍapperumbāṇār (No. 10 on the same wall).—This bhakta (devotee) is reputed for playing on a harp the songs in praise of the Almighty. Here he is seen in front of the temple at Madura with the instrument then in vogue. His devoted wife is holding a pair of jālara (cymbals) to sound with the same in order to help her husband to keep time.

11. Kō-Śeṅgapperumāḷ (No. 11 on the same wall).—This is a Chōḷa king who, by his great devotion, attained to the rank of Saints (Nāyaṇārs). As a king he is represented with a crown.

12. Nēśāṇḍār (No. 12 on the same wall).—This weaver of Kampili was so devoted to Śaivas that all the cloths and underwears he turned out daily in his loom he gave away as presents to the deserving and thus obtained salvation. He is seen disposing of his cloths.

13. Pāṇḍimādēvī (No. 13 on the same wall).—She was the wife of the Pāṇḍya king Neḍumāraṇ. She was the daughter of a Chōḷa king. She went by the name of Maṅgaiyarkkaraśiyār. When the king favoured Jainism she with the help of Sambandar, who then visited Madura, got him converted to his former religion—Brahmanism. Sambandar is seen seated on a stool.

14. Appālum-adichchārnda-adiyār (No. 14 on the same wall). This general name refers to those living beyond the three ancient kingdoms of Chēra, Chōḷa and Pāṇḍya, who were staunch devotees of Śiva. Only three are represented in worshipping attitude in front of the temple.

15. Muḷunīṟu-pūśiya muṇivar (No. 15 on the same wall). This applies to those that smear holy ashes over the whole of the body as laid down in the Āgamas. Six of these are shown worshipping God in front of a temple.

16. Mukkālam-tirumēṇi-tīṇduvār (No. 16 on the same wall). Those that perform pūjā (worship) to the liṅga thrice a day—dawn, midday and evening—according to the Āgama rules are counted amongst Śaiva devotees. Three devotees are seen worshipping the liṅga and of these the one on the right has a conch placed on a tripod and a bell which probably denotes the morning service.

17. Tiruvārūr-piṟandār (No. 17 on the same wall). Those born in the holy city of Tiruvārūr in the district of Tanjore are counted amongst the Śaiva devotees. Four devotees are seen in front of a temple and on the other side is a tree with a bull under it.

18. Paramaṇaiyē-pāḍuvār (No. 18 on the same wall).—This refers to the devotees that entertain the idea that Śiva alone is the greatest of the gods and sing His praise. Three such female devotees are seen with jālaras (cymbals) in the hand in the act of singing the God's praise. The Śiva temple here has a seated bull in front.

19. Pattaraiyē-paṇivār (No. 19 on the same wall).—The devoted of the devotees are honoured as Nāyaṇmārs. In this group several are seen in the attitude of worshipping the Śaiva devotees.

20. Kōṭpuliyāṇḍār (No. 20 on the same wall).—This Nāyaṇār of Tirunāṭṭiyattāṅguḍi in the Tanjore district was a commander-in-chief under a Chōḷa king. When going to serve in the army, he left instruction for the paddy stored by him being made use of only for the God but during a famine his relations used the grain themselves. On return he murdered them for the sin thus committed without even sparing a baby. This pleased the Almighty very much who appeared with his consort on a bull and admitted him amongst his retinue (gaṇas).

21. Puṟaṭṭuṇaiyār (No. 21 on the same wall).—This gurukkuḷ (temple priest) of Śrīvallipputtūr was faithfully worshipping the liṅga of the place even during the famine days. On account of the poor food he had then and the consequent weakness in his health the brass pot containing water slipped over the liṅga while bathing it and in his anxiety he fell into a stupor but the Almighty appeared to him in his dream and made him understand that under the bali-pīṭha there would appear a coin daily with which he could have his daily needs satisfied. In the illustration not only the individual is seen bathing the God but the bali-pīṭhā also.

22. Śeruttuṇaiyāṇḍār (No. 22 on the same wall).—He was a native of Tanjore. While worshipping the god in the temple at Tiruvārūr, the Nāyaṇār observing the wife of Kaḷarśiṅgar, a devotee who was present then, smelling the flowers intended for the God, could not put up with this sacrilegious act and cut her nose with the sword. We find another in a sitting posture preparing garlands out of the flowers given by a lady.

23. Iḍaṅgaḻiyāṇḍār (No. 23 on the same wall).—He was a king of Koḍumbālūr. A thief who stole the paddy in the granary was produced before him to be punished and he inquired into the cause. On ascertaining that in order to feed the Śaiva devotees the paddy was stolen, Iḍaṅgaḻiyāṇḍār not only released him but also made it public that anybody in need of wealth to feed bhaktas may freely make use of his granary and his treasury. While he is seated another standing below is seen tom-toming.

24. Kaḷarśiṅgaṇār (No. 24 on the same wall).—This Kāḍava (Pallava) king who subdued other kings and repaired all Śiva temples found fault with his wife who took out a flower intended for the God and smelled the same thinking that it was a stray flower and was not intended for the God. Śeruttuṇai Nāyaṇār (No. 22 above) who saw this cut the nose of the lady. The king who came to the spot

27. Neḍumāraṇār (No. 2 on the same wall).—This refers to the Pāṇḍya king Kūṉ-Pāṇḍya who favoured Jainism, but advised by Maṅgaiyarkkaraśi his wife and Kulaśirai his minister, he was able to go back to Hinduism on the occasion of Sambandar's visit to his place. His hunch-back was straightened and he was consequently called Neḍumāraṇār or Niṉṟaśīrneḍumāraṇ in full. The king is seated on a pedestal and the other attendants are seen below.

28. Kāriyār (No. 3 on the same wall).—This native of Tirukkaḍayūr (Māyavaram taluk, Tanjore district) was highly proficient in Tamil literature and was the author of Tirukkōvai. He obtained plenty of wealth from the three famous kings—Chēra, Chōḷa and Pāṇḍya—but spent all in renovating Śiva temples. At last he reached Mount Kailās. In the illustration he is seen approaching the Holy Mount.

29. Śirappuliāṇḍār.(No. 4 on the same wall).—Born at Ākkūr in the Tanjore district he spent his time in worshipping the Śaiva devotees giving them money and feeding them. He is shown as making presents to his fellow devotees.

30. Kaṇampulāṇḍār (No. 5 on the same wall).—He was born at Irukkuvēḷūr (Vaidīśvaraṇkōyil) in the district of Tanjore. He was in the habit of regularly burning lamps in temples. Once, in Chidambaram, when he could not get money to buy ghee he began to collect grass from the sale-proceeds of which he was burning the lamps. On a certain day when the grass collected could not find a sale he burnt the grass itself. But finding that the grass was not sufficient to keep the fire burning until the required hour he set fire to his own lock of hair. In the illustration he is seen burning the hairs in the fire. His wife behind is holding the grass bundle (torch ?).

31. Aiyaḍigaḷ Kāḍavarkōṉār (No. 6 on the same wall).—This Pallava king of Conjeeveram was a bigotted Śaiva and relinquished his kingdom in favour of his son and went abroad renovating the Śiva temples.

32. Śaṭṭiyāṇḍār (No. 7 on the same wall).—A native of Variñjiyūr in the Chōḷa kingdom. He was in the habit of cutting the tongue of those that spoke ill of Śaiva devotees. Here he is seen in the act of actually cutting the tongue of one with a sickle in his hand.

33. Kaliyaṇār (No. 8 on the same wall).—This wealthy oil-monger of Tiruvoṟṟiyūr after he had spent away his wealth in burning lamps in temples was in the habit of obtaining his wages for pressing oil and utilize the same for burning lamps in the temple. On a certain day when he could not get his wages he began to cut his head and used the blood instead of oil to burn the lamp. The Nāyaṇār is seen in front of the temple in the act of severing his head to obtain blood for the purpose.

34. Kalikkambāṇḍār kadai (No. 9 on the same wall).—This bhakta was in the habit of feeding the Śaiva devotees daily. One day before meals while about to wash the feet of one who appeared as a bhakta he found his wife hesitating to pour water as the individual turned out to be their old servant. This roused his anger and he cut her hand with the sickle. Piles of pots with food are heaped up. Three persons are seen sitting at meals. Śiva and Pārvati appear seated on their rishaba (bull) to give salvation to them.

35. Adipattar kadai (No. 10 on the same wall).—This fisherman of Negapatam was in the habit of dedicating the best of the fish he got daily from the sea to the god of the place. One day when he secured an only golden fish he willingly offered it to the god. Śiva with Pārvati appeared on a rishaba (bull) and gave him salvation. The Nāyaṇār is seen holding the fish in one hand and others drawing the net spread out in the sea.

36. Naraśiṅga-muṇaiyaraiyar (No. 11 on the same wall).—This king was giving presents to all wearing holy ashes especially on the days of Ārdrā asterism. On such a day even when a pseudo-Śaiva appeared before him he extended his generosity to him by paying double the amount. The king is shown with a beard, seated with his queen behind. Six others are seen in front receiving the present.

37. Pugaḷchchōḷaṇār (No. 12 on the same wall).—This Chōla king who was ruling at Uṟaiyūr (Trichinopoly) once ordered his army to proceed against Adigaṇ, a chieftain who failed to pay his tribute. On returning from thence they brought the heads and wealth of the enemies' army. On noticing in the midst of the heaps of heads one with matted hair, and finding it to be one of a bhakta, he became compunctious and entered the sacrificial fire with that head placed over his in a gold plate. Then Śiva and Pārvati appeared before him as is shown in the illustration.

38. Poyyaḍimaiyillāda pulavar (No. 13 on the same wall).—This refers to the poets of the last śaṅgam (learned assembly) of Madura who were staunch Śaivites. Nine of them are seen in the illustration between a shrine and a maṇḍapa.

39. Kūṟṟuvaṇār (No. 14 on the same wall).—This devotee conquered many chiefs and acquired enormous wealth. He had all the paraphernalia of an anointed king except the crown. When the Brahmans of Tillai (Chidambaram) refused to crown him king saying they would crown none but the Chōla king, he prayed to God Naṭarāja to crown him with his holy feet. God blessed him accordingly. His vassals are seen paying homage to him.

Gaṇanādāṇḍār kadai (No. 15 on the same wall).—This devotee of Shiyali (Tanjore district) was in the habit of daily instructing all who approached him in the matter of performing several kinds of services to God—raising flower-gardens, bringing water for the sacred bath, decorating temples, lighting lamps and reciting sacred hymns. At last he reached heaven. In the illustration he is seen instructing the several disciples who are standing on either side in front of the Almighty.

41. Śēramāṉ-Perumāḷ kadai (No. 16 on the same wall).—This is another name of Perumākkōdaiyār who was king of the Chēra country. As directed by God in a dream, he gave plenty of wealth to poet Bāṇapattirar of Madura and with Sundara reached Kailās in his last days. In the illustration he is seen getting down the elephant and worshipping poet Bāṇapattirar.

42. Śiruttoṇḍar kadai (No. 17 on the same wall).—This devotee of Tiruchchengāṭṭāṅguḍi in the district of Tanjore was a military officer at the beginning and led a successful campaign against Vātāpi (the modern Bādāmi in the Bombay Presidency). He would not eat his daily meals unless he found one to partake of the same in company. Later on he was residing in his own village and doing service to the God, who in the disguise of a Bhairava mendicant commanded him to cook the flesh of his only son for him, which he did. But then the God in disguise would not eat in the house of a childless couple. When the husband and wife were perplexed, the mendicant Bhairava commanded them to call for the boy who immediately came running. Thus he attained salvation. The boy as received by the mother in her arms is shown in the illustration.

43. Śākkiyaṇār (No. 18 on the same wall).—This devotee first adhered to Jainism. Finding it to be untrue he went back to Saivaism and spent his days in the worship of the liṅga. In the act of worshipping he forgot himself so much in his devotion that he took the bricks that were lying by and threw them over the liṅga without perceiving what he was doing. Thinking that this act of his should have been at the instigation of Śiva, he continued to do the same. Śiva was much pleased with this form of worship.

repairs to the temple at Tiruppaṅgūr near Vaidīśvaraṅkōyil. On learning that God acted as mediator between Sundaramūrtti and his wife Paravai he got offended with Sundarar. In order to show to him what a true devotee Sundara was, God made him suffer from paralysis and sent Sundara to cure him of it. Being displeased at the idea of getting cured at Sundara's hands he killed himself. When Sundara approached the house he was informed that the Nāyaṇār was sleeping on the cot. On approaching the cot, Sundarar recognized the true state of affairs and attempted to commit suicide. Thereupon Kalikkāmānāyaṇār was brought to life and prevented Sundarar from killing himself.

45. Āḷudaiya-piḷḷaiyār (No. 2 on the same wall).—This is the boy-devotee Sambandaṉ. While yet a child, his father left him on the bank of the tank within the temple at Shiyali. When the child felt the need of mother's milk, God asked Pārvati to feed him with the same. He was thus favoured with it in a golden cup. On completing the bath, the father finding a cup of milk before his boy began to chastise him and asked him from whom he got it. The youth pointed out the God and Goddess on the ṛishaba (bull). We find the boy holding a cup in his hand and the father in the act of punishing him with a cane in his hand.

46. Naminandi-aḍigaḷ (No. 3, same wall).—He was a native of Ēmappērūr near Tiruvārūr. He was desirous of burning a lamp in the shrine of Araṉēri within the temple at Tiruvārūr. On the Jainas residing near the temple refusing to let him have some ghee for the purpose he was much perplexed, when there arose an ærial voice directing him to burn the lamps with the water of the tank close by which he did to the astonishment of all. He is seen in the act of carrying water in a pot on the left side and lighting the lamp in front of the shrine on the right.

47. Śēṇṇalūr-piḷḷaiyār kadai (No. 4, same wall).—This is Chaṇḍēśvara who is seen in all Śiva temples. When he was devoutly worshipping the liṅga his father scolded him and kicked the pot containing the milk intended for the sacred bath. For causing this obstruction Chaṇḍēśa cut his father's leg with the axe. Pleased with this high devotion Śiva made him the head of all the devotees and also crowned him with a garland. Both the acts of cutting the father's leg and his being crowned with a garland are seen in the illustration.

48. Tirukkuripputtoṇḍar (No. 5, same wall).—This washerman devotee of Conjeeveram was in the habit of getting the clothes of all bhaktas washed. To test his sincerity God Ēkāmbaranātha in the disguise of an old Brahman gave his torn rag for being washed and returned before dusk the same day and at the same time brought on a heavy storm and darkness soon after. Unable to fulfill his promise, this Nāyaṇār attempted to dash his head against the stone, which God prevented and gave him salvation. To the left Śiva appears as an old Brahman holding a stick and in his front this Nāyaṇār with the torn cloth on his shoulder.

49. Tirunāḷaippōvār (No. 6, same wall).—This is the famous Pariah saint Nandaṉ who joined the Nāyaṇārs by the grace of God Naṭarājā at Chidambaram. When he was precluded from entering the temple being an outcaste, God Naṭarāja directed him to get himself purified by entering the sacred fire. This he did as seen in the illustration.

50. Iḷaiyamāraṅguḍi Mārār kadai (No. 7, same wall).—This bhakta was fond of feeding all pure devotees of Śiva At a time when he had no food-grains, Śiva as an aged Brahman went to him at midnight and asked for food. He collected the paddy seeds sown in the field in the morning and had the food ready. Then he woke up the aged Brahman who was pretending to be asleep. The Brahman manifested himself into Śiva with Pārvati on a bull. The Nāyaṇār is seen on the left in the act of holding a basket and the Brahman sitting in the middle; while on the left on a bull the God and Goddess are seen.

23. Of the large number of inscriptions of Rājarāja III secured during the year, No. 91 of 1920 copied from Tirumaḷavāḍi and dated in the 7th year (= A.D. 1233) deserves notice. A certain Kūṟṟūruḍaiyāṉ Teṟṟi Periyāṉ alias Ēdiriliśōḷa Mūvēndavēḷāṉ repaired the nṛitta-maṇḍapa in the temple of Tirumaḷavāḍi-Uḍaiyār, the Vishṇu temple with its maṇḍapa and the Tāyilunallāṉ-maṇḍapa by extending their area and improving their general appearance. He replanned the village and opened the street called Vikrama-Chōḷaṉ-tiruvīdi by filling up a large pit in the centre of the village. He also protected the village from the inundations of the river Koḷḷiḍam by removing further south the southern embankment at the spot where the river turning to the north was likely to damage the village during high floods. For these meritorious acts of his, he was requested to live in the village of Tirumaḷavāḍi and a house was given him to live in. At present the said corner is being protected by a stone embankment by Government.

Rājarāja III.

The Kings of Kongu.

24. Dhārāpuram which is found mentioned in inscriptions as Parāntakapuram and Rājarājapuram, and which is claimed to have been the quondam capital of the Koṅgu kings for some time, was taken up for a detailed talukwar survey during the year in response to a request from Mr. F. J. Richards, Collector of Coimbatore.

In popular legend, Dhārāpuram is commonly believed to be Virāṭapuram, wherein the scenes of the stirring incidents of the last year of the Pāṇḍavas' exile were laid in the Mahābhārata, and the fertile Hindu imagination has coupled certain places in and around this town with memorable episodes from the great epic. For instance, Daḷavāyppaṭṭaṇam five miles to the south of Dhārāpuram, is considered to be the place where the brothers met in solemn conclave (taniyirukkai) to pitch on Virāṭapuram as best suited for their life of incognito; Kaḍaṟṟūr, Kārattoḻuvu, and Tiruppūr are connected with the cattle-lifting raids of Duryōdhana; Kīranūr is the tryst where Bhīma met and fought his vengeful duel with Kīchaka, and Nañjupoygai near Aravakkurichchi, the watercourse from off which the brothers quaffed their poisoned drink. It is also noteworthy that Draupadī seems to be a fairly popular name among the women-folk of the labouring classes.

Dhārāpuram in legend.

In the year under review about 180 inscriptions were copied in this taluk, the major portion of which are records of the kings of Koṅgu; but they have not helped to dispel the obscurity in which the history of these kings is enveloped with their puzzling maze of Chōḷa and Pāṇḍya names.

25. First in order comes a record of Vikrama-Chōḷa (No. 187 of 1920) dated in the 20th year of his reign. He has been distinguished by the title 'Kōṉāṭṭāṉ'. A record of this Vikrama-Chōḷa with the same epithet has been found at Tiṅgaḷūr in the Coimbatore district (No. 614 of 1905) and is dated in Śaka 9[67] (= A.D. 1044) his 40th year. Five records of the present collection (Nos. 131, 183, 185, 190, and 215 of 1920), in neatly engraved Vaṭṭeḻuttu alphabet belong to the reign of a king Kalimūrkha Vikrama-Chōḷa with dates ranging between his 27th and 42nd years, and, considering the ancient form of the script used and the high regnal years given, it is not improbable that the two kings are identical. If this is so, Vikrama-Chōḷa's reign of 40 years known so far is extended further by two years while his initial date would be A.D. 1004–5. It may be noted that the title Kalimūrkha is also assumed by the Chēra king Ravikōdai (No. 12 of 1891). Two of the Vaṭṭeḻuttu inscriptions of this king (Nos. 183 and 185 of 1920) begin with a short introduction which being nothing more than a laudatory prelude refers "the year of the King when, having taken Vendi-nāḍu he wielded the sceptre seated resplendent under his glowing white parasol appropriating for himself just a sixth share of the produce of the land discarding the rest and was (to his subjects) like a mother dear to her new-born babe." In No. 187 of 1920 noticed above, the name of the king's daughter is given as Vikramamāśōḷa[ṉ-Śōḷamā]dēviyār, while in No. 183 of 1920 are mentioned Tirukkaḷumala-nāḍu (Shiyali in the Chōḷa country was called Kaḷumalam) and the name of the donor, one Vāṇavaṉ Uttaramantri.

Kalimūrkha Vikrama-Chōḷa.

26. Kō-Abhimāna-Chōḷa Rajādhirāja whose reign must have extended from 1080 at the earliest to at least 1100 A.D. (No. 573 of 1905) is represented by three inscriptions (Nos. 202, 223 and 249 of 1920); but in the last one the king appears without the prefix Abhimāna-Chola.

Abhimāna-Chōḷa Rājādhirāja.

Nos. 198 and 205 of 1920 are records of king Rājādhirāja Uttama-Chōḷa, of his 8th and 17th years respectively. The name Rājādhirāja prefixed as his patronymic may perhaps favour the conclusion that Uttama-Chōḷa was the son of Abhimānā-Chōḷa Rājādhirāja and succeeded him on the throne. A different Abhimāna-Chōḷa [Rājādhirāja], a relative (urimaiyar) of the king's sāmantas figures as the donor in No. 205 of 1920 and mention is made in No. 198 of 1920 of a certain Kēraḷakēsari Amarabhayaṅkaraṇ Kōṭpuliyār, one of the Vāḷilārs (?) of the king.

Rājādhirāja Uttama-Chōḷa.

27. No. 192 of 1920 is a record of the 6th year of king Rājādhirāja Vīra-Chōḷa whose reign began in 1118–19 A.D. and continued at least for five years (Annual Report for 1905–06, paragraph 38). The title Rājādhirāja prefixed to his name makes him also a probable son of Abhimāna-Chōḷa Rājādhirāja and therefore the brother of Rājādhirāja Uttama-Chōḷa. The inscription supplies the interesting information that the lands of a Brahman named Kāmakkāṇi Sōmāśi who was arraigned for high treason, were confiscated to the State and that they were purchased by one Periyāṇ Śōḷaṇ alias Vīraśōḷkkaṅgayaṇ for 30 pon and presented to the temple of Valañjuḷināṭha at Piramiyam alias Vīraśaṅgāda-chaturvēdimaṅgalam for the expenses connected with the recitation of the Tiruppadiyam hymns. In three inscriptions Nos. 111, 189 and 204 of 1920 figures a king named Vīra-Chōḷa Kalimūrkha-Perumāḷ with regnal years 14, 13 and 24 respectively and considering the form of the Vaṭṭeḻuttu alphabet in which some of his records are engraved, it is likely that he was earlier in point of time to Parakēsarivarman Vīra-Chōḷa 'who ruled the two Koṅgus' but may be identical with Perumāḷ Vīra-Chōḷadēva mentioned in paragraph 41 of the Annual Report for 1909–10. Future researches must establish whether Rājādhirāja Vira-Chōḷa and Vira-Chōḷa Kalimūrkha-Perumāḷ were identical or if different, the relationship that existed between them which may in all probability have been that of father and son.

28. No. 276 of 1920 mentions one Uttama-Chōḷa Vīranārāyaṇa with the regnal year 2 and there is nothing to controvert his identification with Rājakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīranārāyaṇa (paragraph 41 of the Annual Report for 1909–1910) whose latest year hitherto discovered is 10. The name of Uttama-Chōḷa prefixed to him probably indicates that he was the son of Rājādhirāja Uttama-Chōḷa and we may not be far wrong in surmising that Vīranārāyaṇa was an infant when his father died and that during his minority his uncle and probably his son after him reigned on the throne and that when Vīranārāyaṇa came of age the kingdom passed into his hands by the death of Vīra-Chōḷa Kalimūrkha-Perumāḷ or on account of his own greater claim to the throne as the descendant of a direct line. Between Rājādhirāja Uttama-Chōḷa and Kulōttuṅga mentioned in the next paragraph an interval of about 30 years, the reigns of Rājādhirāja Vīra-Chōḷa and Vīra-Chōḷa Kalimūrkha-Perumāḷ (for 5 and 24 years respectively if the two kings are different or for only 24 years if they are identical) and that of Vīranārāyaṇa for at least 10 years have to be accommodated. This view is also in consonance with the conclusion arrived at on page 105 of the Annual Report for 1909–10 that Perumāḷ Vīra-Chōḷa must have been either a predecessor or a contemporary of Vīranārāyaṇa.

Uttama-Chōḷa Vīranārāyaṇa.

29. The next king of this dynasty is Rājakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva whose reign may have commenced in about 1149 A.D. working back from the known date of Vīrarājēndra's accession and extended to at least 34 years according to No. 661 of 1905. Among the inscriptions in this year's collection Nos. 165, 194 and 275 of 1920 refer to him with the two titles, while the rest (Nos. 171, 181, 201, 266 and 280 of 1920) mention him only by name and in none of these has the regnal year 34 been exceeded.

Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva.

30. By far the largest number of records of the dynasty copied this year are those of Vīrarājēndra and the regnal year 45 still continues to be the maximum limit for him. But they do not contain any fresh matter of special historical value that could help to throw light on the history of his long reign. No. 118 of 1920 mentions Pulāmbi[r]aikkōṭṭai, a fortified stronghold in his kingdom, which was garrisoned by a contingent of 1,000 men under the captaincy of one Kōkaṇḍara Pallavaraiyaṇ. In No. 123 of 1920 a town called Rājavichchādirapuram finds mention and a certain sāmanta of the king, Teliṅganāḍuḍaiyāṉ by name, is the donor figuring in No. 154 of 1920. Koṅgūr was called Jayaṅgoṇḍaśōḷanallūr and it is not unlikely that Jayaṅgoṇḍaśōḷa was the surname of Vīrarājēndra or his predecessor Parakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīra-Chōḷa, both of whom claimed to have ruled the two Koṅgus. Amudaṉ-achchu mentioned in No. 182 of 1920 seems to have been a standard coin of currency of those times in addition to ānai-achchu and undi-achchu noticed in paragraph 20 of the Annual Report for 1915–16. 'Rājakēsari-kāl' (No. 181 of 1920) and 'Parakēsari-kāl' (No. 183 of 1920) were evidently the names of the standards measures of quantity and 'Parakēsari-kal' occurring in the latter, the name of the touch-stone for testing the standard fineness of gold; and a gold bar of the royal standard of purity seems also to have been kept for purposes of test and verification—compare the expression "பரகெசரிக்கல் கூளகிறை செம்பொன்ஆணி ஞடொ[ப்*]பது" in No. 186 of 1920.

His successors.

31. In the Annual Report for 1905–06 it has been pointed out that there were two Vikrama-Chōḷas who succeeded Vīrarājēndra, one probably a Parakēsari with a reign of at least 8 years from 1255 A.D. and the other a Parakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin whose reign began in 1273–74 A.D. and extended to at least 27 years (No. 6 of the list in paragraph 39 of the Annual Report for 1909–1910). Several inscriptions of Vikrama-Chōḷa have been discovered this year with regnal years ranging even to so high a figure as 30; but it is not possible to identify to which of the two kings they belong. Only this much can be inferred therefrom that the reign of one of them, presumably the latter, extended to 30 years. No. 196 of 1920 is a record of the 13th year of a still another Vikrama-Chōḷa, with the epithets Parakēsari Tiruchchiṟṟambalamuḍaiyāṉ.

Vīra-Paṇḍya.

32. The date of Rājakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīra-Pāṇḍya whose reign has been fixed in the Annual Report for 1905–06 to have begun in 1265 A.D. and to have continued for at least 16 years still remains the same.

Sundara-Pāṇḍya.

Sundara-Pāṇḍya is represented by some inscriptions of which the highest regnal year is 28 as against 37 in previous years' collections; but in the absence of any specific data, his place in the Koṅgu chronology continues indefinite. No. 160 of 1920, a record of Alaṅgiyam alias Uttamachōḷanallūr, mentions a gift of land for the maintenance of a maṭha for Nāyaṉār Jñānamūrttidēvanāyaṉār made in the reign of a king whose name has tentatively been read as Emmaṇḍalamum-koṇḍaruḷiya Vīra-Sundara in the [7]51st year, Aṟpaśi month. It is not understood who this king is and to what era the date belongs.

Varaguṇa Parāntaka, probably the Chēra king Kōkkaṇḍaṉ.

33. No. 208 of 1920 is the only inscription of this year's collection which mentions a Chēra king. It is in much damaged Vaṭṭeḻuttu characters and is dated in the 6 + 9th year of Kō-Varaguṇa Parāntaka who bears the characteristic Chēra title of Chandrādityakulatilaka and also calls himself a Sārvabhauma. His name which is composed of the names of the Pāṇḍya king Varaguṇa (862 A.D.) and the Chōḷa king Parāntaka (A.D. 907) leads to his probable identification with Kōkkaṇḍaṉ-Vīranārāyaṇa or Kōkkaṇḍaṉ Ravi, the contemporary Chēra kings of the time who had entered into political relations with the Pāṇḍya Varaguṇa and the Chōḷa Parāntaka as surmised on page 59 of the Annual Report for 1910–11 and on page 61 of the Annual Report for 1911–12 or with some other immediate successor in the Chēra line. It may also be remembered that Parāntaka I married a daughter of Kōkkaṇḍaṉ-Ravi, S.I.I., Vol. II, p. 386.

34. With the additional information now available, the following may be taken as a tentative list of the Koṅgu kings so far known:—

Kōnāṭṭāṉ Vikrama-Chōḷadēva probably also called Kō-Kaliṁūrkha Vikrama-Chōḷadēva from 1[00]4 to at least 1046 A.D.

Parakēsarivarman Abhimānachōḷa Rājādhirāja from 108* to at least 1100 A.D.

Rājakēsarivarman Rājādhirāja Uttama-Chōḷa with a reign of at least 17 years.

Rājādhirāja Vīra-Chōḷa from 1118 for at least 5 years.

Perumāḷ Vīrachōḷadēva or Vīraśōḷa-Kalimūrkha-Pērumāḷ with a reign of at least 24 years.

Rājakēsarivarman Uttama-Chōḷa Vīranārāyaṇa, probably also called Rājakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīranārāyaṇa and Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ with a reign of at least 10 years.

Rājakēsarivarman Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva from about 1149 to about 1183 A.D.

Parakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīra-Chōḷa 'who ruled the two Koṅgus', also called Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ with a reign of at least 23 years.

Rājakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīrarājēndradēva also called Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ from 1207 to at least 1252 A.D.

Parakēsarivarman Vikrama-Chōḷa from 1255 to at least 1263 A.D.

Rājakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīra-Pāṇḍya from 1265 to at least 128[illegible] A.D.

Parakēsarivarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vikrama-Chōḷa from 1273 to at least 30 years.

35. The kings whose place in the Koṅgu line has yet to be fixed in the light of future researches are—

Rājarāja Karikāla-Chōḷadēva perhaps also called Rājarāja (12th year), who must have been a very early king of this line if not identical with Rājarāja the Chēra feudatory of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Chōḷa-Pāṇḍya (page 294 of Epigraphia Indica, Vol. XI), Sundara-Pāṇḍya whose latest year is 37, and several unspecified and unidentifiable Rājakēsarivarman Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉs and Parakēsarivarman Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉs.

The Vijayanagara Kings.

36. Conjeeveram, the queen-city of the south, which has passed through many vicissitudes and whose possession was coveted by successive dynasties of kings with varying degrees of success, was taken up first in the talukwar survey arranged for the field-season and the work of copying was started in the Varadarājasvāmin temple at Little Conjeeveram, the result being a yield of over 300 inscriptions exclusive of those copied in previous years.

A pretty fair proportion of the inscriptions are records of the later Chōḷas, and their feudatories Gaṇḍagōpāla and Vijayagaṇḍagōpāla. These latter have been dealt with separately under 'Miscellaneous dynasties'. More than fifty per cent belong to the Vijayanagara kings from Vīra-Sāyaṇa Uḍaiyār down to Veṅkaṭa II, who despite their general religious toleration as evidenced by their charities to both Śiva and Vishṇu temples, seem, however, in later times to have developed a special predilection to Vaishṇavism and to have made the Varadarāja temple an object of their special adoration. The inscriptions are not, however, historically fruitful and do not add to the knowledge we already possess about these kings and their times. They record mostly gifts for offerings and cakes for the god appending monotonous and exceedingly detailed grocer's lists of the ingredients required for the preparation of the cakes and the ratios of their distribution to the temple servants and others.

37. The earliest Vijayanagara king represented in this year's collection is Vīra Sāyaṇa Uḍaiyār. The astronomical data furnished in the inscription for his 14th year work out correctly for Śaka 1285 (October 12, 1363 A.D.); and as we know from No. 188 of 1903 that the 15th year of Vīra-Sāyaṇa Uḍaiyār, son of Kampaṇa I, corresponded to Śaka 1285, we are enabled to identify the king of the present inscription with that same son of Kampa I. Another inscription (No. 241 of 1920) of the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Vīra Sāyaṇa Uḍaiyār discovered at Kāṅgayam in the Coimbatore district is dated in the cyclic year Dundhubi corresponding probably to Śaka 1304 (roughly A.D. 1382–83) and belongs therefore to the son of Bukka I.

Sāyaṇa Uḍaiyār.

38. In a record (No. 662 of 1919) of Kampaṇa II dated in Śaka 12[96] figures the donor, Kōnappa, a son of Muddappa, who vaunts the Vijayanagara titles of Arumbakaṇḍaṉ and Bāshaikkuttappuvarāyagaṇḍaṉ. Two records of the same king (Nos. 135 and 136 of Appendix C) dated in Pramādīcha (corresponding to Śaka 1295) copied in the Dharapuram taluk (Coimbatore district) are the earliest Vijayanagara records hitherto discovered in Koṅgu and they state that the temple of Nāgīśvara-muḍaiyār which was defiled and devastated during the Muhammadan raids (Tulukka-vāṇam) was restored by a certain Āvuḍaiyarājā, a local chieftain. This leads to the not improbable conclusion that Koṅgu was at this time a Vijayanagara viceroyalty.

Kampaṇa II.

Harihara II.

39. In No. 661 of 1919 belonging to Harihara II in Śaka 1325, the donor Obhaḷadēva Mahārāya, son of Piḷḷaiyār Podukkamūr Siddharaśar is mentioned with a long string of Sanskrit epithets, such as Vrishabhalāñchana, Bhāradvājagōtra-pavitra, Maiḷāpurandhara, Mallāpuravallabha, Pallavāditya, Jagadēkabhairava, Bhuvani-nārāyaṇa, Rūpakandarpa, etc.

Harihara III.

40. Harihara III is also represented by an inscription in the same tāluka (No. 227 of 1920) dated probably in Śaka 1330, which mentions that a village called Ālambādi was permitted to be colonised by ryots for cultivation purposes and that gifts of Dēvarāyapoṉ (same as the Dēvarāya-pagodas mentioned on page 85 of the Annual Report for 1910–11) and a tax of one paṇam per village were given to the temple for its expenses.

Kumāra-Mallikārjuna.

41. Of Kumāra Mallikārjuna this year's collection gives only one inscription in Conjeeveram and about half a dozen in Dharapuram. In No. 212 of 1920, Kampayanāyaka is mentioned as the king's திருவக்கர், the meaning of which designation is not clear, whereas he is the king's agent or viceroy (kāriyattu-kaḍavar) in No. 216 of 1920.

Virūpāksha II.

42. No. 658 of 1920, a record of Virūpāksha II, son of Dēvarāya Mahārāya, contains some interesting information in regard to the facilities afforded to tenants for bringing waste lands under cultivation and mentions that a piece of land, situated in the middle of certain temple property in Paḍaiparṟu alias Tēperumāḷnallūr, which was, on account of its high level, unirrigable and was therefore lying waste from time immemorial (anādikaṟambu) overgrown with heath and other wild shrubs, was purchased as uḷavukkāṇi, that its profitless level was tackled and that it was then made irrigable by means of a new channel and that the income accruing from the land, as thus improved, was distributed between the Varadarāja and Tirumaḷiśaiāḷvār temples in a certain ratio.

Vīra-Narasiṅgadēva-Mahārāya.

43. In No. 601 of 1919 issued in the reign of Bhujabala Vīra-Narasiṅgadēva Mahārāya in Saka 143[1] a Seṭṭi of Narasiṅgarāyapuram provides, among other things, for offerings to Tirukkacchinambi, the Seṭṭi saint of Conjeeveram and a contemporary of Rāmānuja, whose memory is now seen perpetuated in the name of the Tirukkacchinambi street (the present Chetti street) and in a small shrine in it dedicated to him.

Kṛishṇarāya.

44. Inscriptions belonging to Kṛishṇarāya have mainly been copied at Conjeeveram, while Ālūr in Bellary and Dhārāpuram in Coimbatore have also contributed a small number. Of these, two copies of the same inscription (Nos. 474 and 533 of 1919) copied at Conjeeveram give a complete list of Kṛishṇarāya's conquests prior to Śaka 1438 and contain so far as the historical introduction is concerned the same information as in No. 574 of 1902 (Tamil inscription at Tiruvaṇṇāmalai) and No. 196 of 1903 (Telugu inscription at Kāḷahasti), a portion of which has been summarised on page 7 of the Annual Report for 1902. The second series of the king's conquests were that with a view to subdue the country of Kaliṅga, he started again for Bezwada, laid siege to the fort of Koṇḍapalḷi and captured alive the (Oriya) chiefs Praharāju-Śiraschandra Mahāpātra, Bōḍajana Mahāpātra, Bijilikhan and others who were assembled within that fort and promising them pardon proceeded further storming the Teliṅgāna forts of Anantagiri, Uṇḍrakoṇḍa, Aruvapalḷi, Jallipalḷi, Kaṇḍikoṇḍa, Kappaluvāyi, Nallakoṇḍa, Kambameṭṭu, Kanakagiri, Śaṅkagiri and other fortresses on the way, and marched to Simhādri and after erecting a pillar of victory at Pōṭṭunūru in the very heart of the Kaliṅga country he performed certain Mahādānas in company with his consorts who had accompanied him in his campaigns and thence returned to Vijayanagara via Rājahmundry. Certain discrepancies between the accounts of these campaigns as culled from lithic records and as collected from Telugu literature are noticed on page 180 of the Director-General's Annual for 1908–09. The king then made a religious tour in the south and halting at Conjeeveram on the way made to the Varadarāja Perumāl at Vishṇu-Kāñchi a present of the Puṇyakōṭi-vimāna which he gilt with gold for 1,000 varāhas. This gift of the king which is mentioned as having been made for the merit of his father Narasānāyaka and his mother Nāgalādēvī is again recorded in three trilingual (Tamil, Kanarese and Telugu) inscriptions (Nos. 478, 513 and 569 of 1919) which begin with the usual historical introduction in Sanskrit that is generally found in his copper-plate grants (vide Epigraphia Indica, Vol. I, p. 362) giving the genealogy of the Tuḷuva dynasty from Īśvara down to Krishṇarāya, while No. 664 of 1919 records the same bare gifts in Tamil verse and No. 510 of 1919 in Kanarese prose. When three months later, the king again camped at Conjeeveram and had granted two villages for the floating festival of Ēkāmranāthasvāmin at Big Conjeeveram, No. 641 of 1919 informs us that a deputation consisting of the trustees and other employees of both the Śiva and Vishṇu temples waited on the king and after some representations made on either side in regard to the boggy nature of the soil near Sippiyar-madu that lay on the car-track the parties came to an agreement, fixing the routes to be followed by the cars and vāhanas of the two temples in their festive rounds. The king also with a characteristic display of liberality availed of this occasion to present a car each to the Vināyaka and Kṛishṇa images of the two temples.

45. In No. 370 of 1919 we get the information that the Mādhva teacher Paramahamsa Parivrājakāchārya Vyāsa-Tīrtha, the disciple of Brahmaṇya-Tīrtha, secured from the king, the village of Pulambākkam in Paḍaivīḍu-rājya, for conducting the Āvaṇi festival, in his own name, of god Varadarāja and also got the king's sanction for presenting a Śēshavāhana of gold which had to be used as a vehicle of the god on the fourth day of all festivals.

46. In No. 418 of 1919, Rāyasam Ayyapparasa is mentioned as the son of Goṭṭimukkil Timmarasa of the Bhāradvāja-gōtra, and the Āśvalāyana-sūtra, while in No. 53 of the Nellore Inscriptions he is stated to be the son of Vēmarasayya and the subordinate of Rāyasam Timmarasayya and on page 192 of the Director-General's Annual Report for 1908–09, he is mentioned as the son of Koṇḍamarasayya.

From the Dhārāpuram inscriptions (Nos. 280 and 290 of 1920) we learn that Koṇḍamarasayya and Timmā-Daṇāyaka Uḍaiyar were the agents of the Vijayanagara kings in their southern dominions at this period and that one Vālayadēva-Mahārāja was the trusted sub-agent 'the right hand' in Koṅgu under them till Śaka 1454. In No. 214 of 1920 the latter is himself promoted to the Chief agent's place with the title of Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara and has a sub-agent under him in the person of Raghupatidēva-Mahārāja.

No. 213 of 1920 is dated in Kali 4633, Viya, evidently a mistake for Vijaya, corresponding to Saka 1454–55 in the reign of Kṛishṇadēvarāya; but as we know that Kṛishṇarāya died in Śaka 1452 and was succeeded by his half-brother Achyutarāya in the same year, there seems to be some mistake either in the name of the king mentioned or in the date given in the record.

47. Achyutarāya is represented by a fairly large number of inscriptions ranging from Śaka 1450 to 1463 although his regular coronation took place at Tirupati in Śaka 1452. Two inscriptions (Nos. 511 and 543 of 1919) mention that he performed the tulābhāra of pearls and No. 543 of 1919 refers to Mahādānasahasragōdāna and other ceremonies performed by him at the time of his visit to the Varadarājasvāmi temple in company with his wife Varadādēvī and his son Chinna Venkaṭādri. Two epigraphs (Nos. 374 and 373 of 1919) dated in Śaka 1452 and 1461 respectively, relate to offerings to the god during the Chāturmāsa-Ēkādaśi days and on the Kauśika-Dvādaśi day and for the reading of the Kauśika-purāṇam instituted in the temple by Parāṅkuśa-jīyar, the disciple of Śrīmat Vēdamārgapratishṭhāchārya Paramahamsa Parivrājakāchārya Vēdāntācharya alias Śrīman Nārāyaṇa-jīyar, who were evidently the third and second pontiffs of the Ahōbalam mutt; but the dates of their assumption of the gādi, viz., 1473 and 1458 A.D. as given in the Sannidhi-Guruparamparai are ante-dated by nearly a cycle of sixty years. Śālaippākkam Narasayya, the king's agent in the reigns of Krishṇadēvarāya and Achyuta, is mentioned in No. 481 of 1919 as the son of Virūpāksha-Daṇṇāyaka and had himself a son called Sitamaraśar (No. 648 of 1919). In No. 498 of 1919 Kumāra-Daṇṇāyaka, who is praised to have excelled Rama himself in having harassed (the sea of) Kāñchī and whose relationship to Virūpāksha-Daṇṇāyaka is not known, is mentioned as having made some gifts to the Varadarāja temple for the merit of the latter's son, Rāyasam Narasayya.

48. No. 584 of 1919 is somewhat interesting in that Sāḷuva-Nāyaka, who was deputed with the work of dividing equally, between the Ekāmranātha and Varadarāja temples, the villages which were granted by the king at the time of his coronation in the year Virōdhin (1529–30 A.D.) failed in his trust and with pardonable partiality allotted a bigger portion to the Śiva temple and that, when this irregularity on the part of his agent was brought to the king's knowledge while he was camping at Conjeeveram, he ordered a revised allocation to be made and had the necessary documents drawn up in his presence.

A cursory insight into the system of leasing temple lands in those days is furnished by No. 655 of 1919, which records that the mēlvāram on areca, cocoanut, mango and other trees grown on the tiruvidaiyāṭṭam lands of the temple was formerly three-fourths of the yield, the remaining one-fourth going to the cultivator and that when in a severe drought the above trees withered, the tenants were asked to plant fresh trees and pay up mēlvāram in the reduced ratio of two-thirds and that, in the case of sesamum, green-gram and sugar-cane, the rates obtaining in adjacent villages were adopted and in cases where betel, plantain and other quick-yielding crops were reared side by side in newly planted areca and cocoanut groves, the mēlvāram was fixed at three-fourths of the old rates.

Kandāḍai Rāmānujayyaṅgār, Paravastunayiṇār and Vaḍa Tiruveṅgaḍa-jīyar are some of the names occurring in the inscriptions of this king's reign and the distinguishing prefixes of Kandāḍai and Paravastu are found among the family names of important Śrī Vaishṇava families like the Tātāchāryas of Conjeeveram.

Sadāśiva.

49. The inscriptions of this king collected during the year are, as usual, studded with the names of a number of influential men, royal kinsmen and others who flocked round the throne of the last puppet monarch of the Tuluva line, watchful of every opportunity to filch more and more power into their own hands. Many of them have already been noticed in the reports of previous years—such as—Rāmarāja-Timmarāja-Chinna Timmarāja, and his brother Rāmarāja-Timmarāja-Viṭṭhala, the able general of Sadāśiva, and their relatives Rāmarāja-Varadarāja-Vallabhayyadēva and Rāmarāja-Viṭṭhalarāja-Chinna Timmayyadēva, and the latter's son Bāppu-Chinna Timmayyadēva all of the lunar race, and of the Ātrēya-gōtra and the Āpastamba-sūtra. In No. 504 of 1919, the donor is one Raṅgayyadēva-Chōḷa Mahārāja, son of Manumāpalli Śaḷukkayyadēva-Chōḷa Mahārāja of the Kāśyapa-gōtra, Āpastamba-sutra and of the solar race and bearing the birudas Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara and Appratīkamalla.

The Maṭṭli chief Varadarāja, son of Sōmarāju Pōtturāju figures in No. 528 of 1919 and he is distinguished by the birudas of Kāvērī-vallabha, Kaṭikasurāhāra, Ōṭṭēturājulattiguṇaganḍa and Gajasimha. He is evidently the son-in-law of Krishṇadēvarāya and the same individual as is mentioned in No. 434 of 1911. Śūrappa Nāyaka is mentioned in No. 482 of 1919 as the son of Pōttu-Nāyaka of the Kāśyapa-gōtra and is probably the same as the individual figuring in another inscription of Sadāśiva's reign (No. 391 of 1912) where he is stated to have made some presents for the merit of one Krishṇappa-Nāyaka.

In No. 729 of 1919 dated in Śaka 1479 figures one Siddhirāju Śrī Raṅgarāya who is perhaps identical with the agent of Yaṛa Tirumalarājayya, who was enjoying the jāghir of Koṇḍavīḍu—vide Director-General's Annual Report for 1911–1912, p. 180; and it is not unlikely that Nāgarāj referred to in No. 550 of 1919 as the son of Kaḍappai Siddhirāja of the Ātrēya-gotra and of the lunar race was a brother of his.

Four generations of a branch of the Tāḷappākkam family of poets are given in Nos. 495 and 496 of 1919, viz., Annamayaṅgār, his son Periya Tirumalayyaṅgār, his grandson Chinna Tirumalaiyyaṅgār and his great-grandson Tiruveṅgaḷappaṅgār.

Śrīraṅga II.

50. The epigraphs belonging to this king in this collection are only five in number and one of these, No. 380 of 1919, is dated in Śaka 1493 and it may be surmised that it was the year of his accession to the throne since the latest record of his predecessor Sadāśiva is dated in Śaka 1492 and Tirumala I's short de-jure reign also to be located between these two reigns. Achyutappa-Nāyaka, the son of Aḍappam Chinnadēvappa-Nāyaka of Vēppambaṭṭu is mentioned as the donor therein and Tōppūr Tirumalai-Nāyaka figures in No. 479 of 1919 as daḷavāy of Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Rāmarāju Veṅkaṭapatidēva Mahārāja, who is presumably Veṅkaṭa I who must have continued in a subordinate viceroyalty in Śaka 1504 during his brother's regi[illegible] the time of his own accession in Śaka 1508.

No. 383 of 1919 records the information that the right of supervising the repairs and the items of service in the Varadarāja temple which was in the hands of or[illegible]nayya, was cancelled at the instance perhaps of Kumāra-Tātāchārya, the m[illegible] of the temple affairs and was ratified by the order of Veṅkaṭapatidēva, that the contract was thereafter conferred, for a lump sum of 500 poṉ which was credited into the temple treasury, in favour of Tiruveṅgaḍaśirukkaṉ alias Parāṅkuśa Tirupaṇipiḷḷai of Tiruppuḷḷāṇi of Pāṇḍi-maṇḍalam, a probable partisan of the all-powerful Tātāchārya, that the lessor was allowed to enjoy the perquisites of his office such as prasāda, cakes, fees, house-site, etc., and that the items of the nirvāha (superintendence) were the arrangements for the Srījayanti-uriyaḍi, the floating festival and the supply of civet, champaka oil, clothes, etc., for the god on certain occasions. Two Tamil verses in No. 663 of 1919 praise a certain Rāmānujayya who is stated to have hailed from the same Tiruppuḷḷāṇi and attained to undying fame in his devoted service and tiruppaṇi to god Varadarāja.

Veṅkaṭa I and Tātāchārya.

51. The next king of the Karnāṭa line, Veṅkaṭapatideva-Mahārāja is represented by half a dozen records ranging in dates from Śaka 1509 to Śaka 1527 and in all of them one Vēḍamārgapratishṭhāchārya Ubhayavēdāntasthāpanāchārya Ēṭṭūr Tirumalai Kumāra Tātāchārya finds prominent mention as the manager-general of the temple affairs (śrī-kārya-durandhara) with a staff of subordinates under him, while in some of the later records of Śrīraṅga II, he figures with his single name of Kumāra Tātāchārya without the resounding Vaishṇavite titles tagged on to it. This, in itself, shows that he basked in the sun of royal favour of king Veṅkaṭapati, to whom he was the spritual Guru who officiated at his coronation, and who in his excess of admiration for his āchārya is said to have offered the whole kingdom to him. That this Kumāra-Tātāchārya who was also known as Lakshmīkumāra and Kōṭikanyakādāṉam Tātāchārya, lived in kingly splendour at Conjeeveram at the latter part of his life is evidenced by the large number of inscriptions engraved on the temple walls. He is mentioned in No. 354 of 1919 to have gilt the vimāna of God Veṅkaṭēśa on the Phaṇipatigiri (i.e., Śēshāchala—Tirupati) with gold in the year Promōdūta corresponding presumably to Śaka 1492 and in No. 363 of 1919 to have weighed himself separately against gold and silver and to have used all that wealth in the service of Varadarāja in erecting the Kalyāṇakōṭi-vimāna in gold for the goddess Lakshmī in the same temple. In the Sanskrit verses contained in No. 475 of 1919, his gifts of all the necessary vāhanas (vehicles) in gold and silver, of the elephant, the horse, the snake, the Garuḍa, Hanuman, the palanquin, the swan and the lion and of certain other costly jewels and ornaments to the god, his founding of beautiful agrahāras for Brahmins and the digging of a tank called Tātasamudram are mentioned in glowing terms. No. 650 of 1919 which is dated in Śaka 1536 expressed by a chronogram, Ānanda, refers to the erection by him of the Kalyāṇakōṭi-vimāna to the goddess perhaps in emulation of the Puṇyakōṭi-vimāna set up by Kṛishṇadēvarāya, which Tātāchārya is stated in No. 649 of 1919 to have repaired and regilt as it got defaced and weather-beaten in the course of a century. No. 651 of 1919 is an inscription containing the Hanumadvimśati, a poem of twenty verses composed by Tātāchārya in honour of God Hanumān, whose image he set up in the temple on the bank of the tank called Tātasamudram (Ayyaṇkuḷam) which was dug by himself.

Veṅkaṭa II.

52. No. 502 of 1919 is dated in Śaka 1564 in the reign of Veṅkaṭa II, 'who was seated on his jewelled throne at Ghanagiri' and records a gift by Tammappa-Nāyaḍu, son of Pāchaḍa Chinna Kṛishṇappa-Nāyaka.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Gaṇḍagōpālas.

53. No less than sixty new inscriptions of the chiefs bearing the name or surname Gaṇḍagōpāla and distinguished by the epithets Vijaya, Vīra, or Rāja, have been copied in the Varadarāja-Perumāḷ temple at Conjeeveram. These feudatories of the Chōḷas, sometimes wielding independent authority, have been often met with in records coming from the districts of North Arcot, Chingleput, Nellore and part of Guntur. Rai Bahadur V. Venkayya has given a detailed account of them and their Telugu origin (as evidenced by the Telugu prefixes, tammu, allu and manuma or manma which very frequently occur along with their names) in his Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1900, pp. 17 to 20. And again in reviewing the Nellore Inscriptions of Messrs. Butterworth and Venugopal Chetti he has discoursed on the same subject in the light of the numerous inscriptions of that dynasty included in the Nellore volume. Following Mr. Venkayya's remarks and the valuable information supplied in this connexion by the two inscriptions of Tiruvāḷaṅgāḍu and Tiruppāśūr published by Dr. Lüders in Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VII, pp. 119 ff., we may see what additional matter could be derived, if at all, from the new inscriptions at Conjeeveram. These include among them four records of (1) Tribhuvanachakravartin Alluntikka-Mahārāja Gaṇḍagōpāladēva supplying dates from the 3rd to the 6th year of his reign with the required astronomical details for verification; twenty-two records of (2) Madhurāntaka Pottappichchōḷaṉ Manumaśiddharaśaṉ Tirukkāḷattidēvaṉ alias Gaṇḍagōpāla with rarely any astronomical details of date but invariably the regnal years (15th to 22nd) of a king Rājarāja who is perhaps identical with the Chōḷa Rājarāja III (A.D. 1216 to 1243); nine records of (3) Madurāntaka Pottappichchōḷaṉ who signs his name as Rāja-Gaṇḍagōpāla or Allāḷanātha padalāñchchhuna and issues orders under royal writ (திருமுகம்) in the 2nd to 25th year of an unknown king; nineteen records of (4) Tribhuvanachakravartin Gaṇḍagōpāladēva or Tribhuvanachakravartin Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāladēva with the regnal years 3rd to 31st of his own reign with full details of date and two records of (5) Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīra-Gaṇḍagōpāḷadēva with the regnal years 3 and 4 of perhaps his own reign.

Tribhuvanachakravartin Alluntikka-Mahārāja Gaṇḍagōpāladēva.

54. The identification of these chiefs and the exact period of their rule could be fixed only tentatively. The first was as per statements made in his own records a Telugu-Chōḷa king of Nellore (cf. also the gift of 1,750 gold pieces called Nellūrpudu-māḍai made to the temple of Aruḷāḷapperumāḷ in No. 441 of 1919, Appendix B). He must have been evidently also a contemporary of the Kākatīya king Gaṇapati (Śaka 1120 to 1182) one of whose ministers Kōṇ Kāṭṭaiyaṉ is mentioned in No. 608 of Appendix B as making a donation to the same temple. The title Tribhuvanachakravartin which he uses in all the five records and the mention of regnal years as in the case of established dynastic rulers, prove beyond doubt that he was an independent sovereign. His initial date, however, is to be fixed from the astronomical details supplied for his 3rd, 5th and 6th years (vide p. 92 of App. F).

55. Madhurāntaka Pottappichchōḷaṉ Manumaśiddharaśaṉ Tirukkāḷattidēvaṉ alias Gaṇḍagōpāla whose records are comparatively numerous appears to have been a powerful subordinate of the Chōḷā king Rājarāja III. Mr. Venkayya identifies him with Chōḍa-Tikka mentioned in Tikkana-Sōmayāji's Nirvachanōttara-rāmāyaṇamu (see also Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1908, p. 85). He was a great devotee of the God Varadarājapperumāḷ as already known to us by No. 53 of 1893. He provided for a permanent service in the temple called Gaṇḍagōpālaṉ-śandi as will be seen in the sequel. No. 446 of Appendix B supplies a big Sanskrit introduction for him and like the Tiruppāśūr, Tiruvoṟṟiyūr, Tiruvālaṅgāḍu and the Naṇḍalūr inscriptions, it mentions Vishṇu, Brahmā, Marīchi, Kaśyapa, Sun, Manu, etc., among the ancestors of the Chōḷa family to which the chief belonged and after giving the Puranic names of Ikshvāku, Kakutstha, Māndhātā, Sagara, Bhagīratha, Hariśchandra, Śibi, etc., it mentions Karikāla, who constructed the Kāvērī-banks and in battle pulled out the third eye of [Trilōchana]-Pallava. In this family after many important kings had passed away was born Vijjaṇa and in his family was Eṟasiddhi whose son Manmasiddhi married Śrīdēvī. The son of Manmasiddhi was Gaṇḍagōpāla "the cataclysmic fire to the ocean, viz., Kalyāṇapurī (the capital of the Chāḷukyas), the sole hero of the world who cut off the head of Pṛithvīśvara (the Velanāṇḍu king), who crushed the pride of the Sēuṇa king and was the supreme lord of Vikramasimhapurī (i.e., Nellūr)." This description of Gaṇḍagōpāla suitably fits in with the identification made by Mr. Venkayya. For, it is further stated of this Gaṇḍagōpāla, later on called by his full name Madhurāntaka Pottappichchōḷaṉ Tirukkāḷattidēvaṉ alias Gaṇḍagōpāla, that having acquired his ancestral kingdom in due succession, he captured the wealth of all princes who were self-willed, shook the southern quarter, killed the kings of the south, took Kāñchī and was ruling there after making it his own." The inscription registers that he established the service called Gaṇḍagōpāḷaṉ-śandi in the Varadarāja temple in Śaka 1153 (A.D. 1231) which corresponds to the 15th year of Rājarāja (III). It may also be noted that in two other instances (Nos. 385 and 514 of 1919 dated in the 14th and 15th years of Rājarāja III), a certain Gaṇḍagōpāla is mentioned with the title 'Piḷḷaiyār'; while in No. 367 of 1919, a record of the 16th year of the same Chōḷa king dated in Śaka 1154, the same title is applied to Madhurāntaka Pottappichchōḷaṉ Tirukkāḷattidēvaṉ Gaṇḍagōpāla. In the 18th year of the same king he granted some villages for the maintenance of the śandi which had been established by him in his 15th year (No. 454 of Appendix B). In continuance of this same record is one of the 14th + 1st year of Perumāḷ Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva in which a re-adjustment was made of the villages referred to above. The position of the Pāṇḍya inscription suggests that the 14+1st year of Perumāḷ Sundara-Pāṇḍya was not very far removed from, if it was not actually identical with, the 18th year of Rājarāja. The frequent change of hands and the co-existence of the Pāṇḍya and Chōḷa rule together with that of powerful subordinate chiefs taking one side or the other about this period of history in the Toṇḍai-maṇḍalam is a matter not unknown to history.

Madhurāntaka Pottappichchōḷaṉ Manumaśiddaraśaṉ Tirukkāḷattidēvaṉ alias Gaṇḍagōpāla.

56. The third Telugu-Chōḍa chief mentioned in the inscriptions is one Madhurāntaka Pottappi-Chōḷa who in the sign-manual fixed at the end of his records, calls himself Rāja-Gaṇḍagōpāladēva. His orders are issued under the mandate (திருமுகம்) of the king and thus he could not have been an independent chief properly so called. He established in the temple of Aruḷāḷapperumāḷ a service called Rājagaṇḍagōpāḷaṉ-śandi after his own name and being a great devotee of that god, he calls himself at the end of some records '(the servant) who bears the stamp of the feet of the blessed Aruḷālanātha (śrī-Aruḷālanāthapada-lāñchhanasya) or Allāḍanātha' in place of the usual signature Rājagaṇḍagōpāla (see Nos. 556, 607 and 609 of Appendix B). In a Tiruvoṟṟiyūr record he signs his name as Mānavijaya (No. 241 of 1912). It may be noted that the first two records which come from Conjeeveram, supply the names of many of the public streets of that town, its community of merchants known as Vāṇiga-nagarattār and its Bauddhappaḷḷi (Buddhist vihāra). Some of the street names were Mummuḍichōḷa-perunderuvu, Arumoḷidēva-perunderuvu, Nigarili-chōḷa-perunderuvu, Gaṇḍagōpāla-perunderuvu, and Kūṟai-vāṇiya-perunderuvu evidently so called after the ruling kings and governors even as many important roads and suburbs are called to-day. The existence of a Bauddhappaḷḷi at Conjeeveram cannot but be of much corroborative interest since successful investigation in this direction had been already made by the late Mr. T. A. Gopinatha Rao and the opinion expressed that the present image of Kāmākshi itself may have been one of the Buddhistic goddess Tārādēvī. Besides the figure of a full-sized standing Buddha within the temple of Kāmākshī—now lying in some unused corner of it—there is nothing else either in the structure of the Kāmākshī temple or in the existing methods of daily ceremonial to justify such a conclusion. The truth, however, remains that the later debased forms of Śakti-worship were introduced into Hindu temples chiefly through Mahāyānic Buddhist influence and that the powerful Advaita philosophy of Śaṁkarāchārya was the only force that successfully stemmed its evil effects. The strange traditions too that are said to be connected with the Kāmākshī temple and its revival by Śaṁkarāchārya whose image is seen established within that temple, may be compared with the similar story remembered of the temple at Tiruvoṟṟiyūr near Madras (Annual Report for 1912, pp. 67 and 68). Rāja-Gaṇḍagōpāla must have been also like Madhurāntaka Pottappichchōḷaṉ Manumaśiddaraśaṉ Tirukkāḷattidēvaṉ alias Gaṇḍagōpāla, a subordinate of Rājarāja III (No. 198 of 1912). He was a powerful deputy. The incoming and outgoing bags (of grain?) in certain villages granted by him to the temple of Aruḷāḷapperumāḷ were impressed with the Gaṇḍagōpālaṉ-seal for purposes of tolls (No. 609 of Appendix B).

Conjeeveram streets and Buddhist Vihāras.

57. The next king whose records may be noticed are those of Tribhuvanachakravartin Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāladēva. In his Annual Report for 1900, p. 20, paragraph 51, Mr. Venkayya remarked that "with the little that we know of his history at present we cannot safely identify him with any particular king. In the Tamil country his inscriptions have been found ranging from the 3rd to the 22nd year of his reign." As seen already the latest date for him found in the present collection is the 31st year (No. 500 of Appendix B). It has been stated on the authority of three inscriptions copied at Conjeeveram in previous years (Nos. 27, 35 and 36 of 1890) that he succeeded to the throne in Śaka 1172 and was a member perhaps of Branch C of the Telugu-Chōḷa genealogy printed at page 17 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1900. Evidently he was an independent sovereign. The coin Gaṇḍagōpāla-māḍai current at that time was perhaps issued by him (Nos. 385 and 428 of Appendix B). He seems to have had a Telugu-Pallava subordinate named Nallasiddaraśar who held the imperial titles Mahārājādhirāja, Rājaparamēśvara, Pallavakulatilaka, Mukkaṇṭi-Kāḍuveṭṭivaṁśāvatāra, etc. The wording of the inscription leaves us in doubt as to the exact status of Nallasiddha with reference to Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla. It almost appears even as if Nallasiddha was the real name of the ruling king while Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla was only his titular surname. No. 39 of 1893, also coming from Conjeeveram, refers to Tribhuvanachakravartin Gaṇḍagōpāla (i.e., Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla) and his subordinate Nalu-Siddharaśar of the Pallava family. No. 228 of the collection for 1910 refers in more definite terms to Nallaśiddaraśaṉ of the Pallava lineage as a subordinate of Tribhuvanachakravartin Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla-dēva. A different Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla also of Pallava descent is again mentioned in the Tripurāntakam inscription No. 272 of 1905, and still another in a record from the Ātmakūr taluk (Nellore Inscriptions A. 25) where this Pallava king is stated to have had a Chōḷa feudatory. It appears therefore clear that there existed two chiefs by name Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla, one a Telugu-Chōḷa in the south and another a Telugu-Pallava in the north, both ruling almost contemporaneously in the central Tamil and Telugu districts of the Madras Presidency. In this connexion, it may be noticed that, in No. 624 of Appendix B, a damaged inscription partly in Tamil verse, a Vīra-Gaṇḍagōpāla is mentioned as born of the Bhāradvāja-gōtra in the illustrious Pallavakula. The southern Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla calls himself a Chōḷa in the Conjeeveram copper-plate published by Professor S. V. Venkatesvara Ayyar (Epigraphia Indica, Volume XIII, page 194 ff). If its date is correct it supplies for him the latest date, viz., the 42nd year which, as Mr. Ayyar says, tallies with the year of accession of Rāja-Gaṇḍagōpāla whose 9th year corresponded to Śaka 1221 (No. 194 of 1894).

Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla.

The successor of Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla was therefore a Rāja-Gaṇḍagōpāla different of course from the one mentioned in the preceding paragraph as a contemporary and subordinate of Rājarāja III. But from a record of Vīra-Gaṇḍagōpāla copied at Tiruppukkuḷi near Conjeeveram (No. 179 of 1916) it becomes clear that Vīra-Gaṇḍagōpāla was the actual successor of Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla. It is possible that Vīra-Gaṇḍagōpāla had also the surname Rāja-Gaṇḍagōpāla. Nos. 603 and 624 of Appendix B are two inscriptions of a Vīra-Gaṇḍagōpāla who is perhaps the same as the Vīra-Gaṇḍagōpāla who succeeded to the throne in Śaka 1212 or roughly A.D. 1290–91.

Vīra-Gaṇḍagōpāla.

58. The Hoysaḷas are represented in this year's collection by 16 inscriptions, four of which are dated in the reign of Vīra-Ballāḷa and the rest in that of Vīra-Rāmanātha. A few other inscriptions from Conjeeveram (Nos. 408, 611, 612, 615, and 617 of 1919) dated in the regnal years from 14th to 24th of Rājarāja (III) (1216–1243 A.D.), though they cannot be called Hoysaḷa epigraphs proper, are however records of gifts made by certain important Mahāpradhānas and Sāmantas of the contemporary Hoysaḷa king Vishnuvardhana Vīra-Narasimha II (1217 A.D.). The names of the individuals figuring in them are the two brothers (?) Paramaviśvāsirāya-Daṇḍanātha Daṇḍinagōpa and Appaya-daṇāyaka and the former's son Mādappa and the latter's three sons Kēśava, Goppayya, and Mallayya. Another inscription, No. 404 of 1919, mentions a Daṇḍinagōpa Jagadobbaganda Goppayya, the son of Mallayya; and Vālayya-Daṇḍanāyaka, son of Dūtapiḷḷai-daṇḍanāyaka figures in No. 39 of 1920 from Tirumaḷavādi. It may be noted that the Tiruvēndipuram inscription (Ep. Ind. Vol. VII, p. 161) refers to the two famous generals of Vīra-Narasimha II, named Appaṇa and Samudra Goppaya.

The Hoysaḷas.

Vīra-Narasimha II.

• All the inscriptions of Vīra-Rāmanātha, the Viceroy of the southern Hoysaḷa dominion, come from Tirumaḷapāḍi in the Trichinopoly district and are dated in regnal years running up to 25, which is, at present, the highest date found for him in the Madras Epigraphical collection. They uniformly record private gifts of land or gold for providing for the sacred bath of the god Tirumaḷapāḍi-Uḍaiyār, an unfailing supply of potfuls of Kāvērī water, which seems to have acquired special sanctity at this place on account of the northward deflection of the river's course (uttaravāhinī), and the temple is itself very picturesquely situated at the river's bend being called 'புனல்வாயில் ஸ்ரீகாயில்' in No. 98 of 1920. Mahāpradhāni Vīrayya-daṇṇāyaka, who was probably a subordinate of the king is mentioned in No. 21 of 1920, and his sons figure as donees in Nos. 41 and 56 of 1920.

Vīra-Rāmanātha.

59. No. 401 of 1919, a record of Vallāḷadēvar is dated in the cyclic year Bhāva(ka), corresponding in all probability to Śaka 1256 (= 1334–35 A.D.) which falls into the reign of Ballāḷa III (A.D. 1292–1342). It mentions the fact that, when on the second day of the month of Tai in that year, the king was encamping at Kāñchīpuram, one Kampaya-daṇṇāyaka, bestowed some presents to the Varadarāja-Perumāḷ temple for the merit of one Yechchaya-daṇṇāyaka. Mallappa-daṇṇāyaka is the name of another subordinate mentioned in No. 397 of 1919. This visit of the king to Conjeeveram was perhaps also the occasion when he presented to the same temple a throne called 'Vīravallāḷaṉ' which was placed in the Abhishēka-maṇḍapa under a canopy (pandal) called 'Ariyaṇṇavallāṉ' to seat the god on the festival days, when Tiruvāymoḷi (Śaḍagōpaṉ-pāṭṭu) was chanted in His presence and honours and presents granted to deserving persons for meritorious service rendered to the temple. The four inscriptions (Nos. 572 to 574 and 585 of 1919) which detail the above incidents contain, though not dated in particular cyclic years, sufficient astronomical data and references to the famous Sāluva Maṅgu-Mahārāja to justify their dates being fixed between the years Śaka 1280 and 1283. Three inscriptions of Ballāḷa III found in the Dhārāpuram taluk in the Coimbatore district in the cyclic years corresponding presumably to Śaka 1256 and 1258 testify to the fact that, after the disintegration of the Hoysaḷa dominion in about 1310 A.D. by the series of victorious Muhammadan raids under Malik Kafur, Vīra-Ballāḷa retired south but still managed to nurse his waning greatness in a corner of the Koṅgumaṇḍalam.

Ballāḷa III.

60. The collection of copper-plate inscriptions for the current year (Appendix A) includes six grants of the Reḍḍi kings viz., one of Vēmaya-Reḍḍi (No. 5), one of Anna-Vēma (No. 6) and four of Kōmaṭi-Vēma or Pedda-Kōmaṭi-Vēma (Nos. 7, 8, 13 and 14). All the plates have been secured from the Guntur district, where the kingdom of the Reḍḍis of Koṇḍavīḍu chiefly lay. An attribute of Vēmaya-Reḍḍi, the first Reḍḍi king and the founder of the family, states that he planted different kinds of gardens near many a town. This special administrative measure speaks highly of the cultured tastes of this ruler of the 14th century and of the sanitary principle which he inculcated nearly 600 years ago, in laying out such gardens for the benefit of the citizens. Kōmaṭi-Vēma, Prōlaya-Vēma or Anna-Vēma as he is called in the Telugu work Harivaṁśamu (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VIII, p. 9 ff) is stated to have defeated the Gujjaras, to have captured Rāchūri-durga (the Raichur fortress), to have built sacred steps in the famous temples of Śrīśailam and Aḥōbalam, to have played in the waters of (i.e., to have extended his dominions so as to include) the Kuṇḍiprabhā (the river Guṇḍlakamma) (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VIII, p. 10), Sahyajā (Cauvery) and the Gautamī (Gōdāvarī), to have crushed the pride of Kaliṅgarāya, to have hunted like beasts the kings of Manniya (i.e., the chiefs of the hill tracts), shattered the chief of Jantarnāḍu and to have been a terror to the Pāṇḍya king. The plates quoted above also mention Vēma's conquest of the Mlēchchas (Muhammadans) who had taken back all the agrahāras of the Brahmans. Our present record refers to the revenue and survey settlement made by him in Rāmatīrtham and five other villages in the Śrīśaila country and the Ammanambrōlu district. The year Śaka 1257, Yuvan, which is herein supplied for the king is the earliest date known so far for Vēmaya-Reḍḍi, his Madras Museum plates being dated only in 1267. He was the patron of the Telugu poet Ēṟṟā-Preggaḍa who wrote the Harivaṁśamu.

The Reḍḍis.

Vēmaya-Reḍḍi.

61. The copper-plates (No. 6) of Anna-Vēma which are dated in Śaka 1296 supply the information that his kingdom extended from the eastern slopes of Śrīśailam right up to the eastern ocean and record that the king on this date conferred on Peddi-vidvān who was a great astronomer (daivajñachūḍāmaṇi), the son of Guṇḍayārya, grandson of Pōti-Bhaṭṭa, great grandson of Bhīmēśvara-Sōmayājulu and great-great grandson of Nṛisimha, a lion to the crowd of elephants, viz., disputants, the village Pachchani Tāṇḍiparṟu. The statement made in lines 32 to 35 of the text that "the matchless king Anna-Vēma being crowned to rule the kingdom of his paternal estate after (the death of) his brother, makes and confirms gifts to Brāhmaṇas bestowed by the old kings, his father and his brother" suggests that the year Śaka 1296 might have been the actual year of his accession to the throne. Accordingly also we do not find any records of Anna-Vēma dated prior to the Śaka year 1296. Anna Vēma's favourite surname was Pallava-Triṇētra which occurs at the end of the inscription in his sign-manual. It may be interesting to note that the composer of the grant was the court poet Bālasarasvati whose identity could not be traced in Telugu literature.

Anna-Vēma.

62. The four remaining copper-plate records belong to the time of the poet-king Kōmaṭi-Vēma whose Phiraṅgipuram inscription has been published with a fa simile plate by Mr. J. Ramayya Pantulu in Epigraphia Indica, Vol. XI, p 313 ff. Evidently his great learning earned for him the title Sarvajñachakravartin which is given to him in No. 7 of Appendix A, text line 27. The first of the donees mentioned in this grant to Brāhmaṇas of the village of Rudravaram in Kōṭa-bhūmi (i.e., the country round Dharaṇikōṭa) in Śaka 1341, Vikāri (= A.D. 1419), is the astronomer Rāmachandra, a son of Peddiyajvan, who, as we have seen already, was the recipient of the gift recorded in the plates of Anna-Vēma (No. 6 of Appendix A). It is stated of Pōtaya-Bhaṭṭa, the great grandfather of this Rāmachandra, that he was the master of the mysteries explained in the Brahma, Sūrya and other Siddhāntas (astronomical works). The composer of the grant was the famous poet Śrīnātha who is already known to us from the published grants to have been the Director of Education (vidyādhikāri) under king Kōmaṭi Vēma Vīranārāyaṇa. Two other grants of Kōmaṭi-Vēma made to this same family of astronomers are recorded as Nos. 13 and 14 of Appendix A, the recipient in both being Peddiyajvan who received the grant of Pachchani Tāṇḍiparru in the time of Anna-Vēma and who had set up sacrificial posts on the banks of the Gōdāvarī river and had mastered like his grandfather Pōtaya-Bhaṭṭa, the mysteries of the Brahma, Sūrya and other Siddhāntas. The genealogy of this learned family as supplied by these two grants is the same as that supplied by the plates of Anna-Vēma. No. 8 of Appendix A, which is a single plate, the last of a bigger set of plates now lost, contains at the end a verse which by way of resumé says :—" the donor (of the grant) is king Kōmaṭi-Vēma, the donee who received (the grant) is the teacher Śaṁkara, the village given is Pinapāḍu, the composer is the poet Śrīnātha-Bhaṭṭāraka, the time, the sacred occasion of Śivarātri and the witness the great (god of) Śrīgiri." Thus we see that of the four copper-plate records of Kōmaṭi-Vēma three relate to grants made to the family of Astronomers, and one to the teacher Śaṁkara and that all the four were composed by the poet Śrīnātha.

Ummattūr chiefs.

63. The Māhāmaṇḍālēśvara Vīra Nañjarāya Uḍaiyār of Ummattūr whose reign extended according to Mr. Rice (Epigraphia Carnatica, Volume IV, Introduction, page 27) from 1482–94 A.D., figures in four inscriptions from the Dhārāpuram taluk which are dated in Śaka 1411, Sādhāraṇa and in Paridhāpi corresponding to Śaka 1414. In one of these, No. 108 of 1920, it is mentioned that the king rebuilt the ruined Perumāḷ temple at Koḍuvāy which had previously suffered severe damage at the hands of the Muhammadan iconoclasts, celebrated its reconsecration and re-engraved on its walls the obliterated inscriptions of the Chēra and Chōḷa kings, which had recorded their respective donations to the temple. No trace of these copies is, however, now in evidence. In another inscription of the same king, No. 109 of 1920, a charity was instituted in the same temple by the residents of Koḍuvāy, so that itinerant Brahmans passing that way may not go away hungry but may have a sumptuous meal of millet (ಸಜ್ಜ), and this may perhaps indicate that Koḍuvāy was, as now, situated on an important artery of traffic.

Another Nañjarāya, son of Pratāpa Arihararāya, is mentioned in No. 278 of 1920 dated in Bahudhānya corresponding to 1518–19 A.D. and he is evidently identical with Nañjarāya Uḍaiyar (1512–40 A.D.) a later scion of the same family who figures also in No. 208 of 1909. If this identification is correct Immaḍi Dēpaṇṇa Uḍaiyar, his father, must have had the other name of Pratāpa Harihara. One Rāhuttaperumāḷ, son of Parākrama-Pāṇḍyadēvar, who is mentioned in this inscription, must have been a subordinate chief under Nañjaṇarāya holding sway over Karṟāyaṅgāṇi, a portion of Rājarājapura-nādu in the Koṅgu-maṇḍalam. Irājākkaḷ-tambirānār which is a title mentioned for this chief was also borne by the Pāṇḍya kings, Vikrama and Vīra-Pāṇḍya, vide paragraph 21 of the Annual Report for 1913–1914.

Lālā Tōḍaramalla.

64. In front of the Tāyār shrine in the Varadarājasvāmin temple at Conjeeveram is set up a well-dressed slab of stone bearing an inscription on both its sides (No. 639 of 1919) and embellished at its top with the Teṅgalai Vaishṇavite mark flanked on either side by a conch and a discus. The Teṅgalai sect of Vaishṇavites in general and that of the temple employees in particular attach great importance to it as it advertises the prominent part played by one of their own fold in the temple's regeneration, and is also one of the twelve items within the temple which bear this mark as distinguished from the Vaḍagalai, which is the recognized caste-mark of the temple and the god therein.

The inscription under reference consists of two Sanskrit verses in the Śārdūlavikrīḍita metre engraved in Telugu script, followed by a translation in Telugu prose and 12 lines in Nāgarī and records that in the year Śaka 1632, Virōdhin (1710 A.D. and not 1799 as calculated by Mr. Crole in his Chingleput Manual, page 117) Rāja Lālā Tōḍaramalla brought back at the request of Śrīnivāsa alias Āttāṇ Tiruveṅgaḍa Rāmānuja Jīyar, the image of Varadarāja from its place of retreat in the jungles of Uḍayārpāḷayam and reconsecrated it in its own temple at Kāñchī. Mr. A. R. Sarasvati in his Telugu article in the Āndhrasāhityaparishad Patrikā, Vol. VII, part 5, thinks that 'Tōḍaramalla' was an honorific biruda bestowed on proficient men, substantiated and supplemented perhaps by the gift of a badge as the word 'Tōḍara' in Kanarese which means 'a chain or other badge of honour' and its shortened form of Tōḍa in Tamil meaning 'an armlet of gold,' would seem to imply. This view has yet to be substantiated by further research. There have been several individuals bearing this title. In No. 342 of the Epigraphical collection for 1899, one Tōḍaramalla Ranganātha is mentioned and Tōḍaramalla Timma, a later member of the same family was the author of a work entitled Svaramēlakalānidhi (vide page 1684 of Rangacharya's 'Inscriptions of the Madras Presidency'). Tōḍaramalla of the present inscription has, on account of the similarity in his name, been sometimes erroneously identified with the famous financier of Akbar's court who flourished quite a full century prior to the date of this record. As a matter of fact our Tōḍaramalla was a general under Sa-ādat-Ullāh Khān, the Nawāb of the Karnatic, who led the attack against and finally stormed the impregnable fort of Gingee (South Arcot district) killing the refractory chief Dēśiṅgarāja of ballad fame. The historic incidents that led up to the events recorded in this inscription were that the Delhi Emperor Aurangzeb fitted out an expedition in about 1688 A.D. against the Mahrattas of the South, and Conjeeveram, in common with several other important centres of South-India, felt the shock of this iconoclastic invasion. The temple authorities of the three premier temples of that city thereupon apprehending desecration at the profane hands of the invaders, disguised the images of the temple gods and conveyed them secretly out of the town, the Vishnu temple images finding an asylum in the jungles of Uḍayārpāḷayam in the Trichinopoly district. But when the danger was past and Conjeeveram was considered safe, the local chieftain of Uḍayārpāḷayam, who was much enraptured at the image of the god Varadarāja refused to restore it to its original abode at Kāñchī, with the result that, at the special intercession of Śrīmat Paramahamsa Parivrājakāchārya Āttāṉ Jīyar, his disciple Lālā Tōḍaramalla terrorised the chief with a strong contingent of troops at his back and safely brought back the image and reinstated it in the temple with great pomp and splendour. This incident is even to-day commemorated in an annual festival called the Uḍayārpāḷayam festival. An exact parallel to the above restoration is furnished by Śrīraṅgam the image of which temple, Śrī Raṅganātha, had to be restored by Goppaṇa, the famous Brahman general of Kumāra Kampaṇa in Saka 1293 (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VI, p. 322).

The party who was instrumental in the above restoration, viz., Śrīnivāsadāsa or Āttāṉ Jīyar as he is called, has in the Telugu article by Mr. Sarasvati referred to above, been identified with a relative of Akkanna and Mādanna of Golkoṇḍa fame, who fled south when Aurangzeb's force sacked Gōlkoṇḍa and killed the two able brothers. In a copper-plate grant deposited in the Madras Museum (page 41 of the Catalogue of Copper Plate grants by Mr. R. Sreenivāsa Rāgava Aiyaṅgār, M.A.) the same Śrīnivāsadāsa, who is there mentioned as the protege of Tōḍaramalla, is said to have granted five villages to the temple of Śrīmushṇam near Chidambaram, in the Śaka year 1636 (1714–15 A.D.), four years later than the Conjeeveram inscription, and in the regime of the Delhi Emperor Farrukhsīyar and the Karnatic Nawab Sa-ādat-Ullāh Khān.

65. A set of three statues, probably those of Tōḍaramalla, his father and mother in the Varadarāja temple at Conjeeveram is, at present, left uncared for in a small lamp-room in the recess of the gōpura called the Toṇḍaraḍippoḍi-vāśal. From the fact that the statues have been set up here, one may perhaps guess that the original name of the gōpura was Toṇḍarmallaṉ-vāśal and that this designation in course of time became corrupted into its present variant, and was connected with the name of the Vaishṇava saint Toṇḍaraḍippoḍi-āḻvār. The statues seem to be of bronze and in the uncomfortable crampedness of their habitation, it is not possible to examine them at close quarters, to see whether, as works of art, they have thrown away the shackles of conventionalism and have any pretentions to be called portraits and whether they bear on them any labels that could lead to the confirmation of the popular belief that they represent a family group of Lālā Tōḍaramalla. On page 5 of my Annual Report for 1913, I referred to three sketches that were prepared of the busts of the copper statues of Tōḍarmall and his two wives in a small shrine at Tirumalai which bore labels containing the names Tōḍarmall, Mātā Mōhanadēvī and Pitā Bibi. On closer examination it may perhaps be found that the statues of Conjeeveram also contain the very same labels. The group consisting of father and mother and Tōḍarmall, as noted down by my Assistant Mr. A. S. Ramanatha Ayyar, requires further examination inasmuch as my examination of similar statues at Tirumalai, proved that Mātā Mōhanadēvi and Pitā Bibi on either side of Tōḍarmall were more likely his two wives than his father and mother as probably suggested by the words mātā and pitā.

Steps will be taken to release these statues from their present cage and to have them removed to a prominent place. This treatment they ought surely to have deserved at the hands of the temple authorities not only as specimens of South Indian bronzes, but also from a feeling of gratitude for the valuable service rendered by Tōḍaramalla, but for whose heroic recovery of the images from Uḍayārpāḷayam, the temple may not be enjoying its present prosperity.

An old water-supply project for Conjeeveram.

66. In another interesting but completely corrupt record (No. 424 of 1919), which is dated in Śaka 1645 (1723 A.D.), Śōbhakṛit, in the time of the Delhi Emperor Alaṅgīr Bācha Muhammad Shāh (son of Jahān Shāh and grandson of Bahadūr Shāh, who ascended the throne in 1729 A.D.), when the Karnāṭaka Sabhā Diwān Sa-ādat-Ullāh Khān Bahadūr was wielding his viceroyalty in Ūṟṟukkāṭṭu-kōṭṭam in Taṇḍakanaḍu-nāḍu, a district of Jayaṅgoṇḍaśōḷa-maṇḍalam, one Rāyar Sitakkonirāyar who was the deputy-in-charge at Conjeeveram started a water-supply project by digging an underground aqueduct from the magnificent tank of Sarvatīrtham on the one side and the Vishṇu temple tank Anantasaras on the other which could catch up the spring water percolating from the river-bed near the village of Ambi and feed many of the tanks with which the town of Conjeeveram is dotted. Traces of this ruined aqueduct are still here and there visible. It is curious to note that the Muhammadan Emperor has, in the usual Indian style, been burdened with a number of birudas, such as, Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara, Mēdinimīsara, Anēkadurgādhipati, Getimanniyasuratrāṇa, Nāvalaṇ, Peruntīvu-navamaṇivēndaṇ and the lord of the east, south, west and northern (!) oceans.

No.—D. 486.

In continuation of my letter to Government No. 480 of yesterday's date, I have the honour to submit herewith the final copy of my Annual report on Epigraphy for the year ending 31st March 1921 with the final corrections carried out.

2. I request I may be supplied as usual with twenty spare copies of the report for distribution among friends and scholars.

IV

Letter—from A. H. LONGHURST, Esq., Superintendent, Archæological Survey, Southern Circle.
To—the Secretary to Government, Finance Department.
Dated—Kotagiri, the 29th July 1921.
No.—413.

I have the honour to forward herewith the final proof copy of the Annual Report of the Assistant Archæological Superintendent for Epigraphy for 1920–21, and the set of photographs referred to in Appendix D, forwarded under separate cover, and to offer the following remarks on the same.

2. With regard to the conservation proposals concerning certain inscribed monuments mentioned on pages 7 and 8, I fear the Collectors are powerless to act in the matter unless the monuments are either Government property or their owners are willing to have them declared "protected". When possible I would suggest that all really valuable inscribed movable antiquities be sent direct to the Madras Museum and those of minor importance to the nearest taluk office, the cost being met by this department, as it is sometimes impossible for village officers to prevent ignorant persons from damaging or removing such objects when they happen to be located in isolated places or within ruined and deserted temples.

3. In submitting conservation proposals on epigraphical grounds, it would greatly facilitate matters if the Assistant Archæological Superintendent for Epigraphy would include in the same paragraph a readable account of the historical value of the temple as recorded in its inscriptions. The mere mention of a well-known king's name or dynasty in an inscription is not sufficient reason for requesting that a building should be preserved at Government expense. Unless it can be shown that the inscriptions really do record information of great historical and educational value there is no justification for any subvention by Government and I venture to think that the Assistant Superintendent for Epigraphy should be requested to make this point quite clear in future.

4. A persual of the miscellaneous collection of photographs submitted and the line drawings illustrating the report, indicate that the orders of Government contained in G.O. No. 961, Public, dated the 2nd August 1913 have not been properly understood. The importance of the order is well exemplified by a comparison of photograph No. 670, Appendix D, with figure 1 (B) in my own annual report for 1920–21. In view of the fact that Government have repeatedly insisted upon the strict economy of all stationery, it is not clear why the photographs in question are mounted on the most costly form of Whatmans' drawing paper, when ordinary brown paper would have answered the same purpose and looked better as a mounting for bromide prints.

Letter—from M.R.Ry. G. Venkoba Rao Avargal, Assistant Archæological Superintendent for Epigraphy, Southern Circle.

To—the Secretary to Government, Law (Education) Department.

Dated—the 15th July 1921.

No.—479.

I have the honour to submit my Annual Report for the year 1920-21.

Office Routine.

M.R.Ry. Rao Bahadur H. Krishna Sastri Avargal, B.A., whose services were placed at the disposal of the Government of India in G.O. No. 720, Home (Education) Department, dated the 22nd June 1920, having been appointed the Government Epigraphist for India in Notification No. 217 (A and E) of the Department of Education of the Government of India, I was appointed sub. pro tem. Assistant Archæological Superintendent for Epigraphy, Southern Circle, in G.O. No. 847, Home (Education) Department, dated the 26th July 1920, of which office I took charge on 28th July 1920. No less than twelve reports on Epigraphy were issued by Rao Bahadur H. Krishna Sastri during his tenure of office and these make up two volumes of material which is of great value to students of South-Indian History and Epigraphy. Mr. K. V. Subrahmanya Ayyar's deputation for three years to Travancore as Superintendent of Archæology, still running its course, the next junior, Mr. C. R. Krishnamacharlu, has been appointed as the Senior Assistant and Manager but is doing duty as the Special Publication Assistant. Mr. K. Krishna Ayyangar, a graduate of the Madras University, previously employed as a teacher in Bangalore, was appointed probationary Kanarese Epigraphical Student and joined duty on 10th May 1920.

2. The temporary establishment for publication originally sanctioned in G.O. No. 890, Home (Education) Department, dated the 5th July 1918 for two years, and in G.O. No. 23, Home (Education) Department, dated the 5th January 1920, was extended for one more year, i.e., till 1st July 1921, in G.O. No. 790, Home (Education) Department, dated the 8th July 1920, with the addition to it of a peon on a pay of Rs. 10 and allowance of Rs. 5.

3. The Special Publication Assistant, Mr. C. R. Krishnamacharlu, went on privilege leave for one month from 1st May 1920 and Mr. A. S. Ramanatha Ayyar had such leave for fifteen days from 26th November 1920. Mr. P. V. Jagadisa Ayyar, the Tamil Reader, having gone on privilege leave for six weeks from the 19th January 1921, an outsider was appointed to the vacancy on the sanctioned pay of Rs. 40. The Telugu-Kannada Reader, Mr. T. T. Sharman, had privilege leave for one month from 17th January 1921 but no substitute was appointed. The clerk, Mr. G. V. Rangarajayya, was absent on similar leave first for one month from 8th June 1920 to 7th July 1920 and again for sixteen days from 8th March 1921 to 23rd March 1921. The members of my establishment, each in his own sphere, have given me thorough satisfaction in the discharge of their duty.

The Assistant Superintendent's Tour.

4. (a) On 10th September 1920, accompanied by Mr. C. R. Krishnamacharlu, I visited the rock-cut cave temple of Nṛisiṁhasvāmin at Śiṅgaperumāḷkōyil in the Chingleput taluk and district which was noticed by Prof. Dubreuil of Pondicherry in his Pallava Antiquities, Volume II, as belonging to the Pallava period. I found this temple on examination as certainly belonging to this period both from its design and the fine workmanship of the image in it but could not make sure of any Pallava writing on the front wall of its verandah since this was completely coated with plaster. Two of the massive pillars in front of this verandah flanking the passage into the central shrine contain certain inscriptions. These are covered partly by modern brick walls raised by the temple managers and the examination of these records had consequently to be postponed. But an inscription of the early Chōla king Rājarājakēsarivarman (i.e. Rājarāja I), cut on the rock adjoining the cave temple on the north side was copied on this occasion. This is registered as No. 481 of Appendix B. I requested the Collector of Chingleput subsequently to arrange with the trustees of the temple for the removal of the plaster and the brick walls. On the 31st January 1921 one of the trustees, Mr. A. Ramanuja Achariyar, B.A., B.L., Vakil, Chingleput, met my Senior Assistant, Mr. C. R. Krishnamacharlu, at the temple and ascertained in detail what was to be done so as to have the walls and the pillars thoroughly exposed for examination and promised to do the needful in last May.

(b) On the 14th of September 1920, Mr. A. S. Ramanatha Ayyar, the Junior Assistant, and myself visited Pulal and copied certain inscriptions of the 14th and the later centuries (Nos. 482 to 488 of Appendix B) in the Tirumūlanāthasvāmin temple at the village. The epigraphical finds of the place have not satisfied my expectations regarding its antiquity suggested by the mention made of it in early inscriptions and Tamil literature. A visit to this place had also been suggested to me by Prof. Dubreuil in his communication dated the 28th April 1917.

(c) I left Madras on 25th September 1920 to examine the village Vāsudēvapaṭṭaṇam in the Palakonda taluk of the Vizagapatam district, included in the year's programme, and reported to contain "a Buddhist image with an inscription on its pedestal." Mr. Krishnamacharlu and Mr. P. Visvanatha Ayyar, the Photo-artist of my office, accompanied me on this tour. It was disappointing to find in the village only a later-day Vaishnavite image called locally Vāsudēva. But opportunity was then taken by me to visit Mukhaliṅgam in the Ganjam district and obtain photographs of the ancient temples, which are good representations of the Orissan style of temple architecture, with special reference to the finely-worked friezes on the entrances of the Mukhaliṅgēśvara temple of this place which are explained by the local priests as depictions of the incidents connected with the origin of the Liṅga enshrined in the temple. The workmanship is very fine and full of details and in some cases reminds us of the sculptures of the Āndhra period. The photographs obtained here are given in Appendix D below as Nos. 638 to 644.

In the same temple, I noticed a particularly curious drawing which represents a naked goddess standing with her head cut off by herself with a sword and kept in the left hand and treading upon a married couple below, in the act of coition. On either side of this goddess but on a lower level are found two other minor naked goddesses drinking the stream of blood gushing out from the neck of the major goddess. A red lotus with eight petals serves as the background for all these drawings. This was considered by me to represent a goddess of the Śāktas and I referred the drawing (No. 219 of Appendix E), to that veteran scholar of Śākta literature, Sir John Woodroffe, Justice, Bengal High Court, Calcutta, who has been kind enough to furnish me with the interesting note on the picture given below—

"The picture which has been sent is that of Chhinnamastā also called Prachaṇḍa-Chaṇḍikā. As will be seen from the Dhyānas the picture does not in detail conform to them and possibly was drawn by some one not versed in the subject. Particularly note that she is not drinking her own blood. The popular account is that Dēvī to satisfy the thirst of her two attendants Ḍākinī and Varṇinī cut off her own head and nourished them with her blood. The esoteric significance is said to be that the Dēvī is Triguṇamayī and is Sattvamayī whilst her attendants represent Tamas and Rajas. This is one of the ten Mahāvidyās' forms, which the Dēvī assumed to startle and terrify Śiva when he refused to allow her to go to Daksha's house. I have come across the same figure in Tibetan banners. Historically, this form of Dēvī may belong to some aboriginal cult taken over. She is called Chaṇḍālinī. Like Tārā she is big-bellied. As appears later she is fond of man-sacrifice. Below are quotations from the Tantras. In her Dhyāna given in the Tantrasāra (this Dhyāna is taken from the Viśvasāra Tantra) she is described to be lustrous as ten million suns and holding her own head in her left hand with the mouth wide open and the tongue hanging out therefrom, drinking one of the three streams of blood which is coming out of her own neck. The hair, which is loose, is dishevelled. She is decked with various flowers. In her right hand she is holding the sword. She has got a garland of severed heads for ornament. The points of the compass are her sacred thread (yajñōpavīta). She is standing on Rati and Kāma who are united in the reversed way (viparītarati). This position indicates that Śakti is action in creation, not Śiva. She is always sixteen years of age with large and rising breasts. On her left and right side are her two attendants Ḍākinī and Varṇinī, who are drinking the two other streams of blood streaming out of Dēvī's severed throat. Varṇinī is of red colour, passive of aspect and has her hair hanging loose. She is holding in her left hand a skull and in her right hand a sword. The points of the compass are her raiment and she has got a sacred thread of great serpents. She is lustrous like flaming fire. She has got her right foot forward. She is decked with various beautiful ornaments and also with her garland of bones and is always sixteen years of age. On the left (of the Dēvī) is Ḍākinī. She is bright like the sun at the time of final dissolution and her matted hair is bright like lightning. She has three eyes and has white teeth which being protruded make her face fearful to behold. Her two breasts are large and high. She is the great Dēvī who is fearful to the beholder. Her hair is hanging loose and the points of the compass are her raiment. Her great tongue is hanging out of her mouth and she is decked with a garland of severed heads. She has got in her left hand a human skull and she is drinking the third stream of blood gushing out of the throat of the Dēvī. The Dēvī should be meditated upon as being always attended by these two.

"The Yantra of Chhinnamastā may roughly be described as under:—Draw lotus of eight petals on the Bhūpura. On the pericap of the lotus draw the figure of the Yōni, and on this draw three concentric circles. The Bīja of the Dēvī should be written within the circles and the Yōni. She is the sixth of the ten Mahāvidyās. The other Mahāvidyās are:—(1) Kālī, (2) Tārā, (3) Shōḍaśī, (4) Bhuvanēśvarī, (5) Bhairavī, (7) Dhūmavatī, (8) Bagalā, (9) Mātaṅgī, (10) Kamalā. The Sammōhana Tantra states that there are some Sampradāyas which speak of other Vidyās in addition to the ten above mentioned.

"According to the Śāktapramōda published by the Venkatesvara Press, Varṇinī and Ḍākinī represent Rajas and Tamas guṇas respectively and the Dēvī Chhinnamastā herself is Triguṇamayī. The Yantras also differ slightly from that given above.

"The Tantrasāra gives another Dhyāna of Chhinnamastā which is as follows:—"She is standing with right foot forward holding in her hands her severed head and the sword—her raiment is the points of the compass and she is drinking with pleasure the nectar-like blood gushing out of her neck. The gem on her head is held there by great serpents. She has three eyes and is wearing a garland of red lotuses which is resting on her breast and she is standing on Kāma who is united with Rati. On her right is standing Varṇinī who is very white and has her hair hanging loose and holds in her hand a skull and a sword. She is the product of Rajōguṇa, she is gleefully drinking one of the streams of blood gushing out of the neck of the Dēvī and a gem is held in its place on her forehead by great serpents. On the left of the Dēvī is another (Śakti) who is standing with left foot forward. She is black in colour and holds in her hands a skull and a sword and is engaged in gleefully drinking one of the streams of blood gushing out of the Dēvī's neck. She is Tamas and her name is Ḍākinī and she is able to devour the whole world at the time of Praḷaya. Chapter XIV of the unpublished Vārāhītantra gives an account of Chhinnamastā. There the Mantra is given of the Dēvī; the worship of the Dēvī, it is stated there, grants Dharma, Kāma and Artha. The worship should be done on the cremation ground or in a lonely house or cave where the Sādhaka may not be observed by the Paśu. The details of the worship are also given. The Dhyāna of the Dēvī runs thus:—'Meditate upon the Dēvī Mahāmāyā who grants all blessings. Meditate upon the wonderful garden in the island in the ocean of nectar (which is) on the bank of the white lake adorned with various gems, having four entrances to it with rows of columns adding to its beauty. Four Kalpa trees constantly dropping nectar are there. Meditate there on the Dēvī Chhinnamastā who is large of belly (mahōdarī) standing on a corpse. She has four hands, her raiment is red and she has three eyes. On her head is a high crown. In her right hand is the great sword and in her left she is holding a lotus, (with the remaining) two hands she is making the gesture of the book (or holding a book). She having severed her own head is drinking the blood that is gushing out. She is red like the rising sun and on her (severed) head (forehead) is the half moon. She is being adored by many Rishis and she is wearing a yajñōpavīta made of great serpents.' This Dhyāna differs in many particulars from the Dhyāna given elsewhere.

"The Dēvī in the centre represents Sattvaguṇa and the other two Rajas and Tamas guṇas as the second Dhyāna reproduced from the Tantrasāra shows."

While returning from the north I broke journey at Bezwada. In the ancient Mallikārjuna temple of the place-I noticed a panel of a sculpture in relief of Nṛisiṁha treading upon Hiraṇyakaśipu, built into the west wall of the central shrine and took a photograph of it (No. 655, Appendix D). It is a very ancient sculpture showing some similarities to the art of the early Pallava and Chāḷukyan periods. After finishing my tour in the northern districts, I returned to headquarters on 5th October 1920.

(d) On 16th November 1920 Mr. G. V. Srinivasa Rao and myself accompanied the Government Epigraphist for India, at his request, to Mahābalipuram to copy and read from stone a Pallavā inscription on a balipīṭha there and another at Vāyalūr for publication in Epigraphia Indica. We returned to headquarters on 21st November 1920.

(e) On 2nd December 1920 I left for Mangalore in the South Canara district with Mr. P. Visvanatha Ayyar to examine in situ the inscriptions copied in this district in 1901, for publication in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. VI. The Publication Assistant Mr. C. R. Krishnamacharlu with the Telugu-Kannada Reader Mr. T. T. Sharman had already been engaged in this work since November 1920. My work in this district occupied me till the end of December and I returned to headquarters on 31st December 1920. I took this opportunity to study somewhat closely the Jaina monuments of the district—which was the centre of this religion till comparatively a very late date, as it is even now. In the Śiva temple of Mañjunātha in the suburb of Mangalore called Kadri are three bronze statues of Jaina deities for which sketches have been made by Mr. P. Visvanatha Ayyar (Nos. 220 to 222 of Appendix E). Besides these, the two stone Jaina images called Sāraṅganātha (Śārṅganātha?) and Matsyēndranātha set up in the niches of the temple have also been photographed (Nos. 665 and 666 of Appendix D). Of the three bronze statues mentioned above, one called 'Brahmā' by the priests of the temple is particularly interesting from the standpoint of workmanship which is of a high order as can be seen from the reproduction of it given in Plate No. 1. On the pedestal of this image is an inscription in Grantha script and in Sanskrit verse which says that 'the Āḷupa king Kundavarman of the Sōmavaṁśa set up in the Vihāra at Kadirikā the image of Lōkēśvaradēva on the evening of that day in the tenth month (i.e.) Makara, in Kali 4068, which had Rōhiṇī as its star when Jupiter was in Kanyā. Since the other inscriptions of the place appear in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. VI (now in press), I have thought it advisable to include this inscription in the same volume. From the above-noticed Jaina associations, the neglected mānastambha in the compound of the temple and the name Mañjunātha of the liṅga it has to be inferred that this temple was originally a Jaina one.

A panel of Jain teachers found at Kārkaḷa has been photographed and given as No. 2 in Plate I. The two bottom rows of the panel represent the following teachers beginning from the proper right, viz., (1) Kumudachandra Bhaṭāraka, (2) Hēmachandra Bhaṭāraka, (3) Śrī Chāru[kīrti]paṁḍitadēva, (4) Śrutamuni, (5) Dharmabhūshaṇa Bhaṭāraka, (6) Pūjyapādasvāmi, (7) Vimalasūri Bhaṭāraka, (8) Śrīkīrt Bhaṭāraka, (9) Siddhāntidēva, (10) Chārukīrtidēva, (11) Mahākīrti Rāvuḷa and (12) Narēndrakīrtidēva.

(f) My next tour was in the southern districts of Tanjore and Trichinopoly in connexion with the publication. It began on 9th February 1921 and closed on 3rd March 1921. Mr. G. V. Srinivasa Rao, the Senior Assistant, accompanied me to the villages, Allūr, Tiruchendurai, Andanallūr and Naṅgavāram where we examined some inscriptions in original on the stone and copied some new ones. These latter are included in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. VI—(Texts).

(g) On 20th March 1921 again I left with Mr. G. V. Srinivasa Rao for Conjeeveram to examine inscriptions for publication in situ at the neighbouring villages of Vēppaṅgulam and Śevallimēḍu and returned to headquarters on 23rd March 1921. Here Mr. Ramanatha Ayyar, the Collection Assistant and myself examined the huge copper-images of a chief and his father and mother placed in the Varadarājasvāmin temple. These bear no writing on them but may have to be associated with Tōdaramalla who, in the beginning of the 18th century, re-established the Vishnu image of Varadarāja which for some years previously had been preserved at Udayārpāḷayam in the Trichinopoly district (See Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1920, pages 121 ff., paragraphs 64 and 65). The trustees of the temple object, on sentimental grounds, to the images being photographed though they are not worshipped but merely placed at the entrance of the second gōpura and I am making arrangements to obtain accurate sketches of them made by my artist. On the whole I spent 76 days on tour during the year under review both in connexion with the collection and the publication work.

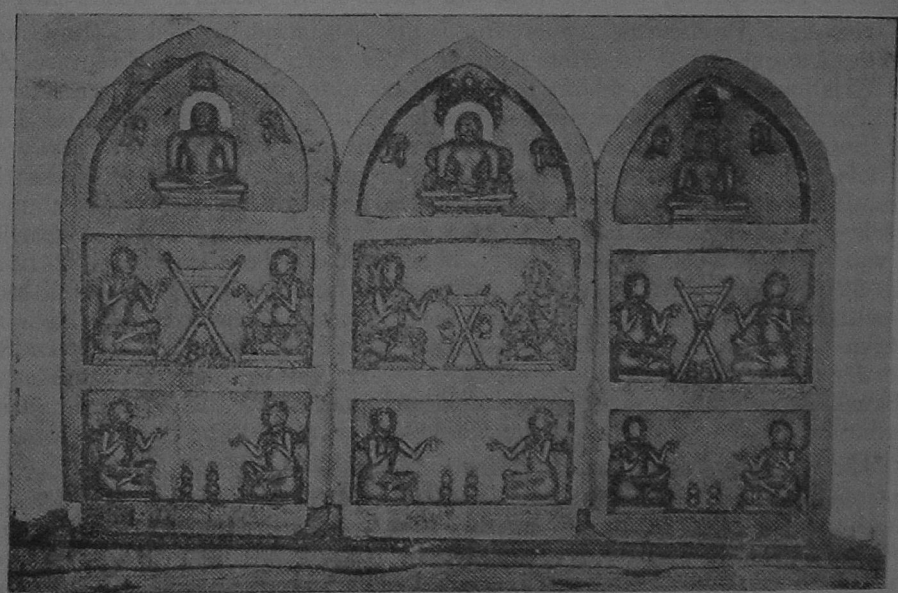
1. No. 220 of Appendix E.—Bronze Statute of Barhmā (?) (Lōkēśvara) in the Śiva temple at Kadri.



2. No. 672 of Appendix D.—Sculpture of a group of Jain teachers in the Dharmādhikāri basti at Karkala.

Tours of the Establishment.

5. Mr. C. R. Krishnamacharlu accompanied by Mr. T. T. Sharman, the Telugu-Kannada Reader, proceeded to Dharmapuri in the Salem district on 19th October 1920, for reading from stone certain inscriptions copied in the district in 1900 and 1901 for publication in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. VI. He examined the inscriptions in the villages of Dharmapuri, Kūttapāḍi, Haḷēpuram, Iṇḍūr, Rāyakōṭa and Kārimaṅgalam and copied a new Vaṭṭeḻuttu inscription on a hero-stone of the 10th century A.D. at Dharmapuri. He then proceeded to Mangalore where he arrived on the 1st November 1920. He was occupied here in examining inscriptions for publication, till I joined him from Madras on 3rd December 1920. Subsequently we visited Uḍipi, Kārkaḷa, Mūḍabidure and Vēṇūr to examine the inscriptions of these places for publication, during which tour Messrs. Sharman and Visvanatha Ayyar accompanied us. Though some work had yet to be done in the district Mr. Krishnamacharlu returned to headquarters with me on 31st December 1920 as his presence was necessary in connexion with the Telugu-Kannada manuscripts which he had to pass for the Press. In addition to the examination of old inscriptions for publication, 11 new inscriptions have been copied in this tour.

6. Mr. G. V. Srinivasa Rao, the Senior Assistant who is in charge of the Tamil section of the publication work visited 39 places in the North and South Arcot, Chingleput, Trichinopoly, Madura, Tanjore and Tinnevelly districts between 12th April 1920 and 21st June 1920 at the first instance, and again between the dates 17th January 1921 and 2nd March 1921, for the examination of some stone inscriptions under publication. Further he secured estampages of 15 new inscriptions at the villages Dēśūr, Śaḷukki and Maṇimūrtēśvaram noted in the programme for the year. During these tours he copied 18 additional inscriptions which will be published in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. VI with the others of the places to which they belong.

7. Mr. A. S. Ramanatha Ayyar, the Junior Assistant worked in the Gooty taluk from 19th August 1920 to 31st August 1920 with the new Kanarese Assistant Mr. K. Krishna Ayyangar whom he had to train up in camp work. After staying at headquarters for three weeks subsequently he left it on 21st September 1920 and visited the villages Puṉṉam (Karur taluk, Trichinopoly district), Paṭṭiśam (Kumbakonam taluk, Tanjore district), Ālaṅguḍi (Pāpanāśam taluk, Tanjore district) and Kāṭṭumaṉṉārkōyil (Chidambaram taluk, South Arcot district). He then took up the work of exhaustively collecting the inscriptions in the town of Conjeeveram which was executed partly last year. This work occupied him from 24th January 1921 to 30th March 1921 on which latter date he returned to headquarters. His entire collection, numbering 228 inscriptions, contains some early Chōḷa records of Parāntaka I, Rājarāja I, Rājēndra-Chōḷa I and Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I. Specially noteworthy among these is the copy of the first six verses of the Sūryaśataka of the early Sanskrit poet Mayūra engraved in characters of about the eleventh century A.D. on a pillar in the Durgā shrine in the Kachchīśvara temple at Conjeeveram.

8. Mr. V. Venkatasubba Ayyar, the Tamil Ephigraphical student, copied inscriptions in the villages Vengaḷattūr, Kalavai, Āyal, Ayyampāḷayam, Pēraṇamallūr and Raghunāthasamudram in the North Arcot district, Mēlpāḍi and Chittoor in the Chittoor district, and Nīrperuttagaram in the South Arcot district and then inspected 167 villages of the Gudiyattam taluk in the North Arcot district. He was engaged in this work for nearly five months, i.e., 13th November 1920 to 2nd April 1921 and collected in all 106 inscriptions. About twenty villages of this taluk had to be reserved for next year since the hilly nature of the taluk and the consequent difficulty of communication hindered rapid progress of his touring work. Mr. Venkatasubba Ayyar has noticed the existence of Jaina monuments at the villages Mēlpādi and Tennampaṭṭu in the Chittoor and North Arcot districts. The earliest record of his collection is inscribed on a hero-stone and is dated in Śaka 842 (=920 A.D.). It comes from Chandattūr in the said taluk. He also brought to my notice the existence of five sets of copper-plates (numbering 19 sheets in all) at Udayēndiram in Gudiyattam taluk which he later on secured for this office through the Tahsildar of that place These belong to the Pallava and early Chōla periods and are published in the. Epigraphia Indica, Vol. III, pages 75, 81 and 145 and in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. II, Nos. 74 and 76. Some of these were even then incomplete and some more plates are now missing. I have opened correspondence with the Tahsildar of Gudiyattam requesting him to make enquiries about these plates. The 19 plates now secured have been purchased for the Government Museum and will be deposited therein at an early date.

9. Mr. K. Krishna Ayyangar, the probationary Kanarese Epigraphical student, has finished the survey of the Gooty taluk where he worked from 19th August 1920 to 11th December 1920, i.e., for nearly four months. He inspected 159 villages in all of which only 66 contained epigraphs. His collection which numbers 148 inscriptions includes some records of early Western Chālukyan kings, Pulakēśin (II), Vikramāditya I, Vijayāditya, and Kīrtivarman II, whose stone inscriptions are very rare. These come from the villages Bētāpalli, Peddavaḍugūru, Koṇḍupalli, Dimmaguḍi and Nīlūr of this taluk. Besides these some hero-stones, of about the eighth and ninth centuries A.D. have been noticed and examined by Mr. Krishna Ayyangar at the villages, Hāvaligi (No. 443 of Appendix B), Viḍapanakallu, Vēlpumaḍugu, Appājipēṭa and Katrimalla. At Uruvakoṇḍa, Mr. Ayyangar reports, is an old library in the maṭah. This may be examined when convenient by the staff of the Government Oriental Manuscript Library if they have not already done so. He has also secured 8 copper-plate records most of which are of a later date and are in some cases of doubtful authenticity, being forgeries made in the interests of village officers and servants who contrived thereby to establish their rights to certain services and to the lands and incomes attached thereto.

10. Mr. A. Rangaswamy Sarasvati, the Telugu Epigraphical student who began the survey of the Tenali taluk in the Guntur district, last year, has completed it this year, and in addition has visited the villages Juttiga, Mogallu, Natta-Rāmēśvaram and Tāḍuvāyi and his entire collection numbers 137 inscriptions. Thus the programme of field work as given in the last year's report has been almost completely worked out, 22 places out of 27 having been examined during the year.

The Year's Work.

Publication.

11. For the new series of South-Indian Inscriptions—(Texts), in addition to the 2,998 pages of manuscript for Volume V already sent to the Government Press as stated in my Annual Report for 1920, paragraph 9, 40 more pages have been sent for the same volume and 3,050 pages for Volume VI have also been sent to the Press during the year. The manuscript of the Ceylon inscriptions containing about 16 pages proposed to be included in Volume VI has also been sent to the Press. 157 pages for Volume IV and 37 pages for Volume V of galley proof have been received towards the close of the year since 9th March 1921 and they are being checked. 161 pages of second proofs for Volume IV received during the year since 11th February 1921 are also under correction. These will be returned to the Press at an early date. Owing to special work occupying the Government Press during the last year in connexion with the Electoral Rolls and the new Legislative Councils no proofs were received from the Press between 17th April 1920 and 11th February 1921.

Collection.

12 (a) As the result of the tours detailed above 675 inscriptions have been copied during the year and of these 646 are registered in Appendices B and C. The remaining 29 inscriptions are reserved for publication (see paragraphs 5 and 6).

Besides the five sets of copper-plates (already published) purchased from the trustee of the Rāmachandra-Perumāl temple at Udayēndiram, 16 new records have been secured for the office during the year. Of these, the two sets (Nos. 1 and 2 of Appendix A) sent for my examination by the Diwan of Parlakimedi and the two sets (Nos. 4 and 16 of Appendix A) which were kindly secured for my examination by Mr. T. C. Rath, B.A., District Munsif, Chodavaram, and by Mr. K. V. Lakshmana Rao, M.A., who take much interest in epigraphical studies are of an early period and their importance is fully detailed in Part II.

(b) The forty-nine photographs taken and five sketches made for the office by Mr. P. Visvanatha Ayyar during the year are registered in Appendices D and E. Appendix F contains the date calculations made for some of the year's inscriptions by the office with the help of Diwan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai and his Ephemeris.

Conservation.

13 (a) Besides the five sets of copper-plates noted in paragraphs 8 and 12 above four other sets (Nos. 1, 2, 11 and 12 of Appendix A to the Annual Report for 1920) which are also of an early period have been purchased for the Government during the year and are deposited in the Madras Museum. The Tahsildar of Nellore, who was requested to arrange for the purchase for Government of the early copper-plate record No. 2 of Appendix A to my Report for 1920, states that the discoverer of the plates rescued them from an attempt to melt them. It is reported by the owner that another set discovered together with this had been melted previously. In view of this tendency in ignorant people to destroy valuable records in this manner it is advisable that the Government request the district officers to take special interest in the collection of such records. It may not be too much for the Government to issue notifications or leaflets in the vernaculars promising good prices for inscribed copper-plates brought to the notice of Government officials by private persons. Such valuable material should thus be saved from destruction and made available for purposes of research.

(b) With regard to the conservation of stone inscriptions, I have to bring to the notice of the Government the following facts and request that necessary action may be taken in a more effective manner than had been done hitherto with regard to their preservation. Mr. C. R. Krishnamacharlu, in the course of his inspection at Mangalore, found an inscribed stone containing inscription No. 23 of 1901 (already copied) missing. The matter was referred to the Collector who on inquiry reported that the local officers could not trace out the stone and in his letter Ref. on C. No. 179/21-E, dated 11th March 1921, requested me to furnish him with a list of all the inscribed stones of the district so far registered in order that he might take steps to ensure their proper preservation in future by making the village Patels responsible for the work. A list of these was furnished to him with my letter No. 194, dated 19th March 1921. I wish to represent to the Government in this connexion that all Collectors be requested to take such steps as would save from misuse or neglect all epigraphical monuments in their jurisdictions already inspected or otherwise.

(c) Mr. V. Venkatasubba Ayyar reports that the inscribed stones in the Kailāsanātha temple at Veṅgalattūr, Cheyyar taluk, North Arcot district, have been misplaced in the recent renovation of the structure and some of these stones are missing. There are not wanting other instances of epigraphical monuments missing or being misused. My Kanarese Assistant, Mr. K. Krishna Ayyangar, reports that in the Gooty taluk of the Anantapur district the following inscribed stones noticed by Mr. Sewell in his List of Antiquities, Volume I, are now lost :—

(1) Stone on the tank-bund at Gooty.
(2) Stone at Seṭnepalli.
(3) Stone at Ūṭakallu.
(4) Stone at Tamballapalli.

And again two inscribed stones at Pātakottacheruvu noticed by Mr. V. Rangachari in his Inscriptions of the Madras Presidency (Volume 1, page 6, Nos. 36 and 37) are missing. Mr. Krishna Ayyangar also brings to my notice that an inscribed stone at Kudulapalli in this taluk noticed by Mr. Sewell was broken into pieces just a few days before his visit to the village and built into the new Āñjanēya temple. There are instances also of inscribed stones being used in private houses.

(d) The deserted temple of Śiva to the north of the village of Śeṅkuṇṟam in the Gudiyattam taluk, North Arcot district, is an ancient one and contains inscriptions of the time of Rājarāja I and his son who came to the throne in A.D. 985 and 1011 respectively. In structure it resembles the early temples of Mēlpāḍi which have been conserved by Government. I recommend its conservation since the temple is in a dilapidated condition and roots of the trees growing on the top have pierced through into the walls of the temple. The inscribed stones are certain to fall to the ground if left uncared for and are likely to be utilized by the villagers for private purposes as they have done with the other stones of the temple.

(e) Piramiyam, a village situated about 10 miles from Dhārāpuram in the Coimbatore district, was visited during last year and was found to contain a small unicellular temple in ruins, the walls of which are covered with a number of inscriptions, in early Vaṭṭeḻuttu characters and in a sufficiently good state of preservation, of a certain Kalimūrkha Vikrama-Chōḷa, probably a Koṅgu-Chōḷa king, who has, on the evidence of a dated inscription of his at Tiṅgaḷūr, Coimbatore district (No. 614 of 1905) been assigned to the first half of the eleventh century A.D. The temple has no liṅga in it and no worship is being conducted therein; and in view of the importance of the information which these inscriptions furnish in respect of the later kings of Koṅgu and the Vaṭṭeḻuttu script in which the records are engraved and in consideration of its neglected condition, the shrine is recommended for conservation and may be repaired at a small cost by keeping the fallen slabs in their proper positions.

14. Among the other objects of epigraphical interest that have been examined during the year and deserve to be conserved as protected monuments are—

(1) The deserted temple at Allūr in the Trichinopoly taluk and district which is completely built of stone and contains many inscriptions of the early Chōḷa period. This temple is situated in the midst of the wet lands, a mile to the south of the village.

(2) The Śiva and Vishṇu temples at Naṅgavaram, Kulittalai taluk, Trichinopoly district. The central as well as all the minor shrines are built of stone from the pinnacle to the bottom.

(3) The Śiva temple at Tiruchchendurai, Trichinopoly taluk and district, which is grossly neglected and has its inscriptions buried under earth.

(4) The deserted temple with early Chōḷa inscriptions at Śeṅkuṇṟam referred to above.

Besides, the Collector of Anantapur may be requested to issue instructions for the proper preservation either by the village officers or by removal to the taluk office, of :—

(1) The stone at Bētāpalli containing an inscription of Vijayāditya (No. 333 of Appendix B).

(2) The stone at Peddavaḍugūru containing inscriptions of Satyāśraya (Pulakēśin II) (No. 343 of Appendix B).

(3) The stone near Koṇḍupalli containing an inscription of Vijayāditya (No. 359 of Appendix B).

(4) The stone at Dimmagudi with an inscription of Vikramāditya I (No. 364 of Appendix B).

(5) The inscribed pillar in front of the temple at Nīlūru (No. 346 of Appendix B).

(6) The hero-stone at Hāviḷigi engraved in early Kannaḍa characters (No. 443 of Appendix B).

Appendix F.—Dates from Appendices A, B and C to the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1920–21, calculated with the assistance of M.R.Ry. Diwan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai Avargal, M.A., B.L., LL.B., I.S.O.

Note.—The following abbreviations have been employed in these statements :—

1. Śu. and ba., respectively, for Śuklapaksha and Bahulapaksha, the bright and dark fortnights of the lunar month.

2. The ending moments of tithis and nakshatras are expressed as decimal parts of the day and in a normal date the first decimal shows the ending moment of the tithi and the second the ending moment of the nakshatra. Thus the result—

A.D. 1610: Monday, Decr. 30; ·94 ; ·50 means that on the day in question the tithi quoted in the inscription ended at ·94 of the day, i.e., 56½ ghaṭikas after mean sunrise, while the nakshatra quoted in the inscription ended at ·50 of the day, i.e., 30 ghaṭikas after mean sunrise.

When only the tithi is quoted, its ending moment is shown by decimal figures next to the day of the month, thus : "A.D. 1289, Monday, Nov. 28 ; ·70 " is a convenient way of indicating the fact that a tithi ended at ·70 of the day (42 ghaṭikas after sunrise) on Nov. 28, A.D. 1289, which was Monday.

3. When a tithi or nakshatra that is quoted in a record only commenced on the week-day quoted in the same record the fact is indicated by the symbols f.d.t. or f.d.n. Thus :

"Wednesday 6 Ap. A.D. 1384 ; ·68 ; f.d.n. ·29 " means that the tithi quoted in the inscription ended at ·68 (= 41 ghaṭikas after sunrise) on Wednesday, 6 Ap. A.D. 1384, but that the nakshatra quoted in the inscription only commenced on Wednesday and came to end at ·29 (= 17⅓ ghaṭikas after sunrise) on the following day, Thursday.

Similarly "Friday, Ap. 26; f.d.t. ·08 ; f.d.n. ·13 " means that the tithi and nakshatra quoted were current for the greater part of Friday, but came to end next day at ·08 (= 5 ghaṭikas after sunrise) and ·13 (= 8 ghaṭikas after sunrise), respectively, on Saturday.

4. When it is necessary to distinguish the name of a nakshatra from that of a month and generally, as a useful convention, the names of nakshatras are printed between inverted commas, thus " Magha " is the nakshatra, Māgha is the month.

		Jaṭāvarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīra-Pāṇḍyadēva.
1920	623	14th year, Tulā, ba. trayōdaśī, Wednesday, Chitra. The details correspond to A.D. 1266, October 27, Wednesday; ·71; ·81. At page 85 of the Annual Report for 1919–20, Mr. L. D. Swamikannu Pillai finds that about half the number of dates of this Vīra-Pāṇḍya point to A.D. 1254 as the commencement of his reign and about half to A.D. 1253 or possibly to A.D. 1281. The present date belongs to the category of the latter half.
		Māṟavarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Kulaśēkharadēva (I).
,,	476	40th year, Makara, ba. daśamī, Thursday, Anushā = A.D. 1308, January 18, Thursday; f. d. t. ·33; ·74.
,,	569	36th year, Mēsha, ba. daśamī, Wednesday, Śravaṇa = A.D. 1304, March 30, Monday. Ba. daśamī commenced at ·69 and the Nak. Śravaṇa was current till ·71 on Monday. If this be the date intended the week day Wednesday must be a mistake for Monday. In the reign of Māṟavarman Kulaśēkhara II which began in March 1314 A.D., there is a date, Wednesday, 31st March, 1350 A.D. (which would be in the 36th-year of his reign); on this day Nak. Śravaṇa commenced at ·86 of the day but ba. daśamī did not begin till ·98 on the next day, Thursday.
		Jaṭāvarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva.
,,	529	24th year, Makara, ba. ēkādaśī, Tuesday, Anurādhā = A.D. 1301, December 26, Tuesday; ·70; f.d.n. ·03. The details work correctly if we take A.D. 1277 as the commencement of the reign.
,,	571	11th year, Kumbha, ba. daśamī, Saturday, Mṛigaśīrsha. Ba. di. is evidently a mistake for śu. di. for ba. 10 and "Mṛigaśīrsha" cannot combine in Kumbha month. The probable date is A.D. 1314, January 26, Saturday; ·99; f.d.n. ·38, which would be in the 11th year of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya whose reign commenced in A.D. 1303.
		Perumāḷ Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva.
,,	570	15th year, Mēsha, śu. saptamī, Wednesday, Punarpūśam. = A.D. 1292, March 26, Wednesday; ·77; f.d.n. ·31. This was in the 15th year of the reign of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva whose reign began, according to the note on page 97 of the Annual Report for 1915–16, between 28th February and 14th March A.D. 1277.

II

The Western Chalukyas of Badami.

Among the inscriptions copied in the Gooty taluk of the Anantapur district are five records belonging to the early dynasty of the Chālukyas of Bādāmi. No. 343 of 1920 coming from Peddavaḍugūru registers the confirmation by Bāṇarāja of the sarvamānya gift of the village Nāḍanūru reported to have been originally made by Eṛeyiti (or Eṛeti)-aḍigaḷ on the occasion of his success in an encounter with Raṇavikrama at the village of Nāḍanūru. Raṇavikrama is definitely known to have been a title of Pulakēśin I. But in this inscription it has to be taken as the other form of Raṇavikrānta which was the title of Maṅgaḷēśa, the paternal uncle and enemy of Pulakēśin II who flourished about A.D. 609–642 (Dr. Fleet's Kan. dyns. Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Pt. II, Table opposite page 336). Pulakēśin II had the surname Eṛeya, (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VII—App. No. 16) and Eṛeyiti-aḍigaḷ is therefore identical with Eṛeya i.e., Pulakēśin II. The village Peddavaḍugūru where the record is found was at this period called Nāḍanūru and this was an agrahāra village under the management of twenty-seven Mahājanas who made gifts of land jointly.

Satyāśraya-Pulakēśin II.

2. No. 364 of 1920 belongs to Vikramāditya I and is probably the only Telugu inscription known hitherto of his period. It is dated in the 27th year of the king who reigned, according to Dr. Fleet, from A.D. 655 to 680 and may therefore be taken to extend the period of his reign beyond 25 years. Dr. Kielhorn thinks that Vikramāditya reigned till A.D. 686. Nos. 333 and 359 of 1920 belong to Vijayāditya Satyāśraya, the son of Vinayāditya and the grandson of Vikramāditya I who, according to Dr. Fleet (Table opposite page 336, Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Part II), ruled from about A.D. 696 to 733–734 A.D. The latter record, dated in the 23rd year of his reign, may be assigned to A.D. 719–720. It is also one of the few early Telugu inscriptions found in this part of the country like the one noticed above. It refers to a battle in which the rulers of the Turamara-vishaya were vanquished (on behalf of the king) by the chief Vikramāditya Bali Indra-Bāṇarāja, son of Narasiṁha-Bāṇarāja. From page 369 of the Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Part II, we know that Vinayāditya, the father of Vijayāditya, had encamped at the village Chitrasēḍu in the Toramara-vishaya about June A.D. 692. The mention of a fight with the rulers of this vishaya in the time of Vijayāditya suggests clearly that this part of the country was invaded by enemies (probably the Pallavas or their feudatories from the south-east of it) some time between A.D. 692 and 720 and temporarily occupied by them. The Bāṇa chiefs mentioned above, governed this territory as vassals of the Western Chāḷukya kings as shown by other inscriptions (Nos. 333 and 343 of 1920). The former of the two last-mentioned inscriptions records the gift of different kinds of land called erekāḍu (black soil), kesukāḍu (jungle grown with kesu shrubs) and maḍikāḍu (jungle grown with the maḍi plants) as pannasa. The names of the persons that measured these talapare and the erekāḍu lands are also mentioned. The Turamara-vishaya of the inscriptions is identical with the Toramara-vishaya noticed by Dr. Fleet. Chitrasēḍu, where Vinayāditya encamped, is the modern Chitrachēḍu in the Gooty taluk. So it may be safely inferred that the country covered by the modern Gooty taluk formed the whole or part of the ancient Turamara-vishaya. The village Pulagicheṛuvu in which land is said to have been given (No. 359 of 1920) might be the same as the modern Poliki in this taluk.

Vikramāditya I and his grandson Vijayāditya.

Gooty province—the ancient Turamara-vishaya.

3. Inscription No. 346 of 1920 may be attributed to king Kīrtivarman II of this dynasty because of the fullness of the titles applied to him and also on grounds of palæography. Stone inscriptions of Vijayāditya and Kīrtivarman II are also found in the Alur taluk of the adjoining Bellary district. (See Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1920, page 100, paragraph 14).

The Chalukyas of Kalyani.

4. Of the Chāḷukya kings of Kalyāṇi, Jagadēkamalla Jayasiṁha II is the earliest mentioned in the inscriptions of the year under review. To this king belongs No. 339 of 1920 which is much damaged. It is dated in the 4th year of his reign and mentions an officer of the king called Siṅgi-nāyaka.

Jayasiṁha II.

5. Of his son and successor Trailōkyamalla Sōmēśvara I (A.D. 1044–1068) we have only one record (No. 392 of 1920) dated in Śaka 981, Vikāri. The other epithet of the king, viz., Āhavamalla, is missing in this inscription. But it mentions for the first time now, a Chōḷa subordinate of his named Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Chiddaṇa-Chōḷa-Mahārāja who was ruling over the Sindavāḍi Thousand province. This is the first and the only Chōḷa vassal of the king known so far. He bears the usual birudas of the Chōḷa chiefs, namely, "the illuminating gem of the family of Karikāla" and "the lord of Kāñchīpura". He bears also the personal titles Ayyaṇasiṅgha and Chōḷa-Nārāyaṇa. It is evident from this that the advance of Sōmēśvara I to the south was successful even before the death of the Chōḷa king Rājēndradēva in or before A.D. 1071 (Kan. dyns. Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Part II, page 441) and that the Chōḷa chiefs acknowledged his authority even so early as A.D. 1059 (Śaka 981). The inscription states that the Chāḷukya emperor (chakravarti) went on an expedition to the south, presumably against the Chōḷa country and that Manneya Saṅkarasa of Koṇḍakunde was governing the country during his absence. It records an interesting incident of three gāvuṇḍas in consultation with two Brahmans, accusing before the king—or his officers—(rājagāmitanam-gaidu), a certain Guṇḍamayya of having misappropriated their legitimate holding in (the village) Doḍḍakaḷihikallu (the modern Dōṇēkallu from which the inscription comes), of impudently claiming the village as his own and enjoying the umbaḷi for three years. When the matter came up for enquiry it was proposed that if any one of the three gāvuṇḍas gave up his life (in proof of the allegation) not only his original share would be restored to him but he would also be given extra land with title to bequeath it to his posterity. Nirjara-gāvuṇḍa, one of the three gāvuṇḍas, accepted the ordeal and stabbed himself to death, expressing his wish that his son Māchi-gāvuṇḍa might inherit his entire land. Out of the land so recovered and the land newly earned a vritti was given by Māchi-gāvuṇḍa to the two Brahmans Chiddaya and Jakkaya who originally gave counsel to the three gāvuṇḍas.

Trailōkyamalla Sōmēśvara I.

His Chōḷa vassal.

6. Of Vikramāditya VI we have seven inscriptions from the Gooty taluk (Nos. 341, 406, 410, 414, 439, 451 and 455 of 1920) ranging in date from Śaka 994 i.e., four years before he founded his Chāḷukya-Vikrama era to the 45th year of the era i.e., Śaka 1043. From Kollūru, Tenali taluk, Guntur district, come three inscriptions of this king. One of these, No. 700 of 1920, dated in the 40th year of his reign, mentions his general Anantapāla-Daṇḍanāyaka. No. 714 of 1920, which is much damaged and has no date, records a gift made by the same general. Still it is interesting in so far as it gives the names of the parents of Anantapāla, viz., the general Mahēśvara and his wife Paṁpādēvī, and of his three brothers Nārāyaṇa, Vāmana and Lakkaṇa not known till now from other inscriptions. We also learn that the family belonged to the Bhāradvāja-gōtra. Three other inscriptions, Nos. 434, 325 and 556 of 1920 though not actually mentioning him as the sovereign, are dated in the years 6, 14 and 47 of the Chāḷukya-Vikrama era, respectively, and must hence be assigned to his reign. In No. 439 of 1920, which is dated in the 4th year of the Chāḷukya-Vikrama era, is mentioned the Chōḷa subordinate of the king, Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Maṅgarasa who was ruling over the Maṭṭe Three-hundred and Kaneyakallu Three-hundred districts. Another Chōḷa subordinate of the king is mentioned in No. 414 of 1920, dated in the 7th year of the Chāḷukya-Vikrama era. He is called Iṟiva-Maṅgarasa. From the identity of the praśastis applied to this chief and to the Maṅgarasa noticed above and from the proximity of the dates of the two records, it may be inferred that the same Chōḷa chief is referred to in both the records. No. 410 of 1920 of the king dated in Virōdhi (i.e., Śaka 1032) mentions a Chōḷa subordinate Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Ghaṭeyaṅka. . . .whose capital was at Kaṇeyakallu. These Chōḷa subordinates of the king are known now for the first time.

Vikramāditya VI.

7. A word about the division Sindavāḍi Thousand seems to be necessary here. From inscription No. 489 of 1915 it is seen that about Śaka 976 it was under the rule of a Noḷamba-Pallava chief. About Śaka 981, the country was governed by a Chōḷa chief named Chiddaṇadēva-Chōḷa-Mahārāja (No. 392 of 1920). And again by Śaka years 1036 and 1045 the country was under the rule of prince Kumāra-Tailapa who was governing it from his capital at Tumbuḷa (Nos. 406 and 341 of 1920). Thus it appears as if the administration of the provinces during the Chāḷukya times did not go by heredity but by appointments made by the king. This view is borne out by the statement explicitly made in No. 406 of 1920, that the king himself "while governing from his capital Manneyakeṛe in the 38th year of the Chāḷukya-Vikrama era gave to Kumāra-Tailapadēva, as a favour, the Sindavāḍi Thousand country." King Vikramāditya himself had two capitals—Kalyāṇa and Manneyakeṛe. Of these, the former must have been the chief capital, since in No. 414 of 1920 it is called 'siravīḍu' (chief residence). Dr. Fleet observes (Kan. dyns. Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Part II, p. 450) that the king was ruling at Manneyakeṛe in A.D. 1125–26. But here we have evidence in No. 406 of 1920 that he was residing there nearly a decade earlier.

Kumāra-Tailapa.

8. The prince Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Kumāra-Tailapadēva of the inscriptions Nos. 341, 352, 406 and 458 of 1920 is not mentioned in any other record hitherto known. He is called 'the delight of Chandaladēvī' in No. 352 of 1920. If the expression has to be construed as referring to a son of Chandaladēvī, he must either be identical with Jayakarṇa, the eldest son of the king, or a brother of his, not known hitherto. In No. 325 of 1920, dated in Chāḷukya-Vikrama year 14, is mentioned for the first time, a general (Daṇḍanāyaka) of the king, named Pōcharasa. A Bāṇa chief, Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Chiṭṭarasa appears in No. 356 of 1920, dated in the 47th year of the Chāḷukya-Vikrama era. This chief must have been a tributary prince, though not a subordinate official of the king, and probably a descendant of the early Bāṇa chiefs who governed the Turamara-vishaya in the 8th and 9th centuries A. D. (see paragraph 2 above). In this inscription is mentioned a copper-plate grant issued by this chief. We already know of another Bāṇa subordinate of this king named Chīkarasa mentioned in No. 566 of 1915.

Sōmēśvara III.

9. The successor of Vikramāditya VI, viz., Sōmēśvara III who had the title Bhūlōkamalla is represented by a single inscription (No. 337 of 1920), dated in the 10th year of his reign, corresponding to Śaka 1058 and A.D. 1135–36. His records are generally dated in the year of his own reign, calling it Chāḷukya-Bhūlōkamalla-varsha, dropping the Chāḷukya-Vikrama era started by his father. But an exception to this seems to be found in No. 440 of 1920, in which the name of the king is lost. It is dated in the Chāḷukya-Vikrama year 55 Sādhāraṇa (Śaka 1053) which was the 5th year of Bhūlōkamalla. The subordinate chief Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Iruṅgōḷa-Mahārāja of this record may be identified with Vīra-Iruṅgōḷa-Chōḷamahārāja who, according to No. 695 of 1919, was a subordinate of the king. The record under review gives the King's well-known title Sarvajñachakravarti and calls him Bhūlōkamalla. It is interesting to note from this inscription that several State officials were present at the time of the gift recorded in it. They were (1) the Mahāpradhāna (chief minister), (2) Antaḥpurādhyaksha (superintendent of the harem,) (3) Karituragasāhaṇavergaḍe (minister for elephant forces and cavalry), (4) Śrī-Karaṇam (the chief accountant), (5) Hirēsandhivigrahi (the senior minister for foreign affairs), (6) Pasāyita (the master of the robes), (7) Sēṇādhipati (general), (8) Maneveryaḍe (palace comptroller), (9) Haḍapadava (bearer of the betel-pouch), (10) Kaḍidavergaḍe (secretary for correspondence), and (11) Rājādhyaksha (king's representative). This is the earliest among the records of this year to mention the name of Gutti. It also describes it as the headquarters of a commanding officer (Daṇḍanāyaka).

10. It has been observed above that the Chālukya-Vikrama era was dropped by Sōmēśvara, III the son of Vikramāditya VI. But we have evidence in No. 393 of 1920, which belongs to a king called Tribhuvanamalla Permāḍirāya who was ruling at Kalyāṇa, that this era was continued even after Sōmēśvara's time though only in very few cases. This inscription is dated in the 65th year of this era which corresponds to Durmati, Śaka 1064 (A.D. 1141-42). We have to infer here that Tribhuvanamalla was also a title of Perma-Jagadēkamalla II of this line. The record gives the interesting and rare instance of the institution of a cowherd as a charity attached to a temple.

Tribhuvanamalla Permāḍirāya 'ruling at Kalyāṇa.'

THE DEVAGIRI KINGS.

11. We have only one inscription in the year's collection which can be definitely said to belong to the dynasty of the Yādavas of Dēvagiri. This is No. 345 of 1920, dated in Saka 1137 Yuva and in the 6th year of Rājanārāyaṇa Pratāpachakravarti Siṁhaḷadēva (i.e., Siṅghaṇa). It is composed in verse and prose and the Sēnabōya (Karaṇam) Bācharasa is said to be the author of it. In this record appears a Chōḷa subordinate of the king, named Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Jagatāpu Daṇḍidēva-Chōḷa-Mahārāja who was the son of Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Madhurāntakadēva-Chōḷa-Mahārāja and was 'the lord of Hāmbuḷipura.' The name 'Jagatāpu Gutti-durga' given to the fort in the inscriptions of the Vijayanagara period must have taken its origin from the name of this Chōḷa subordinate of the Yādava king. The fort (durga) at Gutti must have either been built by this chief about A. D. 1215 or begun by him.

Yādava Siṅghaṇa.

Jagatāpu Gutti-durga.

12. Inscription No. 409 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1425, Dundhubi, refers itself to the reign of a king named Kācha ruling over the Dēvagiri-rājya. This is rather too late a date for the Yādava dynasty. Kācha might be a local powerful chief of the time with authority extending up to or round about Dēvagiri. From Ferishta (Brigg's Vol. III, p. 348) we learn that just about this period, i.e., A. D. 1502, a combined attack was led by the Muhammadan rulers of the Deccan under the command of the Bahminy king Muhammad Shah against the Hindu princes of the south near Raichore (Raichur) and Beejanuggar (Vijayanagara). This shows that this part of the country was then under independent Hindu princes and Kācha must have been one of them. I am inclined to identify Kācha with the hitherto unidentified chief Kāśappuḍaya whom the Āravīṭi chief Rāmaraja I put to flight before capturing Kandanavōlu (i. e., Kurnool) (see Epigraphia Indica, Vol. XI, p. 328). It is apparently this chief that is mentioned in No. 399 of 1920 under the name Immaḍi Kāchapa-Voḍeya.

Kāchabhūpa same as Kaśāppuḍaya.

THE EASTERN CHALUKYAS.

13. The earliest record of this dynasty secured this year is the copper-plate grant (No. 16 of Appendix A) belonging to the king Bāḍapa, a son of Yuddhamalla II who reigned from A.D. 927 to 934. The plates were lent to me for examination by Mr. K. V. Lakshmana Rao, M.A. They are five in number and measure $4\frac{1}{8}''$ high and $9\frac{3}{4}''$ broad and are hung together on a ring 5″ in diameter. A massive seal with a diameter of $3\frac{1}{4}''$ is fixed on to the ring. On its surface are cut in relief the figures of the Crescent at the top and an aṅkuśa in the horizontal position below it with the legend Śrī-Tribhuvanāṁkuśa in two lines below the latter. Below the legend is the figure of the Boar standing on a lotus. The figure of the Sun is cut towards the proper left of the seal near the head of the boar.

14. From other copper-plates of this dynasty we learn that there was a series of civil wars for succession to the Eastern Chālukya throne from A.D. 925 onwards when the regular succession of Bēta Vijayāditya V, the son of Amma I of the senior branch of the dynasty, was disturbed by the usurpation of Tāḍapa, the son of Yuddhamalla I. From No. I of Appendix A to the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1917, page 117, we also learn that the reign of Amma II was disturbed in the 12th year by his expedition to the north against king Kṛishṇa who must have been none else than the Rāshṭrakūṭa Kṛishṇa III. The latter evidently invaded the Trikaliṅga country which is stated in the record under review to have belonged to his dominions. The expedition must have been undertaken at the instance of Bāḍapa who claims to have sought the help of the Vallabha (i.e., Rāshṭrakūṭa) Kṛishṇarāja and driven Amma from the country. It may safely be said that the grant was issued by the pretender Bāḍapa who styled himself Samastabuvanāśraya Vijayāditya-Mahārāja, while Dānārṇava who reigned during Amma's absence in the north issued his grant in the name of Amma himself. Bāḍapa is already known to us from copper-plate No. 5 of 1908–09 with the titles Mahārājādhirāja and Paramēśvara. It is clear that during this troublous period the Chālukya country proper was divided between Dānārṇava who held influence over the Nātavāḍi-vishaya in the west while Bāḍapa of the present inscription held sway (perhaps temporarily) over the Velanāṇḍu-vishaya in the east. Tāḷa II, the younger brother of Bāḍapa, also made a gift of a village in the Velanāṇḍu-vishaya only. The present inscription bears no date; but it may, however, be assigned to the period immediately after A.D. 956, for we are told in the record issued by Dānārṇava that Amma left for the North after reigning (at first) for eleven years. In the present inscription is traced the line of chiefs given below :—

Bāḍapa.

The epithet Sarōnātha applied to Nṛipa-Kāma suggests that the family must have been associated with Kolanu the chiefs of which are met with in some Telugu inscriptions (see paragraph 62 below). A certain Nṛipa-Kāma is noticed by Dr. Kielhorn (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VII, App. No. 888) as belonging to the Chōḷa family. From the remarks on the palæography of the plates recording a grant made by him (Sewell's List of Ant. Vol. II, No. 174) we can safely identify this chief with Nṛipa-Kāma, son of Chōḷāditya of our record. The early Kolanu chiefs then, may have to be considered as a Chōḷa family settled in the North at Kolanu. This would give a very early date for Chōḷa migration into the Telugu country. The village Āruṁbāka in the Velanāṇḍu-vishaya granted by the king Bāḍapa to Gaṇḍanārāyaṇa who again gave it to his cousin Chandena must be the same as the modern village Āruṁbāka in the Repalle taluk of the Guntur district.

His subordinate Gaṇḍanārāyaṇa, son of Nṛipa-Kāma.

15. Of the later king Rājarāja I of the Eastern Chālukya dynasty have been found but two records (Nos. 663 and 671 of 1920) dated in the 37th and 41st years of his reign and in the Śaka years 980 and 983 respectively. The latter of these inscriptions refers to the Āruvēlu-Velanāṇḍu country. No. 672 of 1920 though not dated is engraved below No. 671 of 1920 in similar characters and so must belong to the same period.

Rājarāja I.

16. No. 738 of 1920 is dated in the 13th year of a Sarvalōkāśraya Vishṇuvardhana-Mahārāja and refers to the construction of a maṇḍapa called Karavāla-Bhairava-maṇḍapa by Śrī Vijayādityadēva. This record may be assigned to king Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I, during whose reign his uncle Vijayāditya was the viceroy of Vēṅgī from A.D. 1063 to 1077. Karavāla-Bhairava was a surname of Vishṇuvardhana, a member of the collateral branch of this dynasty (see Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1917 page 121, paragraph 29). It might have been also a title of Vijayāditya. Nos. 737 dated in the 15th year and Nos. 731, 746 and 748 of 1920 dated in the 17th year of a king with the same title may be assigned to this king. Of these No. 731 records a charity made by Śrī Chōḍagaṅgadēva who must be identified with Chōḍagaṅga Rājarāja Vishṇuvardhana who was ruling over Vēṅgī in the 17th year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I (vide Epigraphia Indica, Volume VII, Appendix, No. 571).

Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I.

Nos. 730, 732 and 747 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1011, 1013 and 1[0]00 respectively (and in regnal years figures for which are damaged) may also be assigned to the same king. No. 730 refers to a Vīra-Chōḍa who made a gift in Śaka 1011 (A.D. 1089). He may be identified with the king's son of that name who was the Viceroy of Vēṅgī from A.D. 1078 to 1100. Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa II of this family is represented by four inscriptions (Nos. 697, 705, 711 and 743 of 1920) ranging from Śaka 1059 (A.D. 1133) to Śaka 1064 (A.D. 1142). In Nos. 697, 705 and 711 coming from Kollūru in the Tenali taluk he is called Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa while in No. 743 which comes from Juttiga, he is called by the Chāḷukya title Sarvalōkāśraya Vishṇuvardhana Mahārāja. During the reign of the Chōḷa-Chāḷukyas when Vēṅgī was under a separate Viceroy subordinate to the Chōḷa throne, the custom in the northern portion of the territory, (i.e., Vēṅgī proper) seems to have been to designate the ruling monarch by the Chāḷukya title Vishṇuvardhana as in the case of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I and Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa II noticed above.

Kulōtuṅga-Chōḷa II.

17. A few inscriptions of the time of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa II refer to the temple called Anantīśvara and Narēndrēśvara at Kollūru in the Tenali taluk. The former may be said to owe its origin to the general Anantapāla of the Western Chāḷukya king Vikramāditya VI in whose time it is first mentioned. The modern name of the deity Anantabhōgēśvara is only a later day adaptation of 'Anantīśvara' and has no historical basis for it. The other temple of Narēndrēśvara must be one of the 108 Śiva temples said to have been built by the Eastern Chāḷukya king Vijayāditya II Narēndra-Mṛigarāja (A.D. 799 to 843). The existence of a temple of this name at West Vipparṟu in the Tanuku taluk of the Kistna district was noticed in Nos. 841 to 845 of 1917. The temples at Vipparṟu and Kollūru must have been constructed by this king.

The Anantīśvara and Narēndrēśvara temples at Kollūru.

18. Rājarāja II, the son and successor of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa II, is represented by four records, Nos. 707, 708, 704 and 703 of 1920, ranging in date from the 18th year of his reign, Śaka 108[6] to his 26th year Śaka 1095. A copper-plate record of this king dated in Śaka 1091 and in the 23rd year of his reign has already been noticed in the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1917, pages 11 and 119. No. 703 dated in the 26th year supports the conclusion drawn therein that his rule lasted for nearly 27 years. To his reign belong also Nos. 695 and 696 of 1920 dated Śaka 1092 and 1095, though they do not mention him by name. The first of these records refers to the king's ancestor Vikrama-Chōḷa whose subordinate was Kandena the father of Rāma the donor in these two inscriptions.

Rājarāja II.

19. No. 739 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1109 refers itself to a Sarvalōkāśraya Vishṇuvardhana-Mahārāja who must be identified with Vishṇuvardhana (son of Vijayāditya) of the copper-plate grant No. 10 of 1916–17 dated in Śaka [11]27. Again, the king Vishṇuvardhana of No. 745 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1177 (A.D. 1255–56) must have been a late member of this branch with a semblance of authority yet maintained and Mahādēva-chakravarti mentioned in this record may be taken as a descendant (probably grandson) of the chief Mahādēva of the Solar race figuring in the above mentioned copper-plate grant.

Later Vishṇuvardhana.

20. The inscriptions of Juttiga belonging to the 11th and 12th centuries of the Christian era invariably mention the Sāni Three-Hundred as associated with the sthānapatis in the management of the temple charities. In other instances the sānis are mentioned along with mānis in connection with temple affairs. It is interesting to note that at this early period 300 women of the place had a voice in the temple management (No. 735 of 1920). The suffix sāni was applied to the names of married women as a mark of respect (Nos. 756 and 758 of 1920). What the nature and status of these sānis as a class were, it is difficult to state. It seems hazardous to put down all of them as prostitutes which the word now indicates in its degraded sense. Evidence there is in some inscriptions (Nos. 707 and 748 of 1920) of sānis leading married lives. In these inscriptions is also mentioned the liquid measure Mummadi-Bhīma māna which must have been named after the Eastern Chāḷukya king Vimalāditya who bore the title Mummaḍi-Bhīma.

The Eastern Gangas.

21. Two sets of copper-plates, Nos. 1 and 2 of Appendix A, belonging to this dynasty, have been examined during the year. These were sent to me by the Agent and Diwan to the Rajah of Parlakimedi. The first of these consists of three plates with slightly raised rims. The plates measure $6\frac{1}{2}''$ long and $3''$ broad. They are held together by a ring which measures $3\frac{3}{4}''$ in diameter. The ring carries a fixed circular seal $1''$ in diameter. On the surface of this is cut the relief figure of a bird (probably a Swan) in full view with its wing on either side flapping out and its head raised up. The record is dated in the 184th year of the 'glorious reign' (clearly of the Gāṅgēya-vaṁśa) like many other records of this dynasty. The king, Mahārāja Dēvēndravarman, son of Guṇārṇava, is identical with the king of the same name and parentage who issued the grant dated in the 183rd year (Epigraphia Indica, Volume III, No. 21). The names of the officers and engravers in these two records are also identical. A third grant of this king dated in the 195th year of the Gāṅgēya era has already been published in Epigraphia Indica, Volume XIII, No. 19.

Dēvēndravarman, son of Guṇārṇava.

22. No. 2 of Appendix A consists of a set of three copper-plates strung together on a ring, which bears a circular seal. The plates measure $6''$ long and $6''$ broad. The ring has a diameter of $3\frac{1}{2}''$. On the surface of the seal which has a diameter of $1\frac{1}{6}''$ is cut in relief a Bull seated on a floral design with a Crescent opening upwards, over it. The inscription is dated in the 204th year—presumably of the Gāṅgēya era—and belongs to Mahārāja Anantavarman, son of Mahārājādhirāja Dēvēndravarman. Since the inscription belongs to just the generation next to that of Dēvēndravarman of No. 1 of Appendix A we can safely conclude that Anantavarman was the son of Dēvēndravarman of the above-noticed grants. To this king may have to be assigned the copper-plate grant No. 8 of 1918–19, which was also issued by Anantavarman, son of Dēvēndravarman. The palæography of the latter grant strongly supports this conclusion. From the grant under notice we learn that the king had a younger brother named Jayavarman. At his request the king made the grant of a village called Tālatthere in the Krōshṭuka-vartanī district, to the Vēda and Vēdāṅga scholar Vishṇu-Sōmāchāryapāda of the Parāśara-gōtra, who was a resident of the agrahāra village Śraṅgāṭika in the Kāmarūpa-vishaya. The donee appears to have been a highly revered personage from the fact that he is mentioned with the honorific plural and with the suffix pāda specially applied to founders of faiths and philosophic schools like Śaṅkarāchārya. The district Krōshṭuka must be the same as the Korosoṭaka-Pāñchāli mentioned in the grant of the Gaṅga king Indravarman of the 146th year (Indian Antiquary, Volume XIII, page 123). With the Korosoṭaka-Pāñchāli may be compared the Pushyagiri-Pāñchāli district mentioned in No. 1 of Appendix A. The major division Pāñchāli seems to have included these two districts known as Korosoṭaka-Pāñchāli and Pushyagiri-Pāñchāli.

Anantavarman, son of Dēvēndravarman.

The Sailodbhavas.

23. A king of the Śailōdbhava family named Dharmarāja is represented in No. 3 of Appendix A. This record is engraved on a set of three copper-plates hung together on a ring about $3\frac{1}{4}''$ in diameter. The plates measure $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches long and $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches broad. The circular seal set on to the ring has a diameter of $1\frac{1}{3}$ inches. On its surface are cut in relief the figures of the Crescent at the top and a seated Bull in the centre and a line of letters at the bottom which is completely damaged. The record written in the Nāgarī script and Sanskrit language refers itself to the king Dharmarājadēva of the Śailōdbhava family, who was the lord of the Koṅgōda-maṇḍala. He was the son of Madhyamarājadēva whose record is published in Epigraphia Indica, Volume XI, No. 28. Dharmarāja issues the grant from the royal residence (vāsaka) at Śrīpura. He bears the surname Mānabhīta. He is said to have defeated at [Phā]sikā a certain Mādhava who thereafter sought the help of (a king called) Śrīvara but was killed by Dharmarāja at the foot of the Vindhya hills.

Battle at [Phā]sikā.

The record is dated in Saṁvat [8]-100 (i.e. 800) in symbols. Though the grant of Madhyamarāja, the father of this king, has been tentatively referred to the Harsha era (Epigraphia Indica, Volume XI, page 282), the date of our inscription may have to be referred to the Vikrama era. It would then correspond to A.D. 744 .

The Cholas.

24. The inscriptions belonging to the Chōḷas are rather large in number in this year's collection and come principally from the ancient Śiva temple at Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil, sixteen miles from Chidambaram and about eight miles from Gaṅgaikoṇḍaśōḷapuram, the Chōḷa capital of the eleventh century A.D. Conjeeveram in the Chingleput and Āḷaṅgudi in the Tanjore districts have also contributed a fair share towards the collection. The name proper of the first of these places is Maṇṇār (i.e., Maṇṇaṇār-Kṛishṇa)-kōyil, but to distinguish it from its namesake in the Tanjore district, it came to be popularly known as Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil owing to the wild tract of country all around it, and was so differentiated from the latter which was designated Rājamaṇṇārkōyil. The inscriptional name of Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil is, however, Vīranārāyaṇa-chaturvēdimaṅgalam which is reputed in Vaishṇava literature as the birth-place of the famous Āḻvārs Nādamuṇi and his grandson Yamuṇaitturaivar alias Āḷavaṇdār, and is intimately connected with their life-history. It is probable that the village was founded by or called so in honour of Parāntaka I who had the surname Vīranārāyaṇa and who is mentioned in the 60th verse of the Cape Comorin inscription reviewed by Mr. K. V. Subrahmanya Ayyar in the Travancore Archæological Report for 1095 M.E. Part II, paragraph 10, to have built several Brahman villages called after this surname. But this supposition alone will in no way help us in fixing the time of Nādamuṇigaḷ, about whose date there is much difference of opinion. Nādamuṇi is held in high esteem by the Śrīvaishṇavas for having reproduced the forgotten and lost Nālāyiram hymns of the Āḻvārs. It is narrated in the Vaishṇava work Guruparamparāprabhāvam that Nādamuṇigaḷ while casually listening to the recitation of a particular verse from among the hymns of Nammāḻvār by certain Śrīvaishṇava pilgrims who visited the Vishnu temple at Vīranārāyaṇapuram, became very anxious to secure the entire work of Nāmmāḻvār and that hearing from them that the work was lost and that they remembered only that solitary verse, he proceeded to Āḻvār-Tirunagarī, the birth place of Nammāḻvār, expecting to find some clue regarding the lost hymns. Here he met Parāṅkuśadāsa, the disciple of Madhurakavi, who informed him that he remembered a verse and that by repeating it for a number of times he (Nādamuṇi) would be blessed by the Āḻvārs with the power to repeat all the hymns. He accordingly kept on repeating the same verse many times over daily for a long period in the presence of the image of Nammāḻvār. The deity is then said to have blessed Nādamuṇigaḷ with the power of reciting before the god at Vīranārāyaṇapuram all the hymns supposed to have been lost.

Parāntaka I.

25. Inscriptions Nos. 180 and 186 of Appendix C record the occurrence of cattle (buffalo)-raids in the Gudiyattam taluk, North Arcot district, in the 28th and 30th years of king Parāntaka I. We are led to surmise from the former that a prince called Rājakēsarivarman Paṭṭakēsari, perhaps the crown-prince, led one of the attacks and that when a certain Sāmi-Nāyakaṉ who took part in the skirmishes fell, the village assembly of Varikkiyam alias Chandrādityamaṅgalam, undertook to provide for the maintenance of his wife and children, by a suitable gift of land. Another epigraph No. 168 of Appendix C, engraved on a hero-stone, is dated in Śaka 832 (= A.D. 910), and records the death of an individual named Māvali-Bāṇarāyar of Adaiy[ā]ru-nāḍu in a cattle-raid, and the omission to mention the name of the reigning king as the overlord, suggests that the North Arcot district, in which this inscription has been discovered, was not overrun by Parāntaka I within his third or fourth year i.e., A.D. 910. Probably this part of the country belonged to the Perumbāṇappāḍi of the Bāṇas on the north of the Penṇār and Parāntaka I had not yet 'uprooted by force the two lords of the Bāṇas', and appointed Pṛithivīpati II as his viceroy over the Bāṇa country. No. 21 of 1921 which is engraved on the north wall of the central shrine of the Yathōktakāri temple at Conjeeveram purports to be a record of the 37th year of Maduraikoṇḍa Parakēsarivarman (i.e., Parāntaka I) but the characters in which the epigraph is incised do not belong to the time of the king and are more than two centuries later. Perhaps it is a copy of an older inscription re-engraved on the temple wall when the temple underwent renovation in later times. It is significant that the god of the temple bears the name of Tiruvehkā-anai-kidandaruḷiṇa-paramasvāmin of Kachchippēḍu in the inscriptions and has been sung so in the Nālāyira-prabandham. This reminds us of the mythical story related of the place that at the request of Brahmā, whose sacrifice was obstructed by his refractory consort, Sarasvatī, who had taken the form of a stream in high floods, God Vishṇu put his presumptuous daughter-in-law to shame and brought her to senses by lying naked as a dam across the river's course. The origin of the present name of the god, Yathōktakāri in Sanskrit or Śoṇṇavaṇṇam-śeyda-perumāḷ in Tamil, is ascribed in the Vaishṇava scripture to Tirumaḻiśai-āḻvār, one of the Vaishṇava saints, who is alleged to have got the deity to do his bidding on certain occasions; but this story is not inscriptionally supported, as the name occurs only in one or two records of the temple belonging to the 15th and 16th centuries A.D.

Sundara-Chōla Parāntaka II.

26. It has been noticed in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. III, Part I, page 22, that Rājarāja I built a temple at Mēlpāḍi, as paḷḷippaḍai (i.e., a resting place) for 'the king who fell asleep (died) at Āṟṟūr' and this king is identified with Ariñjaya, the third son of Parāntaka I from the fact that the god bore the name of Ariñjigai-Īśvara. This surmise is now confirmed by No. 587 of Appendix B dated in the 12th year of Rājakēsarivarman, wherein Ariñjaya is specifically called Āṟṟūr-tuñjiṇadēva, i.e., 'the king who died at Āṟṟūr'. Mention is also made of his queen Āditṭaṉ Kōdai Pirāṭṭiyār, who was probably a Chēra princess, as having made certain gifts to the temple of Anantēśvara at Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil. We have already known of another queen of his, called Pūdi Āditṭaṉ Piḍāri, a Kodumbāḷūr princess (vide., page 257 of South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. III, Part III). The Rājakēsarivarman, in whose 12th year this surviving queen of Ariñjaya made gifts to this Śiva temple must therefore be Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II, who succeeded his father Ariñjaya to the Chōḷa throne with that title. From the fact that he refers to his father's queen only by her name instead of by the endearing term 'mother', it seems possible that Sundara-Chōḷa was not the son of Āditṭaṉ Kōdai Pirāṭṭiyār. It has to be remembered that Āditya I, father of Parāntaka I, was also called 'Toṇḍaimāṇāṟṟūr-tuñjiṇadēva,' i.e., 'the king who died at Toṇḍaimāṇāṟṟūr', a place which has been identified with Toṇḍamaṇāḍ in the Kalahasti taluk of the North Arcot district, whose inscriptional name is Toṇḍaimāṇ-pērāṟṟūr (Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1907, paragraph 29). But it is not certain whether the Āṟṟūr of Ariñjaya's last moments is identical with the place of his grandfather's death, or whether it is the Śiṟṟiyāṟṟūr (the Little Āṟṟūr) or Śittāttūr of the Walajapet taluk in the same district. In another inscription (No. 572 of Appendix B), dated in the 12th year of Rājakēsarivarman, who must have been in all probability Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II, the donor of certain lands for providing a thousand potfuls of water for the sacred bath of the god at Kāṭṭumaṇṇār-kōyil is introduced as 'அறிஞ்சியபிராந்தகதெவர் தங்கள் ஆசியாருடைய பிராட்டியார் வீமன் குந்தவையார். Ariñjiya Pirāntakadēvar must be Parāntaka, the son of Ariñjaya, i.e., Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II, a Rājakēsari, who had a reign of nearly 17 years. As, in another inscription also, (No. 589 of Appendix B), the same Uḍaiyapirāṭṭiyār Vīmaṉ Kundavaiyār figures as the donor, she must have been connected with the reigning king in some relationship which is specified by the term ā[chi]yār, which may be the wrongly spelt variant of āychchiyār or āchchiyār, meaning 'mother'. If this is really so, then Uḍaiyapirāṭṭiyār Vīmaṉ Kundavaiyār must be an Eastern Chāḷukyan princess, probably a daughter of Chāḷukya-Bhīma II (A.D. 934 to 945) and connected with the Chōḷas by marriage much earlier than the Chōḷa Kundavai's espousal of the Eastern Chāḷukya king Vimalāditya.

27. There are, again, about twenty inscriptions belonging to kings referred to only by the general title of Rājakēsarivarman and dated in years ranging from the 3rd to the 16th. These could not be records of Rājakēsarivarman Āditya I since the temple of Tiruvanantēśvara at Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil seems to have come into existence only in the reign Parāntaka I; and the Rājakēsari of these records could therefore refer only to one of the two Rājakēsaris who reigned between Parakēsarivarman Parāntaka I, and Rājakēsarivarman Rājarāja I, viz., Gaṇḍarāditya and Sundara-Chōḷa. Although some epigraphs with regnal years, running up to 17 have, on some plausible grounds, been attributed to Gaṇḍarāditya, the son of Parāntaka I, there are also reasons for doubting whether this king had such a long reign at all. In this connexion, it may be pointed out that the Kanyākumāri inscription noticed by Mr. K. V. Subrahmanya Ayyar in the Travancore Archæological Report for 1095 M.E. omits the name of Gaṇḍarāditya in the line of Chōḷa succession; and this, in a way, confirms the view taken by him in his Historical Sketches of Ancient Deccan, that Gaṇḍarāditya's occupation of the Chōḷa throne, if it occurred at all, was only of very short duration and that he vacated it soon, by his death, in favour of Ariñjaya, his brother. But there is nothing to preclude the supposition that Gaṇḍarāditya might have taken the reins of Government into his hands during the latter part of his father's reign as a co-regent. The Rājakēsari of the above records may therefore be identified with Rājakēsarivarman Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II, who has been assigned a reign of nearly 17 years.

Unidentified Parakēsari—Uttama-Chōḷa.

28. Among the records belonging to the reigns of kings merely mentioned by the title Parakēsarivarman, there are altogether about a dozen dated in the 2nd and 3rd years, which may be assigned to Ariñjaya or Uttama-Chōḷa. In No. 540 of Appendix B, the daughter of Maḷavarāiyar is called Parāntakaṉ-mādēvaḍigaḷ alias Śembiyaṉ-Mādēviyār and the queen of Gaṇḍarādityadēvar, who is denoted by the epithet mēṟkkeḻundaruḷiṉa-dēvar, an expression the significance of which is not quite apparent, though it literally means 'the king who was pleased to go to the west'. We already know of this pious queen from other inscriptions, and her statue has, as already noticed in the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1909, paragraph 4, been found set up in the Śiva temple at Kōnērirājapuram in the Tanjore district. As all her endowments appear to have been made in the name of her husband Gaṇḍarāditya after his death, it is possible that the epithet but euphemistically refers to the demise of the prince. Several regiments of Kaikkōḷas employed in military service are mentioned in some of the abovesaid inscriptions of Parakēsari (Nos. 574 and 557 of Appendix B), such as Parāntaka-teriñja and Siṁhaḷāntaka-teriñja kaikkōḷar and they were evidently named after one or the other of the popular surnames of Parāntaka I. Rājarāja I had under him many such regiments variously named (South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. II, Introduction, page 9). The regiment called Kōdaṇḍarāma-teriñjavar may have been named either after Āditya I or Rājāditya who are both known to have had the surname Kōdaṇḍarāma. Two other bodies called "Tāyātoṅga-teriñja and Mūttavāḷ-peṟṟa-kaikkōḷār" are peculiar and the origin of their names is somewhat obscure.

29. There are also other inscriptions belonging to Parakēsarivarman, which bear higher regnal years from 10 to 16; and since we know only of Parakēsarivarman Uttama-Chōḷa, the son of Gaṇḍarāditya who had a reign of 16 years from A.D. 969–985, these records are perhaps attributable to him. Of these, No. 592 of Appendix B, mentions a local chief called Pūvēṭṭaraiyaragaṇḍaṉ Sundara-Chōḷa; and if he could be supposed to have taken his name from Rājakēsari Sundara-Chōḷa the Parakēsari of this record would necessarily be the king who followed Sundara-Chōḷa, i.e., Uttama-Chōḷa. No. 617 of the same Appendix, a record of the 14th year of Parakēsari, may also be attributed to Uttama-Chōḷa, as mention is made therein of a class called Karikāla-Chōḷa-teriñja-kaikkōḷar, which may have got the epithet from Āditya II Karikāla. Only one inscription (No. 578 of Appendix B) is dated in the 10th year of king Uttama-Chōḷa mentioned by name.

Āditya II Karikāla.

30. Of Parakēsarivarman Āditya II Karikāla who claims to have cut off the head of Vīra-Pāṇḍya, this year's collection contains about 15 inscriptions, but none of these furnishes any information additional to what we know of him already. The highest regnal year recorded of this Chōḷa sovereign in his epigraphs is only 4.

Rājarāja I (A.D. 985–1013).

31. No. 577 of Appendix B, which is dated in the 2nd year of Rājakēsarivarman and which will have to be attributed to Rājarāja I, contains some interesting information, but is unfortunately damaged at certain important places and the correct interpretation of the inscription as a whole becomes somewhat difficult. As far as it can be made out at present, one is led to construe that Āditya II Karikāla, who sported with the head of Vīra-Pāṇḍya, was himself the victim of some treachery and that he was done to death by some local chiefs and that Rājarāja confiscated certain landed properties belonging to certain members of their proscribed families, and that these lands were bought by a certain Vyāḷagajamalla-Pallavarayaṉ, son of Nakkanāvaṉayāṉ alias Pallava-Muttaraiyan of Veṇṇaiyūr and utilized for feeding a number of Brahmans in the Śiva temple at Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil. Another inscription (No. 103 of Appendix C) of the 14th year of Rājarāja, who is referred to by the title Rājakēsarivarman alias Mummuḍi-Chōḷa, has been copied at Mēlpāḍi in the Chittoor district and consists of more than 250 long lines running round almost the whole of the central shrine of the Sōmanāthēśvara temple, while some more lines are covered up underneath the flooring of the prākāra round the shrine. The inscription does not, however, contain any interesting information, but furnishes an exceedingly long description of the boundaries of the lands given by the king for the maintenance of the temple of Chōḷēndrasiṁhēśvara—its name in former times as built by him at Mēlpāḍi alias Rājāśrayapuram—in language similar to that of the Tamil portion of the Tiruvāḷaṅgāḍu plates of Rājēndra-Chōḷa I (South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. III, page 383 ff.), and with similar restrictions and privileges in regard to the channel-irrigation of the lands in question and the crops that were to be raised thereon. No. 79 of the same Appendix mentions that Paramaṉ Maḷapāḍiyār alias Mummuḍichchōḷaṉ (a feudatory clearly of Mummuḍi-Chōḷa Rājarāja I), the chief of Kārukuḍi in Taṉjāvūrkūṟṟam, overran Śōḷa-Kēraḷa-Śīṭpuli-nāḍu and Pākkai-nāḍu and captured among other booty (?) 900 sheep which he gifted away to the temple of Aiñjandi-Durgaiyār of Kachchippēḍu (i.e., Conjeeveram) for maintaining ten perpetual lamps in the name of his overlord, in response to the order communicated to him through the adhikārin Villavaṉ-Mūvēndavēḷāṉ of Ārvaḷa-kūṟṟam. Pākkai-nāḍu is, we know, the northern part of the Nellore district and Śīṭpuli-nāḍu must have also been situated in the same district, being named, in all probability after the chief Śīṭpuli, who was defeated by an officer of Parāntaka I (Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1913, page 94, paragraph 8). From No. 101 of the same Appendix dated in the 14th year of Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ, we learn that the older name of Mēlpāḍi which was Vīranārāyaṇapuram was changed into Vīra-Rājāśrayapuram and that a temple was erected by him with the name of Chōḷēndrasiṁhēśvaram; and as we know that it was only during Rājarāja's time that the village was renamed and the temple construeted (vide No. 103 of Appendix C), the Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ of this inscription has to be identified with Rājarāja I.

His surname Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ.

Rājēndra-Chōḷa I.

32. His son Rājēndra-Chōḷa I (A.D. 1013–1045) is represented by a good number of records. Of these, No. 613 of Appendix B, copied at Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil, mentions the gift of an umbrella consisting of 19,908 pearls and a gold ornamental handle (?) weighing 27½ kaḻañju by certain kaikkōḷars of Vīranārāyaṇa-chaturvēdimaṅgalam, a brahmadēya in Rājēndrasiṁha-vaḷanāḍu for the god Tiruvanantēśvara of the temple. From the magnitude of the gifts made by private individuals, we can estimate the popularity which this temple should have enjoyed in the Chōḷa times, which is also evidenced by the mention of the god in No. 624 of Appendix B as the mūladeyvam or the chief deity of the Chōḷa kings.

Nos. 15 and 102 of Appendix C, copied at Mēlpāḍi and Conjeeveram respectively and dated in the 10th year of king Parakēsarivarman Rājēndra-Chōḷadēva, contain references to a particular day in his third year when he held court seated on a bedstead in the tirumañjana-śālai or bathing hall inside the temple of Paḷayāṟu, enquired into the accounts and other affairs of several temples in the outlying districts, settled many points connected with their income, fixed the scale of expenditure and entrusted the proper management of the temple affairs, as then revised, to certain local committees composed of respectable men. Three inscriptions (Nos. 624 and 627 of Appendix B and No. 73 of Appendix C) mention the names of three queens of the king, viz., Tribhuvanamahādēvī, Vāṇavaṇmahādēvī and Mukkōkkiḷānaḍigaḷ. Īrāyiravaṇ Pallavaṇ alias Mummuḍi-Chōḷa Bhōjaṇ of Araiśūr in Pāmbuṇi-kūṟṟam, a subdivision of Nittaviṉōda-vaḷanāḍu, who occurs as the donor in No. 96 of Appendix C, a record of Rājarāja I, is already known to us from other inscriptions and the Leyden grant, as an officer under this great Chōḷa sovereign. He figures again in No. 100 of the same Appendix as an officer belonging to the perundaṇam of Rājēndra-Chōḷa I under the title of Uttama-Chōḷa-Pallavaraiyar, a title which he must have assumed subsequently.

33. Of the records belonging to Rājakēsarivarman alias Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I two begin with the introduction திருமன்னிவிளங்கு, etc., and are dated in his 2nd and 3rd years when he was known by the name of Rājēndra-Chōḷadēva II after his maternal grandfather (South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. III, p. 127); and another, No. 130 of Appendix C starts with புகழ்சூழ்ந்தபுணரி, etc., while all the rest are begun with the king's usual preamble புகழ்மாதுவிளங்க, etc. In No. 520 of Appendix B, the king's reign is carried up to the 50th year which is the highest regnal year hitherto known for him, and the astronomical details furnished in that epigraph correspond approximately to A.D. 1120, April 26.

Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I (A.D. 1070–1120).

Āḷaṅguḍi alias Jananātha-chaturvēdimaṅgalam is mentioned as a brahmadēya of Muḍichchō-nāḍu, a subdivision of Śuttamali-vaḷanāḍu in the inscriptions of Rājarāja I and Rājēndra-Chōḷa I, and, in No. 497 of Appendix B belonging to Kulōttuṅga I, as a subdivision of Kalyāṇapuramkoṇḍa-vaḷanāḍu, probably so named in the time of Rājēndra, who bore the surname Kalyāṇapuramkoṇḍa-Śōḷa. Nos. 39 and 45 of Appendix C supply the information that his queens Āḍittaṇ Kampa-mādēviyār alias Tribhuvaṇamuḍaiyār and Āḍittaṇ Āṇḍakuṭṭiyār alias Aṇukkiyār Śōḷakulavalliyār, who are mentioned as the aḍiyār (devotees) of the god Tiruvūragattāḷvār at Kāñchīpuram had a leaning towards Vaishṇavism and that they made donations to that temple for festivals and worship to be conducted therein. The first of these epigraphs states, in addition, that while the king was seated on a raised dais in the northern part of the temple at Takkōlam alias Kulōttuṅgaśōḷapuram after worshipping (?) (tēvāram-śeydu) the deity (?) tēvāram, his two queens referred to above petitioned to him to the effect that certain lands which had been granted by them to the temple of Tiruvūragam and left uncultivated owing to the paucity of farmers and had consequently been gifted away to certain weavers, should be reclaimed from them and re-annexed to the temple lands. The king thereupon enquired into the matter and had the proceedings engraved on the walls of the central shrine of the temple, which seems to have been rebuilt in his time. Some provision is also made for the supply of flour and milk offerings to the image of Tiruvanantāḷvār (i.e., Āḍiśēsha) who is reputed to have worshipped the chief deity from very ancient times, even before the Kali-yuga. Even at the present day rice-flour and milk are the chief items of Nāga-worship. The long inscription winds up with a gift of land that had been made by Vīrarājēndradēva for certain festivals and offerings to the god and it appears to have been dovetailed into this newly engraved inscription when the older structure, which perhaps contained its original, was pulled down. Two other places wherefrom the king is reported to have issued his orders are the Chēdirājaṇ (probably a hall) in the temple at Perumbaṟṟappuliyūr (i.e., Chidambaram), when certain exemptions of taxes were made in the interest of the Kachchiśvara temple at Kāñchīpuram and the bedstead (paḷḷippīdam) in the maṇḍapa called Rājādhirāja in the northern portion of the palace (tirumāḷigai) called Jayaṅgoṇḍaśōḷaṇ within the temple at Kāñchīpuram, when at the request of his consort, a tax-free gift of a village was made to the temple of Tiruvūragattāḷvār.

34. Half a dozen inscriptions of Vikrama-Chōḷa discovered this year are mostly gifts of gold for perpetual lamps in certain temples and record nothing specially noteworthy except that in No. 622 of Appendix B, Vēḷāṇ Tiruchirrambalam-Uḍaiyār alias Vaḍanāṭṭaraiyaṇ, the headman of Maṇalūr in Miṛaik-kūṛṛam, a subdivision of Ulaguyyavandaśōḷa-vaḷanāḍu is called the king's son (nam magaṇār).

Vikrama-Chōḷa A.D. 1118–1135.

35. The succeeding kings are also well represented, but their records invariably relate to the usual gifts of perpetual lamps to temples and are not therefore historically important. But No. 521 of Appendix B—a record of the 6th year of Rājarāja II—begins with the introduction 'புமருவிய திருமாதும், etc.,' and states that Paśupati-nambiyār alias Pallavarayar represented to the king that the assembly of Jananātha-chaturvēdimaṅgalam had given away certain jewels belonging to the temple of Paśupatīśvaram-Uḍaiyār of the village in exchange for certain communal lands on two former occasions, viz., at the time of Vīrarājēndra's invasion of Vēṅgai-maṇḍalam to enable them to pay the war-tax of one kaḷañju of gold which was imposed on every vēli of land and in the third year of Uḍaiyār Vikrama-Chōḷa when a severe drought was anticipated owing to the failure of water in the rivers Jananāthappērāṛu and Parāntakappērāṛu and funds had to be found for starting certain artificial methods of irrigation and that the officer now obtained royal permission to make these lands tax-free in the interest of the temple to which they were given away. An epigraph dated in the reign of Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ (No. 4 of Appendix C) has to be assigned to Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III, on the ground that it records a gift of a village after re-naming it Tribhuvanavīranallūr, after one of his surnames Tribhuvanavīra, and that Nīlagaṅgaraiyaṇ, who is known from other inscriptions to have been a contemporary of Rājarāja III, figures as a signatory in the record. No. 188 of Appendix C is dated in the 38th year of the reign of Tribhuvanachakravartin Rājarājadēva who, in the absence of any introduction and epithets, has to be identified with Rājarāja III. We have till now records of this king only up to the 36th year of his reign, but the present record carries his reign two years further, that is up to A.D. 1254.

Rājarāja II.

Rājarāja III.

The Pandyas.

36. Records of Vikrama-Pāṇḍya, Vīra-Pāṇḍya, Kulaśēkhara and Sundara-Pāṇḍya were secured during the year under review. No. 123 of 1921 is a record of Tribhuvanachakravartin Vikrama-Pāṇḍyadēva dated in his 3rd year, and for want of astronomical details this king cannot exactly be assigned to any particular period. The inscription is signed by Chittiramēḷi-Bhaṭṭaṉ and two others who are also the signatories in Nos. 124 and 125 of 1921, which belong to Kōnōmaimēlkoṇḍāṉ Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīra-Pāṇḍyadēva, dated in his 4th year and Jaṭāvarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva, dated in his 17th year, respectively. This Vikrama-Pāṇḍya is perhaps identical with Māravarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vikrama-Pāṇḍyadēva who came to the throne in A.D. 1282–83. On palæographical grounds also this inscription has to be referred to the 13th century A.D.

Tribhuvanachakravartin Vikrama-Pāṇḍya-dēva.

37. Astronomical details are given in a record (No. 623 of 1920) of Jaṭāvarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Vīra-Pāṇḍyadēva and from these we may identify the king with Vīra-Pāṇḍya, the conqueror of Īḻam, Koṅgu and Śōḷa-maṇḍalam who came to the throne in A.D. 1253–54. Another inscription (No. 568 of 1920) of Vīra-Pāṇḍya that comes from Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil in the South Arcot district is dated in the 14th year of the king and registers a gift of certain dry lands converted into gardens, the income from which had to be utilized for providing oil for lamps and for repairs to the temple of Tiruvanantīśvaramuḍaiya-Nāyaṇār.

Jaṭavarman Vīra-Pāṇḍya.

38. Seven inscriptions of Kulaśēkhara come from Ālaṅguḍi (Tanjore), Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil (South Arcot) and Śaḷukki (North Arcot). No. 478 of 1920 from Śaḷukki, dated in the 14th year of Perumāḷ Kulaśēkharadēva, states that Vijayapālaṉ Dēvapperumāḷ of Puduppākkam made an ornamental pedestal and had the god installed on it. The inscription gives us no clue to the identification of this king. The remaining inscriptions of Kulaśēkhara belong to Māṟavarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Kulaśēkhara and these, in the majority of cases, register gifts to temples for worship, offerings and repairs. The most interesting record of this king (No. 509 of 1920) comes from Ālaṅgudi dated in the 4th year of his reign. The astronomical details given work out correctly for A.D. 1317, September 24. The inscription gives us a glimpse into the method of tenancy-cultivation prevalent in mediæval times. Generally, custom and local conditions determine the rights and duties of the landlord and the cultivator. Vāram and kuḍimai rights generally approximate to some standard, but they are different in different places. In this inscription it is stated that in cases of kār, single crop and a second crop, 1/20 should go to the landlord as his rightful share; that the dues, palli, pāḍi-kāval, perum-pāḍikāval, śūḍu (sheaves of corn) given to servants, aṟaivaḍai and āḷkūli should be charged on the village in common and that the remainder should be distributed in the ratio of 1 : 4 between the landlord and the tenant. The straw and the green gram (payaṟu) that is generally sown just before or after the harvest have to be equally divided between them. The kuḍimai right is next stated and here in the case of kār and for the single crop, ½ paṇam and ¼ paṇam for the second crop, for every plot of land (māttāl?) should be given; as regards the threshing expenses, for a single crop, 1 tūṇi and 1 paḍakku for a plot (?); and for the 2nd crop, ½ of the above to be borne in common; and in the case of dry crops such as turmeric, castor-seeds, cotton and gingelly, seed-grain to be supplied by the landlord and the yield to be divided equally (śevvāram). Supplying of coolies, storing of grain in the landlord's granary and the work of repairing ridges in fields seem to have devolved exclusively on the landlord.

39. No. 116 of 1921, which comes from Mēlśēshamaṅgalam in the Cheyyar taluk, is a record of Tribhuvanachakravartin Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva, commencing with the introduction 'samasta-jagad-ādhāra'. This king is Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I, who conquered the Kākatīya king Gaṇapati, covered the Śrīraṅgam temple with gold and was anointed at Nellore. This inscription records the gift of the village of Śrīpurushamaṅgalam to the Brāhmaṇas of Sundara-Pāṇḍya-chaturvēdimaṅgalam founded by the king to the south of the Aruḷāḷa-Perumāḷ temple at Conjeeveram.

Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I.

40. No. 535 of 1920 belonging to Jaṭāvarman Tribhuvanachakravartin Sundara-Pāṇḍya gives us an instance of how the trustees acted when the dues on temple lands fell into arrears. In this inscription it is stated that the trustees of Tiruvanantēśvara-svāmin and Nāyaṇār-Maṇṇaṇār temples and of the temples situated between the rivers Koḷḷiḍam and Veḷḷāṟu came to an agreement and decided to remit the dues on lands given for worship and offerings to the temple at Chidambaram, care being taken to enhance the rent proportionately on the remaining lands in the village so as to recoup the amount remitted. The temple authorities, besides looking after the temple affairs, attended to the feeding of ascetics and pilgrims. An inscription (No. 529 of 1920) from Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil records a sale of a house-site by the trustees of Śrī Mathurāpuri-Emberumāṉ temple to Tiruchchiṟṟambalam-Uḍaiyāṉ of Poravaṉūr for constructing and maintaining a maṭha for feeding ascetics and Śrīvaishṇavas.

Unidentified Sundara-Pāṇḍyas.

Remission of dues on temple lands and distribution of the same on the village holdings.

An interesting record (No. 571 of 1920) of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya comes from Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil and the astronomical details of date given in it work out correctly for Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya who came to the throne in 1303 A.D. The inscription is unfortunately broken in several places and built in at the end. A dispute seems to have arisen in the time of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya regarding the right of worship in the temple of Kulōttuṅgachōḷēśvaram-Uḍaiyār at Śuttavalli-nallūr. One Kanakasabhāpati-Bhaṭṭar claimed the right as against Tiruvanantīśvara-Bhaṭṭar and Vṛishabhavāhana-Bhaṭṭar who had been jointly enjoying the privilege in a number of other temples as well. On being asked to prove their right, they produced evidence showing that they had been enjoying this right from the time of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva-II who covered (the temple) with gold, Rājarāja-dēva II, Perumāḷ Tribhuvanavīradēva, Rājarājadēva III, Avaṇi-Āḷappiṟanda Kōpperuñjiṅgadēva, Perumāḷ Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva, Perumāḷ Kulaśēkharadēva, Vīra-Pāṇḍyadēva and even up to the 11th year of Perumāḷ Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva of the present record as a matter of course. Perumāḷ Kanakasabhāpati-Bhaṭṭar was likewise asked to prove his claim. The stone being damaged in several places we are not in a position to know the final settlement of the question. The enumeration of the kings appears almost to be in chronological order. It is interesting in this connexion to note that, in the assembly that met to decide this question sat, among others, pilgrims from many districts and people from different parts of the kingdom. It is not known whether these outsiders had any voice in the deliberations of the assembly. However, the fact remains that the assembly was not a packed body, and that public opinion was invited as a healthy factor in the deliberations of the assembly.

Public opinion in Judicial enquiry.

The Perumāḷ temple in Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil seems to have been not in a flourishing condition in the time of a certain Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva. Some inscriptions of this king state that the temple had no funds even for conducting proper worship. No. 532 of 1920 records that, on the representation of the people, the produce of the areca-growing lands between the rivers Kolliḍam and Veḷḷāṟu was assigned by the king to meet the deficit in the amount required for conducting the worship of the god and repairs to the temple.

41. The title Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ was applied both to Chōḷa and Pāṇḍya kings. Most of the inscriptions Nos. 531, 533 and 536 of 1920 with this title are easily assigned with the help of the facts recorded in them. No. 533 of 1920 registers a gift for the maintenance of the service called 'Kōḍaṇḍarāmaṉ-śandi'—in the name of the king. We know that Kōḍaṇḍarāma is identical with Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I (Historical Sketches of Ancient Deccan, page 167) who issued coins bearing the legend Kōḍaṇḍarāma in Tamil on the reverse side under a state umbrella flanked by chāmaras. No. 531 of 1920 may be attributed to Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I, since it makes provision for offerings to the image of Poṉmēynda-Perumāḷ which was set up by the king in his name. From this inscription we come to know that 'Mūla' was the king's star of nativity. This inscription further records a tax-free gift of 20 vēli of land by the king for providing offerings and conducting festival every month on this day.

Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ.

Another inscription from Kāṭṭumaṇṇārkōyil (No. 536 of 1920) registers a gift for the maintenance of the service called Rājākkaṇṇāyaṉ-śandi after the king, and we find a record of Tribhuvanachakravartin Vikrama-Pāṇḍyadēva (No. 270 of 1913) mentioning a service called Rājākkaḷṉāyaṉ-śandi and a festival called Rājakkalnāyaṉ-periyatirunāḷ named after the king. We may therefore identify this king with Tribhuvanachakravartin Vikrama-Pāṇḍyadēva, a Māṟavarman as pointed out on page 154 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1918.

42. A record of Tribhuvanachakravartin Kōnēriṇmaikoṇḍāṉ Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva (No. 41 of 1921) registers a remission of taxes on the previous gifts of land made to the temple for a perpetual lamp. From the astronomical details of date given for this king we have to identify him with Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I.

Māṟavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I.

The Vijayanagara Kings.

43. Records of Vijayanagara kings are comparatively few in this year's collection and these, beyond confirming a few known facts, give us no additional information. The early king Harihara I of this dynasty for whom records are not as numerous as for the later kings is represented by the copper-plate grant No. 9 of Appendix A, dated in Śaka 1270, Sarvajit. Herein he is said to be ruling from the capital town Vidyānagara. The main interest of this inscription lies in the earliest known epigraphical reference to the deity Ahōbalēśvara.

Harihara I.

44. Kampaṇa-Uḍaiyar, son of Bokkaṇa-Uḍaiyar (Bukka I), is the earliest Vijayanagara king represented in the stone inscriptions of this year. Kampaṇa was sometimes distinguished from his uncle Kampa I by the epithet Chikka or Kumāra. In three inscriptions (Nos. 27, 108 and 110 of 1921), his father's name is given, while in the other two inscriptions (1 and 52 of 1921) his name alone appears. From the cyclic year Kīlaka given in these two inscriptions, we are able to identify him with the son of Bukka I. The two records which were copied in Conjeeveram mention the appointment of Alagiya Tiruchirrambalamuḍaiyār, son of Bhuvanēkabāhudēvar, as the supervisor of the Puṇyakōṭīśvara temple. Besides this temple, the management of many other temples in Conjeeveram was entrusted to him (No. 52 of 1921). It is not possible to ascertain who this individual was and his relationship, if any, to the ruling king.

Kampaṇa-Uḍaiyar, son of Bokkaṇa-Uḍaiyar.

45. No. 27 of 1921, dated in Śaka 1289 (= A.D. 1367) registers the grant made by the king from his seat in the Jāniki-maṇḍapa where the royal ladies, his servants and his subjects were present. In this maṇḍapa the king conferred the title of Karuṇākaradāsaṇ upon Śrī Parakāla-Nambi together with certain honours, privileges and a dwelling house. In No. 110 of 1921 it is stated that the images of the Nāyaṇmārs in the Tirukkārīśvara temple had been desecrated during the Sāyaṇa disturbance and that these images in the temple had to be re-consecrated. We are already aware of local disturbances in the time of Sāyaṇa-Uḍaiyar from No. 240 of 1912. Apparently this was one of such depredations during which the Nāyaṇmārs were desecrated.

The title Karuṇākaradāsaṇ conferred upon Parakāla-Nambi.

Local disturbances in Sāyaṇa-Uḍaiyar's time.

46. The three sons of Harihara II, viz., Viruppaṇṇa-Uḍaiyar II or Virūpāksha I, Bukka II and Dēvarāya I are also represented in this year's collection. After Harihara's death there seem to have been disputes about the succession. Harihara died in A.D. 1404 (Archæological Survey Report for 1907–08, page 244); and the date of the coronation of Dēvarāya I is known to be A.D. 1406 (ibid., page 245). Between the years A.D. 1404 and 1406 every one of his three sons probably tried to succeed Harihara, for in these years we find records of all the sons as ruling from Vijayanagar.

Sons of Harihara II—disputed succession.

47. Vīra Viruppaṇṇa-Uḍaiyar is explicitly mentioned as the son of Harihara II in No. 114 of 1921, dated in the cyclic year Vyaya, which corresponds to Śaka 1328. The inscription is damaged in the date portion and the Śaka year given therein cannot be clearly made out. The preserved portion can be read either 11 or 21; in either case the cyclic year Vyaya is wrong. In this record Virūpāksha is only a viceroy (Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara), but he is known to have been actually ruling at Vijayanagar in Śaka 1327 (=A.D. 1405) (ibid., page 244). Evidently in the same year or the next, Bukka II should have been ruling from Vijayanagara. No. 106 of 1921 is a record from Mēlpāḍi of Vīra Vruppaṇa-Uḍaiyar who bears only the title Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara. From the Śaka year 1321 with the corresponding cyclic year Vilambi given therein, the king may be identified with Virūpāksha I, son of Harihara II. This inscription records that three-fourths of the taxes kamugu-kaḍamai, [kolu]ndu-kaḍamai and paṭṭapāḷ-kaḍamai should be given to the temple of Cholēndrasimham-uḍaiya-Nāyaṇār at Mēlpāḍi in accordance with the writ of Rāyasam Viṭṭaṇa and the lease-deed (aḍai-ōlai) of the trustees (of the temple). Rāyasam Viṭṭaṇa is perhaps to be identified with the viceroy who was ruling Āraga, Gutti, Bārakūru, Maṅgalūru and the whole of the Karṇāṭaka-rājya up to the borders of the western ocean in the time of Dēvarāya I (ibid. page 245). That Virūpākṣha I conquered the Chōḷa and the Pāṇḍya countries for his father gains confirmation by the mention of Sundara-Pāṇḍya-chaturvēdimaṅgalam in No. 116 of 1921. It may be noted that Sundara-Pāṇḍya-chaturvēdimaṅgalam was founded by Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I who ruled from 1251–1264 A.D. by clubbing together certain villages (No. 116 of 1921).

Viruppaṇa-Uḍaiyar II or Virūpāksha I.

From Malayampaṭṭu in the Gudiyattam taluk comes No. 185 of 1921 dated in the cyclic year Bhava which falls in the reign of Virūpāksha I. The inscription is engraved on a boulder at the foot of the hill and the potter of the village has utilized this boulder as a wall to his hut. The ends of the lines are covered by the roof which could not be removed without considerable loss to the potter. The inscription refers to the settlement of a quarrel between the Valaṅgai and the Iḍaṅgai castes in which there seems to have been some loss of life on both sides and the vanquished party promised to supply the sacred thread to the other party as a part of the settlement.

The Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai classes.

Very little is known about the origin of the Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai classes. When and under what circumstances these classes came into existence and what the different functions of these sects were, are matters of which our knowledge is yet meagre. A mythical origin of the Iḍaṅgai class is given in No. 489 of 1912 which is noticed on page 109 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1913. Mr. Crole on pages 33 and 34 of the Chingleput District Manual gives the traditionary origin of these classes. He says that "Karikāla-Chōḷa divided the people into these two parties, assigning 98 tribes to each and appropriating to their use distinctive flags and musical instruments for use at festivals and funerals." "This distinction," Mr. Crole continues, "established at first for political reasons or to prevent disturbances, has for the last several centuries been the constant source of contention and has even given rise to serious tumults". According to the same writer the following classes, viz., Vēḷāḷaṉ, Kōmaṭi, Śāliyaṉ, Kaṇṇaḍiyaṉ, Toddy-drawer and Pariah belong to the Valaṅgai class and Paḷḷi, Śeṭṭi, Kammāḷaṉ and Chuckler belong to the Iḍaṅgai class. A detailed account of the various sub-sects which composed the Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai classes is given in the Madras Manual of Administration, Volume III, page 1036. Mr. M. Srinivasa Ayyangar in his essay on "Tamil Studies" gives some of the suggestions made regarding the probable origin of the hostility between these two factions (page 100 ff.). Though we know little about these classes themselves, their antiquity is proved beyond doubt by literature and inscriptions. The earliest reference in inscriptions is in a record of Rājēndra-Chōḷadēva I (A.D. 1011–1041) where the Valaṅgai class is mentioned (No. 341 of 1907). In the Toṇḍai-maṇḍala-śatakam there is a reference to the curbing down of the insolence of the Kaṇṇāḷar (Kaṇṇāḷar-kurumbaḍakki) from which we may infer that the Veḷḷāḷas (agriculturists) and Kammāḷas (artisans) were not on friendly terms. The agriculturists must evidently have asserted that the artisans were their servants as the latter had to supply to them the necessary tools of husbandry. That the Kammāḷas were at some social disadvantage may be inferred from Nos. 562 of 1893, 151 of 1905 and the Paśupatīśvara inscription published on pages 46 and 47 of the South-Indian Inscriptions, Volume III. From these records it is ascertained that the Kammāḷas enjoyed certain privileges such as wearing shoes, sounding drums and conches, building tiled houses and houses with two entrances, etc., only with the special sanction of the ruling king. It may be noted also that Valaṅgai classes were admitted to high positions in the military service during the time of Rājarāja I. On page 10 of his Introduction to South-Indian Inscriptions, Volume II, Mr. V. Venkayya has mentioned a large number of Valaṅgai regiments. The Tamil poet Kamban, though he makes no reference to the agricultural classes, praises the artisans in seven stanzas in his "Ēḻupadu" who were naturally proud that nothing could be done without their help. Thus the Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai differences seem broadly to have been those between the Kammāḷas and the Veḷḷāḷas. Generally it is said that the terms Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai came to be applied to these two parties when they laid their differences before the king who decided the case, with one party on his right side and the other on his left. There are reasons to infer that this event happened at Kāñchī though we do not exactly know the name of the king to whom the two parties appealed. In this city the differences between these two classes are more marked than in any other place as evidenced by the existence of Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai temples, Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai maṇḍapas and Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai dancing girls.

Their sub-sects.

Royal settlement of their disputes.

In inscriptions we have references only to these classes, but no mention is generally made of the sub-sects that belonged to them. Each of these seems to have included 98 sects (No. 59 of 1914). The 98 sub-sects of the Iḍaṅgai class, to strengthen their bond of unity, entered into a compact in the 40th year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III tracing their lost origin (Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1913, page 109). That the degraded classes were also included in the divisions is proved by an inscription from Maruṅgūr in the Travancore State (No. 99-A on page 1705 of Mr. Rangachaṛya's Inscriptions of the Madras Presidency) where the degraded Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai classes were prohibited from making gifts to a temple. The ruling chiefs seem to have taken no cognizance of the differences between these two classes. In No. 564 of 1902 the king Vijaya Bhūpatirāya-Uḍaiyar, son of Dēvarāya I, ordered that both the Valaṅgai and Iḍaṅgai classes of Tiruvaṇṇāmalai should enjoy the same privileges.

Vīra Vijaya-Bhūpati, son of Dēvarāya I.

48. The other two sons of Harihaṛa II, viz., Bukka II and Dēvarāya I, are represented by No. 193 of 1921 and No. 486 of 1920 respectively. From Raghunāthasamudram comes a record (No. 126 of 1921) of Vijaya Bhūpati dated in the cyclic year Vilambi corresponding to A.D. 1418–19. A vīrakal (Epigraphia Carnatica, Volume VII, Sk. 93) of 1422 A.D. gives him the imperial birudas, but in No. 126 of 1921 he is called only a Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara. In my paper on the Daṇḍapalle plates of Vijaya Bhūpati (Epigraphia Indica, Volume XIV, page 70), I have shown that it is difficult to reconcile the statement of Nuniz that Vijaya-Bhūpati actually reigned for six years. In his article on the Śrīśailam plates of Virūpāksha (Epigraphia Indica, Volume XV, page 14) Mr. Gopinatha Rao has shown that Vijaya-Bhūpati reigned for only six months instead of six years as stated by Nuniz.

Mallikārjuna.

49. No. 524 of 1920 from Paṭṭiśam in the Tanjore district is dated in Śaka 1372 in the reign of Mallikārjuna, son of Dēvarāya II. It records a gift of land, made by Tirumalayadēva-Mahārāja who bears Sāḷuva birudas, for offerings and worship to the god Gōpinātha-Perumāḷ in Tiruchchattimuṛṛam alias Muḍikoṇḍaśōḷapuram. Mallikārjuna's brother Virūpāksa II is mentioned in an inscription (No. 120 of 1921) dated in Śaka 1393, Khara. As suggested in the Archæological Survey Report for 1907–08, page 252, two Virūpākshas are sometimes accommodated in the period between A.D. 1465 and 1485. In this record it is clearly stated that Virūpāksha is the son of Dēvarāya. A difficulty arises in the identification because Mallikārjuna also is sometimes called Immaḍi Praudha-Dēvarāya (see Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1911, page 81, paragraph 52). In this inscription it is recorded that a city named Narasiṁha-Tiruppadi was founded in the name of Uttamagiri-Perumāḷ Tiruveṅgaḍamuḍaiyāṉ in Murugamaṅgalapaṛṛu. Iśvara-Nāyaka, the agent of Sāḷuva Narasiṁharāya, gave as tax-free (sarvamānya), certain lands for three years to the Brahmans who colonized the newly-founded place, remitting such taxes as vāśal-paṇam, kuḷippaṇam, vivāhappaṇam, paṭṭaḍai, nūlāyam, etc. He is also mentioned in a record (No. 121 of 1921) of Rājaśēkharārāya, son of Dēvarāya-Mahārāya, dated in Śaka 1392. The supreme power wielded by this Sāḷuva chief in the name of the weak emperors was so great that the Karnāṭa kingdom was known to foreign travellers then as the kingdom of 'Narasymga'.

His brother Virūpāksha II.

Kṛishṇarāya.

50. The most powerful and distinguished of the Vijayanagara monarchs, Kṛishṇarāya, is represented by many inscriptions. No. 466 of 1920 records the remission of a tax (śōḍi) of 20 poṉ and the transfer, as tax-free (sarvamānya), of the two temples of Uḍaiyār Manukulamādīśvaramuḍaiya-Nāyiṉār and Perumāḷ Śōḷakērala-Viṉṉagar-Emberumāṉār of Śaḷukki, from the administrative control of Vandavāśi-śīrmai to that of Vīrabhadrarāyar-śīrmai, in order that the offerings, worship and festivals in these two temples might be conducted regularly. We know that in capturing Koṇḍavīḍu in 1516 A.D. Kṛishṇarāya took prisoner Vīrabhadra, son of the Gajapati king Pratāpa-Rudra, and that he subsequently granted an estate to him. Perhaps the Vīrabhadrarāyar-śīrmai referred to here is identical with the territory given to the captive ruler (page 119, Mysore and Coorg from Inscriptions). That Kṛishṇarāya was a great patron of Sanskrit and Telugu literature and that he had at his court eight celebrated poets, distinguished as the ashṭadiggajas, are known facts to us (ibid., page 119). Allāsāni Peddanna, the foremost of the ashṭadiggajas, was held in such high esteem by Kṛishṇadēvarāya that besides granting him villages, he entrusted him with the responsible post of a governor of a district (page 143, Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1916). In a record from Mēlpāḍi (No. 105 of 1921) this Poet Laureate is mentioned along with his father Allāsāni Chokkarasa. Herein Peddanna has the biruda Āndhrakavipitāmaha of Nandāpurī. King Kṛishṇarāya seems to have made a gift of the village of [Tanai]ppūṇḍi to Peddanna who set apart three-fourths of it for the god Chōḷēṇḍraśiṅgam-uḍaiya-Nāyaṇār. Now this portion of the village was sold away and with the proceeds Peddanna presented, among other things, a jewelled crown, a gold handle (?) for a chauri and a silver-plate for (the goddess) Kuntaḷasundarī. The copper-plate grant of Kṛishṇarāya (No. 4 of Appendix A) dated in Śaka 1435, Āṅgirasa, records the grant of a village made by him for the benefit of a number of Brāhmaṇas on the occasion of a gift called dhānyamēru (literally a Mēru (mountain) like heap of grain).

Gift of Dhānyamēru.

51. Kṛishṇarāya's half-brother Achyuta is known to have made in A.D. 1539 an endowment for the benefit of Brāhmaṇas, called the Ānandanidhi (paragraph 24, Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1904). From No. 387 of 1920 we understand that there was a diamond-treasury also (Vajra-bhaṇḍāra, at Karūru, in the Vuruvakoṇḍa-sīmē and that Muttiṇa Lakimiśetti was the officer in charge of this treasury in Śaka 1453. Karūru is at present known as Vajra-Karūr and is included in the Anantapur district; and the epithet has to be traced to the diamonds found in the vicinity (page 167 of the Gazetteer of the Anantapur district). An inscription from Puḷal (No. 487 of 1920) records a gift of two villages to the god Tirumūlasthānam-Uḍaiyār for conducting festivals in the temple for the merit of Śellappa Sāḷuva-Daṇṇāyaka. In the Achyuta-rāyābhyudayam Śellappa is mentioned as the renegade Chōḷa feudatory for whose capture the king invaded the Tiruvaḍi-rājya (the Travancore country). Vīra Narasiṅgarāya-Nāyaka is also known as Sāḷuva-Daṇṇāyaka (No. 256 of 1910). Sāḷuva-Daṇṇāyaka was Achyuta's minister at first, but subsequently became his worst enemy by joining Tumbichchi-Nāyaka of Madura in defying the authority of Achyuta. Achyutarāya bears the Sāḷuva biruda 'Gaṇḍakaṭṭāri Sāḷuva' in a record from Sēṇūr (No. 194 of 1921), dated in Śaka 1460, Viḷambi. This inscription mentions that Pōttu-Nāyaka, an agent of Kāḷama-Nāyakanayyaṇ gave for the merit of the latter the fish-rent of the tank at Śēṇalūr to be spent on the tank itself. Śēṇalūr was governed by Kempadēva-Aṇṇagaḷ, one of the subordinates of Achyuta, but it was now leased out to Vēlūr Kāḷama-Nāyakkaṇayyaṇ. This Pōttu-Nāyaka is probably the same person who recommended the grant of Atti or Kṛishṇāpuram as a sarvamānya village to the Śiva and Vishṇu temples of the place—(paragraph 58 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1913).

Achyuta.

52. Nearly all the inscriptions of Sadāśiva, ranging in date from Śaka 1466 to 1485, come from the Gutti taluk in the Anantapur district. These inscriptions, as usual, mention many subordinates of the sovereign. In No. 354 of 1920 we find Rāmarāja remitting certain taxes on the barbers of the village Gajarāmapalle in Gutti-durgam jointly with the king, but he is a viceroy in No. 357 of 1920, where he grants remission to the barbers of Miḍutūru. His two famous brothers who assisted him in the government of the country are also mentioned in this year's collection. Tirumalayadēva-Mahārāja is mentioned in Nos. 368 and 394 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1477 and 1480 wherein he figures as a viceroy. He was also known as Gutti Tirumalayadēva-Mahārāja probably from the fact that Gutti was in his military charge. Kumāra Koṇḍarāja who is mentioned in the records is perhaps identical with Koṇḍrājayyadēva who was in charge of the Vinukoṇḍa-sīma under orders of Tirumala I as pointed out on page 101 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1914. The other brother of Rāmarāja, viz., Veṅkaṭa, is mentioned in No. 636 of 1920, dated in Śaka 148[9]. In this record KumāraVeṅkaṭayyadēva-Mahārāja (Veṅkaṭa I) renews the gift of the village of Tōṇṭapalli in the Koṇḍavīḍu-sīma to god Vālēśvara of Chāvali originally made by the Gajapati king Purushōttama. Besides Koṇḍamarasayya (No. 88 of 1921), Koṇḍarāja Kōnēṭirāja (No. 408 of 1920) and Kōnēṭi Timmarāja, son of Rāmarāja Koṇḍarāja (No. 384 of 1920), the subordinates mentioned are:—

Sadāśiva and his subordinates.

(1) Rāmarāja Kōnēṭi Chiṇṇa-Tirumaladēva-Mahārāja (No. 424 of 1920).
(2) Rāmarāja Appayyadēva-Mahā-arasu (No. 449 of 1920),

(3) Peda Siṅgarājayyadēva-Mahārāja, grandson of Kandanavōli Rāmarāja and son of Mūrtirāja (No. 461 of 1920), and

(4) Viṭṭhalarājayyadēva-Mahārāja, son of Mūrtirāja and grandson of Kandanavōli Rāmarāja (No. 463 of 1920).

53. From the Yathōktakāriṅ temple at Conjeeveram come nearly all the inscriptions of the year belonging to Śrīraṅga II. In these inscriptions the god is known as 'Tiruveḷkā-Nāyiṇār,' but in No. 25 of 1921 the god is called Anantanārāyaṇa-Paramasvāmi, "who laid himself across the river Veḷkā" (paragraph 26 above).

Śrīraṅga II.

In all the inscriptions of the king Ēṭṭūr Kumāra Tātāchāriyar figures prominently, and from this fact it has to be inferred that the Tātāchārya family of Ēṭṭūr already held an influential position in the time of Śrīraṅga II. We know that Kōṭikanyādāna Kumāra Tātāchāriyar, an illustrious member of this family, officiated at the Paṭṭābhishēka ceremony of Veṅkaṭa I and that he lived in royal splendour at Conjeeveram, supervising the Vaishṇava temples in and around this city. Every member of this family styled himself as Tātāchārya of Ēṭṭūr, and hence arises the confusion in clearly identifying persons bearing this name. In No. 30 of 1921, Kumāra Tātāchāriyār is said to belong to the family of Vēdamārgapratishṭhāpanāchārya Ubhayavēdāntāchārya Periya Tirumalai-Nambi and to have been the son of Ayyāvayyaṅgār of the Śaṭhamarshaṇa-gōtra, Āpastamba-sūtra and Yajuś-śākhā. In the same inscription his disciple Tiruvuḍandai Periya Tirumalai-Nambi Rāmānujīyar is also mentioned. His agents Aḷagiyaśiṅgar and Tiruppaṇi Śiṅgarayaṅgār appear in Nos. 31 and 32 of 1921 and No. 10 of 1921 respectively.

In No. 31 of 1921 Ayyāvayyaṅgār is called Ēṭṭūr Tirumalai Kumbakōṇam Tātāchāriyār Ayyāvayyaṅgār and from this we are perhaps to infer that his influence extended even beyond his own native place. This inscription records a gift of 1,500 paṇam, by sale of land, by the temple trustees headed by Aḷagiyaśiṅgar, agent of Kumāra Tātāchāriyar to Tirumāliruñjōlai Ayyaṅgār, son of Tātāchārya Ayyāvayyaṅgār. With this money he had to provide cakes and offerings to the god and to conduct certain festivals on certain prescribed days. It is interesting in this connection to note that in ancient times the several affairs of the temple were assigned to different persons or bodies and each in his or its turn attended to the work for which he or it was nominated. The man responsible for particular festivals took a pride in doing his service to the god to the best of his abilities. There was no room for fraud, for everything that a person had to do was clearly detailed and scrupulously conducted. Incidentally, we learn from the above inscription that in every month, on the first day, on the full-moon day, on the two Ēkādaśi days and on the days of Hastā, Mṛigaśīrshā and Anurādhā the god had to be given a special bath and then taken in procession. The offerings to the god on these days are also mentioned with a detailed list of the several articles used in the preparation of the several offerings.

54. Veṅkaṭa I, the most famous and powerful king of the Karṇāṭa dynasty, is represented by seven inscriptions this year. The date of his coronation, at which ceremony Kumāra Tātāchārya officiated, is 1565–66 A.D. He continued to rule till his death in 1614 A.D. (Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1913, paragraph 62). Three records of this king (No. 322 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1515, No. 382 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1525, and No. 166 of 1921 without any date) refer to him as ruling from Penukoṇḍa and we are perhaps to understand that the capital was not yet changed to Chandragiri. The inscription from Mahādēvamalai (No. 167 of 1921) registers that the Bōḍi Koṇḍama-Nāyaka granted the village of Kāvamguppe in the Kāri-sīme to the god Mahādēva of the Mahādēva hill. The present Kāṅguppam village at the foot of the hill is evidently the same as Kāvamguppe. In No. 163 of 1921 dated in Śaka 1510 from Kāvaṇūr in the Gudiyattam taluk, Veṅkaṭa is called Śrīraṅgadēva-Mahārāya Veṅkaṭappadēva-Mahārāya. Nallammaṅgār, the wife of Appayaṅgār, son of Periya Perumāḷ of Pattaṅgi, is mentioned in an inscription (No. 10 of 1921) from the Ashṭabhujam temple in Conjeeveram. Achchama, the wife of Pattaṅgi Appayyaṅgār, is mentioned in No. 248 of 1913. The latter might have been another wife of the same individual. The few inscriptions of Rāma IV secured this year are not of much importance. Nos. 374 and 376 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1548, Vibhava (wrong) and Śaka 1548 (Krōdhana) respectively state that Rāmadēvarāya was ruling in Penukoṇḍa.

Veṅkaṭa I.

Veṅkaṭa II.

From Mēlśēshamaṅgalam in the Cheyyar taluk comes a record of Veṅkaṭa II (No. 112 of 1921) dated in Śaka 1538 Naḷa and reference is made in it to the Pāḷayagār Vīrappa-Nāyaka Pāppu-Nāyaka in whose time a piece of land was given for the daily morning service of the god Maṇikūṭam-uḍaiya-Nāyaṇār. A record (No. 30 of 1905) of Raṅgayadēva-Mahārāja (A.D. 1578 to 1586) mentions Vīrappa-Nāyaka, as the son of Pāppu-Nāyaka of Vēlūr. It is likely that the Pāppu-Nāyaka of No. 112 of 1921 was the grandson of the Pāppu-Nāyaka of No. 30 of 1905. Another inscription from the same village, dated in Śaka 1558, registers the order of Dāmal [Kā]ma-Nāyaka stating that the money realised by the sale of fish from the tank of Śrīpurushamaṅgalam should be spent exclusively in digging the tank.

Bīraṅgi-vari—tax on fire-arms.

55. A few inscriptions without the sovereign's name remain to be noticed. From Nellorepet, a suburb of Gudiyattam comes No. 121 of 1921, dated in the cyclic year Dhātu. This inscription mentions Akkappa-Nāyaka, a daḷavāy of Ānegondi (i.e., Vijayanagara) Vīra Veṅkaṭapatirāya as remitting a cannon-tax (bīraṅgi-vari) payable by a private person. This is perhaps an instance to show that the Arms Act was not unknown then and that weapons of warfare were not indiscriminately allowed to be used by all persons. An inscription from Conjeeveram (No. 35 of 1921) dated in Śaka 1378, Dhātu, corresponding to A.D. 1456–57 records the duties that had to be performed by Śrīkaraṇāchchīyar in return for the 400 kuḷi of land granted to him. He had to sing hymns daily to god Karaṇīśvaram-uḍaiya-Nāyaṇār, to provide a garland and to sing hymns, besides providing areca-nuts, when god Ēkāmranātha halted at the entrance of the Karaṇīśvara temple under a special canopy. The reception (maṇḍapa-paḍi) of the god Ēkāmranātha on important festival days at the entrance of the Karaṇīśvara temple is continued even to this day.

Another inscription from Conjeeveram (No. 29 of 1921) gives us an idea of the constitution of the sannidhi (facing the temple) street of the Soṇṇavaṇṇamśeyda-Perumāḷ temple. The surroundings of a temple are generally much coveted by the orthodox people and they are, as a rule, occupied by those who have some connexion with the temple. It is recorded in this inscription that the sannidhi-street of Soṇṇavaṇṇamśeyda-Perumāḷ was plotted out into 33 houses and that this block was named Sundarāchāryapuram. The village Vāraṇavāśi was assigned to the temple, from the income of which mid-day offerings were to be provided to the god. These offerings had to be divided among the 33 houses. Another interesting feature of the inscription is that it gives the names of the owners of these 33 houses. The 1st, 3rd and 4th houses were occupied by Tātāchārya Ayyaṇ, the 14th house by Muppirāli Nāraṇa Dīkshitar Gōvindayyar and the 15th house by Pāṇḍipākkam Kumāṇḍūr Anantayyar.

Miscellaneous.

The earliest epigraph of the year.

56. Among the inscriptions of the year that do not clearly mention the names of sovereigns may first be mentioned No. 459 of 1920, which is considerably mutilated and damaged. It may be said to belong to a very early king of the Western Chāḷukya dynasty from the appearance of the syllable "dityava" probably part of some fuller name ending in dityavallabha. Palæographically this is the earliest lithic record discovered this year. The characters may be assigned to a century or two immediately following the latest of the Śātavāhana and the earliest Pallava records. Mention is made in this of Bammi-Menkuṭṭhi who was probably a chief.

Bammi-Menkuṭṭhi.

Capture of the Chiriyāḷa fort—Prince Kundaman died fighting.

57. Another early record which may be referred to a king of the same dynasty because of the occurrence of the epithet Pṛithvīvallabha is No. 443 of 1920. It refers to the capture of the fort called Chiriyāḷa in which a relation of the king named Kundaman died fighting. It is probable that the modern Sirvel in the adjoining district of Kurnool, situated at a distance of about 60 miles east-north-east of Gooty, is the Chiriyāla of the inscription which might have been also called Śiriyāla. This record may from its palæography be assigned to about the 8th century A. D.

58. Nos. 416 and 454 of 1920, of which the former is dated in Śaka 984 (A.D. 1062) refer to two Chōla chiefs of the Kāśyapa-gōtra with the titles Kāvērīnātha, i.e., lord of the Kāvērī and lord of Oṟeyūr. Champakarasa mentioned in the former of these records has, in addition to these family attributes, the personal titles Gaḍiyaṅkamalla, ... dabeḍaṅga Pēsaṇamurāri. The other inscription refers to Koṇḍakunde Saṅkarasadēva of this family who had the personal titles Chōḷa-Nārāyaṇa and Maindanasiṅgha. Both these chiefs had the Siṅghalāñchchhana, i.e., emblem of the lion. If the term lāñchchhana is used as in certain instances, to denote the banner, this statement would be at variance with the association of the vyāghra (tiger)-banner with the Chōḷas, to reconcile which, 'lāñchana' will have to be taken perhaps as the seal. Even then, it would be out of the way for a chief to have on his seal an emblem different from that on the flag. Lañchchhana then must mean the coat of arms.

Siṅghalāñchchhana of the Chōḷas.

59. No. 673 of 1920 refers to a grant made to the god Brahmā at Valivēru in the Ōṁgēṟumārga by Maṇḍalika-Gaṇḍa, son of Dēsaṭṭi Mahāsāmanta Naṁbaya. These two chiefs may be presumed to belong to the line of Parichchēdi chiefs who held dominion in the Ōṁgēṟumārga (Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1917, page 128, paragraph 42). The early date of the record confirms the supposition made therein that the family was in power at least since Śaka 900. The Naṁbaya of our inscription must be distinguished from the Durjaya chief Naṁbaya of Śaka 1057 (vide.. Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VI, page 224).

60. Three inscriptions (Nos. 93, 145 and 159 of 1921) of the Rāshṭrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa III with his distinguishing epithets "who took Kachchi (Conjeeveram) and Tañjai (Tanjore)" have been copied from the Gudiyattam taluk. No. 93 which is dated in his 22nd year merely records the gift of 96 sheep for a lamp to the temple of Śrī-Kailāsa at Veṇkuḷattūr alias Paramēśvara-chaturvēdimaṅgalam. No. 145 is a hero-stone dated in the 24th year commemorating the death of a hero in a cattle-raid. No. 159 of 1921 dated in the 28th year is an important epigraph and records a settlement by the village assembly of Kāvaṇūr that when the lands, which are gifts to gods, physicians, for free feeding or worship (?) and which are grants to ājīvikas, are mortgaged or sold, the mortgagee and the purchaser must be of the same caste as that of the mortgagor and the seller.

61. Six records (Nos. 16, 17, 18, 19, 94 and 156 of 1921) coming from Conjeeveram and Gudiyattam taluks relate to Pārthivēndravarman who has the epithet "who took the head of Vīra-Pāṇḍya" in some of his epigraphs. The latest date known for him is the 13th year of reign. Almost all the inscriptions belonging to this king secured until now have been published by Rao Bahadur H. Krishna Sastri in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. III, Part III. None of them records any important matter. With the scanty materials now available, it is not possible to determine with certainty his place in the history of the South. However with the help of the materials now available, a tentative identification of Pārthivēndravarman may be attempted. The locality in which the records of this king are found is very limited. They come chiefly from North Arcot and Chingleput districts otherwise known as Toṇḍaimaṇḍalam and the district of South Arcot. They are not found anywhere in the adjoining districts of Nellore, Salem, Tanjore and Trichinopoly. It is curious to note that all the places from which the records of Pārthivēndravarman have been copied are situated within the ancient territorial division called 'Vāṇagappāḍi', i.e., the Bāṇa country, which is said to be to the north of the Peṇṇai (river Peṇṇār) and to the west of the Telugu road called Vaḍuga-vaḻi.

Pārthivēndravarman.

In none of these inscriptions do we find, given to this king, the title of Rājakēsari or Parakēsari generally borne by the Chōḷas or Māṟavarman or Jaṭāvarman adopted by the Pāṇḍyas. In No. 269 of 1910 the king is called Parakēsari Vēndrādivarman and he has been identified with Pārthivēndravarman. Rao Bahadur H. Krishna Sastri is of opinion that the title signifies that he was a vassal of the Chōḷa king and adopted it by right of his connexion with the Chōḷa line and that he may be connected with Āditya II Karikāla (South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. III, No. 180.) As regards fixing the period when Pārthivēndravarman should have flourished, we know that No. 225 of 1920, dated in his 6th year, mentions Parāntakachaturvēdimaṅgalam, which signifies that he lived in the time of or subsequent to Parāntaka I or Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II. Again in the majority of his records Pārthivēndra has the epithet "who took the head of Vīra-Pāṇḍya". The same is attributed to Āditya II Karikāla, son of Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II, in one of his inscriptions (South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. III, No. 199). In the Tiruvālaṅgāḍu plates (ibid., page 388 ff.) it is stated that Āditya killed the Pāṇḍya king and the Leyden grant specifies the Pāṇḍya king as Vīra-Pāṇḍya.

In paragraph 17 of his Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1900, Mr. Venkayya says that Pārthivēndra must have flourished as an independent prince in the interval between the death of Parāntaka I which should have occurred about A.D. 951–52 and the accession of Rājarāja I in A.D. 985 and that he should have taken part in the war of Āditya II against Vīra-Pāṇḍya who, in his Vaṭṭeḻuttu inscriptions of the Pāṇḍya country, claims in turn to have conquered the Chōḷa king; but it is not known who this Chōḷa was. The epithet "who took the head of Vīra-Pāṇḍya" appears in the records dated in the 2nd and 3rd years of Pārthivēndravarman and Āditya II Karikāla, respectively, and they are therefore contempofaries as such. We know that Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II drove a certain Pāṇḍya into the forest and as the killing of Vīra-Pāṇḍya by Āditya II Karikāla (son of Sundara-Chōḷa) is mentioned in the records of his 3rd year after his coronation, it seems probable that the Chōḷa whose head was taken by Vīra-Pāṇḍya in retaliation of the defeat sustained by him must be Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II.

On page 107 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1910, Mr. H. Krishna Sastri has shown on the strength of two records (No. 676 of 1904 and No. 246 of 1909, dated in Śaka 892 (= 970 A.D.) that Pārthivēndravarman had the surname Kaḷikēsari and that he lived about 970 A.D. According to the calculations made of the astronomical details contained in his inscriptions, Uttama-Chōḷa must have ascended the throne in A.D. 969–70 and continued to rule till 985 A.D. The latest date found so far for Āditya II, Karikāla, is his 5th regnal year. Working upwards Āditya-Karikāla should have ascended the throne in A.D. 965, which must be the year in which Sundara-Chōḷa Parāntaka II, father of Āditya II, should have met with his death from the hands of Vīra-Pāṇḍya. Probably Pārthivēndra's initial date was also about A.D. 965.

Having fixed his place and time, we have next to find out a non-Chōḷa chief of the period about the last days of Parāntaka I (A.D. 953) and Uttama-Chōḷa (A.D. 970–985) who will answer to the name Pārthivēndravarman. From the Udayēndiram plates of Pṛithivīpati II Hastimalla, published by Professor Hultzsch (South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. II, No. 76) we gather that Parāntaka I "uprooted by force the two lords of the Bāṇa kings and conferred the title of "Lord of the Bāṇas" on the Gaṅga king Pṛithivīpati II who bore also the title "the lord of Parivipurī." From the endorsement in Tamil of these plates we understand that, in the 15th year of Parāntaka I, a gift of land was made at the request of Pṛithivīpati II who had not yet begun to have the inscription engraved with his own name as the sovereign. As shown above, his inscriptions must have been independently dated from about A. D., 965 the latest regnal year being 13. In the absence of any other king about this period called Pārthivēndravarman, we may tentatively identify him with Pṛithivīpati II, the two names being synonymous. No. 5 of 1897 dated in the 24th year of Āditya I (almost his last year) records the gift of a silver vessel by Piriḍipati, son of Māramarayar, and Professor Hultzsch was doubtful as to his identity with Pṛithivīpati I or Pṛithivīpati II. But as the latter is synchronized with Parāntaka I, Piridipati, son of Māramarayar, is identical with Prithivīpati II, son of Mārasiṁha. Again in editing the Sholingar inscription, dated in the 9th year of Parāntaka I, the learned Professor thinks that Prithivīpati II should have been alive in the 26th year (about 966 A.D.) of the Rāshṭrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa III (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. IV, page 223).

Kolanu chiefs.

62. We have already noticed the appearance in the second half of the 10th century A.D. of a chief named Nṛipa-Kāma who is described as 'Sarōnātha,' i.e., lord of the Saras (i.e., lake) and therefore connected with Kolanu identified with the Kollēru lake (above page 86, paragraph 14). Nos. 728, 723 and 741 of 1920, dated in the Śaka years 1047, 1140 and 1182, respectively, mention the later chiefs of this place who had the explicit Telugu epithet Kolani or Kolani-Maṇḍalika applied to them. The first of these records refers to Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Kolanu Okkettuganda. Okkettuganda is more a title than a personal name. It appears in this case to have been taken as a personal name like the dynastic title Satyāśraya, which was used almost as the name of Pulakēśin II in his inscriptions (Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Part II, page 351). The expression Okkettaganda presents some affinity to 'Ōkakētu', which was a banner of the Rāshṭrakūṭas (ibid., page 387). The chiefs mentioned in the other two records are the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Kolani-Maṇḍalika Kēśavadēvarāja and Yeṛagayadēvarāja. These were contemporaneous with the Kākatīya king Ganapati and his daughter and successor Rudrāmbā respectively, and the absence of the mention of either of them in these inscriptions shows that the Kolanu chiefs did not come under the Kākatīya supremacy.

Velanāṇḍu chiefs.

63. Of the Velanāṇḍu chiefs we have about 15 records ranging in dates from Śaka 1054 to 1093. No. 631 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1054, refers to the time of Goṅka II of this family. He is herein described as a 'subordinate of Rājēndra-Chōḍa' who must be the same as Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I who was also known as Rājēndra-Chōḷa (see paragraph 36 above) and who was the Chōḷa-Chāḷukya suzerain of the grandfather of Goṅka II (see Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1917, page 119). The epithet must have been assumed by the chiefs of this family from the time of Goṅka I, who was the contemporary of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I. The same epithet is given in No. 655 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1093. Goṅka II is called the 'lord of 480 villages,' which must have formed a territorial division different from the Shaṭsahasra-country of which the Velanāṇḍu chiefs are often said to have been the lords. The same is said of him also in No. 645 of 1920. Again No. 655 of 1920, dated so late as Śaka 1093, mentions this territorial division. The division of 480 villages was probably the original dominion of this family before its chiefs developed into lords of the Six-Thousand-country. No. 645 of 1920 mentions Velanāṇṭi Chōḍa as the grandfather of Goṅka II instead of Goṅka I given by other records (see Epigraphia Indica, Vol. IV, page 35, and Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1917, page 119). Chōḍa, the father of Goṅka II, is referred to in this inscription under the full name Rājēndra-Chōḍa Gāṅgēyarāya. No. 669 of 1920 mentions Kulōttuṅga-Chōḍa Gāṅgēyarāya. The former also records the construction of a temple of Goṅkēśvara (called also Gōkēśvara) in the village Dāvulūru in the Tenali taluk by a subordinate of Goṅka named Kommaya-Nāyaka who was the son of Āytama-Nāyaka of the Durjaya family and who had obtained the headmanship (raḍḍikam) of the village Ḍāvulūru from Goṅka. The temple is called in inscriptions by the name Goṅkēśvara and this has been changed in later times into Gōkarṇēśvara by which name it is now known. This is one of the many instances in which historic names of temples have been in course of time superseded by Puranic names given to them with Puranic stories attached thereto. Āytama-Nāyaka and Kommaya-Nāyaka noticed above must have been connected with the Koṇḍapaḍumaṭi chiefs who were also of the Durjaya family and relatives of the Velanāṇḍu chiefs. Another chief of the Durjaya family named Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Bētarāja is mentioned in No. 721 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1154. Bēta calls himself a feudatory of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḍa We know that at this late period there was no Chōḷa-Chāḷukya king of the name. Here we have to infer that the epithet was adopted as a family attribute by the chiefs of this family. The epithet appears also in connection with the early chief Buddharāja of this family (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. VII, Appendix No. 581). Nos. 689 and 716 of 1920 will have to be assigned to the time of Goṅka II, for the latter dated in Śaka 1056 mentions the chief Bhīma who was a son of Paṇḍa and Paṇḍāmbikā who are mentioned in the former as the parents of Eṟapōṭa-Nāyaka who was a commander under Goṅka. Goṅka appears to have been called also Kulōttuṅga-Chōḍa Goṅka. Eṟapōta and Bhīma apparently were brothers.

Paṇḍa and Goṅka who were not of the Velanāṇḍu family.

64. No. 664 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1078 brings to light the names of some new relatives of the Velanāṇḍu family. It states that Māraya-Paṇḍa, the general and maternal uncle of Goṅka, had a wife named Kommama. She was the daughter of Niḍumrāni Kommaya and Mallāmbikā. By Kommama, Paṇḍa had a son named Chōḍa who was also a general (Daṇḍēśa). Paṇḍa, the Velanāṇḍu chief, was the great-grandfather of Goṅka II (see Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1917 page 119). The general Chōḍa noticed above appears to be referred to also in No. 658 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1092 (=A.D. 1170), wherein he is said to have been an officer of the Velanāṇḍu chief Goṅka who ruled over Vēṅgī and Shaṭsahasra. He had a wife named Kaṭṭāmbā by whom he had a son named Goṅka. This Goṅka is said to have defended the town of Krochcheṟuvu against the attacks of the Karṇāṭaka cavalry numbering not less than 30,000. This was a period of decline for the Western Chāḷukya kings of Kalyāṇi. Taila III had died in A.D. 1163 and his successor Sōmēśvara IV was a weak ruler. The entire power was in the hands of his general Bijjala. The fight at Krochcheṟuvu must have been with the armies of Bijjala and probably in alliance with the Kākatīyas of Anumakonḍa who were just then shaking off the Western Chāḷukya yoke. In No. 657 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1092, this Goṅka is described as a commander under Kulōttuṅga Rājēndra-Chōḍa, who according to Dr. Hultzsch, would be identical with the Velanāṇḍu chief Prithivīśvara (Epigraphia Indica, Vol. IV, page 39). Goṅka had a wife called Goṅkāmbikā, who was the daughter of Muchcha, the son of Bharati-Nāyaka and Sūrāmbikā. No. 658 of 1920 mentions a number of sānis with the suffix pāṅgu added to their names. The expression is not in use in modern Telugu and seems to be the Kanarese word pāṅgu which means 'beauty'. Sūrapa-Nāyaka, who was the son of Mēḍurāja and Kāpasāni, is said in No. 655 of 1920, dated Śaka 1093, to have built a temple at Mrōntukūru called Chōḍēśvara in the name of his maternal uncle Chōḍa who may have to be identified with the general Chōḍa noticed above. The present Rāmachōḍēśvara temple of the village is clearly the Chōḍēśvara temple of the inscription; and its present name might have been given on account of a later restoration of it by the chief Rāmachōḍa who flourished in this part of the country in the 12th century A.D. (see Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1918, page 171). No. 670 of 1920, which is much damaged, belongs to the time of Velanāṇṭi Rājēndra-Chōḍa, the son of Goṅka II. The chief assumes in this inscription the lofty Eastern Chāḷukya title Sarvalōkāśraya and adds the suffix Mahārāja to his name. This suggests that the last traces of Eastern Chāḷukya or otherwise called Chōḷa-Chāḷukya supremacy completely disappeared from the Velanāṇḍu country by this time and the then Velanāṇḍu chief aspired to pose as its representative.

Rājēndra-Chōḍa, son of Goṅka II.

65. We have only one record of the family of Telugu Chōḍas in this year's collection, viz., No. 642 of 1920, which comes from Chunḍūru in the Tenali taluk. It mentions Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Pottapi Kā[ma]dēvachōḍa-Mahārāja who was the son of Udayādityadēvachōḍa-Mahārāja and Kāmaladēvī who are not mentioned elsewhere. So this chief Kāmachōḍa must be distinguished from his namesake who was the son of Chōḍa-Ballayya (see Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1900, page 16) of this family. The record suggests that Kāmachōḍa must have had a younger brother named Chōḍa-Balli in whose name he built a temple called Chōḍa-Ballīśvara.

No. 243 of 1897 from Peddacherukūru in the Bapatla taluk of the Guntur district not far from Chundūru from which the above-noticed inscription comes, gives the genealogy of this family extending to seven generations prior to the time of the Kākatīya king Gaṇapati whose records appear from A.D. 1209 onward. Chōḍa-Balli, the first historic person of this branch, had a son called Nanni-Chōḍa who may be identified with Nanni-Chōḍa, the author of the Telugu Kumārasambhavam, who was also the son of Chōḍa-Balli by Śrīdēvī of the Haihaya race (verse 53).

The poet Nanni-Chōḍa—his date.

Allowing an average of twenty-five years for every generation Nanni-Chōḍa cannot be placed earlier than Śaka 1000 (A.D. 1078) which would be a century and a half later than the latest date (A.D. 940) given for him by Mr. Ramakrishnakavi, M.A. in his preface to that poem.

66. Nos. 717 and 740 of 1920 respectively dated in Śaka 1136 and 1181 and No. 641 of 1920, which is not dated, belong to the time of Gaṇapati of the Kākatīya dynasty. The first of these records found so far to the east as Duggirāla proves that his kingdom extended into the Velanāṇḍu country quite early in his reign (i.e., A.D. 1214). This same inscription gives us an instance of royal interference in a boundary dispute that arose between Duggamapūṇḍi (Duggirāla) and the neighbouring villages, to settle which king Gaṇapati, on representation being made to him, sent a commission consisting of his two ministers Mallaparāja and Rudraparāja.

No. 740 of 1920 states that the Kākatīya princess, Rudrāmbā (called Rudrama-Mahādēvī) the daughter of king Gaṇapati was married to the Chāḷukya prince Vīrabhadrēśvara who is not mentioned in any known record. This record confirms the statement made in No. 94 of 1917 that Rudrāmbā was the daughter of Gaṇapati. Rudrāmbā, who reigned under the name Rudradēva-Mahārāja, is represented by Nos. 660, 718 and 712 of 1920, dated respectively in Śaka 1192, 1198 and 1201. The first of these records mentions Vallaya-Nāyaka the aṅgaraksha (body-guard) officer at the gate of the royal palace.

Rudrāmbā married to the Eastern Chāḷukya prince Vīrabhadra.

In Nos. 652, 653 and 715 of 1920 belonging to Pratāpa-Rudra of this line are mentioned an officer of the king Mayi (or Māyi)dēvaleṅka and the king's generalissimo Sōmayaleṅka who had a son called Pōchuleṅka. No. 679 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1233, does not mention the king. But it may also be assigned to the reign of Pratāpa-Rudra since it mentions Māyidēvaleṅka and his son Rudradēva. No. 715 of 1920, which is unfortunately damaged, refers to the laying out of certain streets at Ḍuggirēlapūṇḍi according to prescribed measurements.

Pratāpa-Rudra.

67. Inscription No. 435 of 1920 refers itself to the reign of a Chāgadēva. This chief is probably the same as Chākana who was a general and feudatory of the Western Chāḷukya king Sōmēśvara IV (Bombay Gazetteer, Volume I, Part II, page 435)

Chāgadēva

68. Three inscriptions belonging to Sakalalōkachakravartin Śambuvarāya were copied during this year and of these No. 42 of 1921 contains some interesting information in respect of certain licenses granted to a troupe of actors who claimed the grant of certain privileges like those that they had been enjoying in Śōḷamaṇḍalam, for acting on the stage certain plays (kūttu) at Kāñchīpuram and in al other villages of Toṇḍai-maṇḍalam and who desired these privileges to be engraved on stone in the villages which they visited in their tours.

Sakalalōkachakravartin Śambuvarāya.

Rājanārāyaṇa Śambuvarāya (1337–1360 A.D.) has nine inscriptions to his credit this year in the Chingleput and North Arcot districts; but they merely give a long list of taxes which the king granted to certain temples. Of these, an incomplete record No. 483 of 1920 copied at Puḷal, which mentions a certain Vāgīśvaradēva, the head of a maṭha called the Āḷiyāṇḍār-maṭha in Perumbarrappuliyūr Rājanārāyaṇa Śambuvarāya.

(Chidambaram), an independent village under the control of the Kiḷaimaṭha-santāna of Chella-Tiruvārūr, might in all possibility be the inscription which is referred to in No. 207 of 1912 of Tiruvoṟṟiyūr to have been engraved on the walls of the Tirumūlanāthasvāmin temple at Puḷal. In No. 208 of 1912 from Tiruvoṟṟiyūr we hear of another pontifical seat called the Mēlai-maṭha. Rājanārāyaṇa is called a Mallināṭha in No. 86 of Appendix C and in a short Sanskrit verse at its beginning he is also mentioned as Jīyadēva. The latter name occurs also in No. 49 of the same Appendix.

Chikka-Voḍeya—probably an Ummattūr chief.

69. No. 399 of 1920 refers to a grant made by Chikka-Voḍeya-Mahārāya, which was restored later by Immaḍi Kāchappa-Voḍeya. Chikka-Voḍeya must have been an Ummattūr chief (Mysore and Coorg from Inscriptions, page 155) and if the identification, made in paragraph 12 above, of Immaḍi Kāchapa-Voḍeya with the Kāśappuḍaya of the copper-plates is accepted, the date of the inscription would be Śaka 1407, Krōdhi. Again if Immaḍi Kāchappa-Voḍeya could be proved by future evidence to be a dynastic successor of Chikka-Voḍeya, the natural inference would then be that Kāśappuḍaya or Kāchappa-Voḍeya was an Ummattūr chief. His flight from Kandanavōlu after defeat by Rāmarāja I of Āravīḍu would be consistent with the hostility of the Ummattūr chiefs to the kings of Vijayanagara and their partisans the Āravīṭi chiefs.

Gajapati king Pratāpa-Rudra.

70. A set of three copper-plates strung on a ring belonging to the king Pratāpa-Rudra of the Gajapāti family of Orissa was sent to me by the District Munsif of Kāvali. This is given as No. 12 of Appendix A to this Report. The plates measure 8·1 inches in breadth and 3·7 inches in height. The ring that holds them together is 2·5 inches in diameter and carries a fixed seal, the circular surface of which is blank.

The grant is dated in the Śaka year 1432, Pramōda (= A.D. 1510–11). The king Pratāpa-Rudra, who is stated to be the son of Purushōttama and grandson of Kapilēndra, is mentioned also by the name Veṅkaṭa-Gajarāja. He is said to have recovered his kingdom from the Gauḍa king who was defeated by him. He is called also Pañcha-Gauḍādhināyaka, the supreme lord of the five Gauḍas, i.e., Gauḍa countries. He was ruling over the Chōḷa-maṇḍala in the Pāka-nāḍu and had the birudas Tribhuvana-Tōḍaramalla. The present grant was issued from the capital (of the Pāka-nāḍu) Uṇḍrakoṇḍa which had a hill fort. This is probably the same as the Indrakoṇḍa mentioned on page 353 of Brigg's Ferishta Vol. II, as having been claimed among the conquests of the Golkonda king Sultan Kutb Shah about 1500 A.D. Among the officers of the king are mentioned the Beharā-Mahāpātras who must have given the name to the village Beharāvāripalle in the Narasaraopet taluk of the Guntur district, part of which country also was under this Gajapati chief till the capture of Koṇḍavīḍu by the Vijayanagara king Krishṇarāya from Pratāpa-Rudra Gajapati, who is identical with the king mentioned in the present copper-plate inscription. The conquest of Gauḍa claimed by Pratāpa-Rudra must have taken place in the time of Moozuffur Hushby, the king of Bengal and Bihar, who died in A.D. 1497 (ibid., Vol. IV, page 347). Hushby and his minister Shureef were not on friendly terms and there was something approaching to a civil war towards the end of his reign which must have given the Gajapati king a chance to invade Bengal (Gauḍa).

Gōlkoṇḍa kings.

Khulli Kutb Shah.

71. Of king Khulli Kutb Shah of Golkonda who reigned from about A.D. 1580 to 1612 three inscriptions have been secured during the year. The earliest of these viz., No. 750 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1505, comes from Juttiga and mentions a Hindu subordinate of the king named Sōmēśvara who was the son of Peddirāja and grandson of Sattirāja Sōmarāja. Reference is also made in this record to the reign of Ibrahim (Kutb) Shah. The other two records No. 649 of 1920 dated in Saka 1520 (= A.D. 1598) and No. 50 of 1920 dated in Śubhakṛit corresponding to Śaka 1525 (= A.D. 1603) do not mention any notable subordinate chief or event of the period.

72. No. 375 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1572 (= A.D. 1650) mentions Gōlakoṇḍa and it refers to the king as Hajarati Navābu with the titles Rājādhirāja and Rāja-Paramēśvara. This record must be assigned to Abdullah Kutb Shah who succeeded Khulli Kutb Shah and reigned from A.D. 1611 to 1672. In A.D. 1650 the keeper of his seals (mudrakarta) is said to have been at Ghaṇḍikōṭa.

Abdullah Kutb Shah.

73. To the time of the last king, Abu Hassan, of this dynasty must be assigned No. 681 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1602 (= A.D. 1680). The inscription states that the king, to whom was represented a boundary dispute that arose between the villages Yeḍlapalli and Penugudurupāḍu, first issued orders to Karīmā Mulā (the officer) of the Koṇḍavīṭi-durga to ascertain by personal enquiry the ownership of the disputed land. The officers of the Koṇḍavīṭi-durga having reported to the king that the land belonged to Yeḍlapalli, the king deputed Rājaśrī Rustumrāya and Mānikyarāya of Koṇḍavīḍu to put up fresh stone edicts., which they accordingly did.

Boundary dispute settled by Royal Commission.

74. The copper-plate inscription No. 10 of Appendix A refers itself to the time of the king of Golkonda who is mentioned only as the Mogalāyi Pedda-Navābu of Golkonda who was ruling over the Karṇāṭaka on behalf of the Pāchchāyi, i.e., Padushā of Delhi, having previously besieged Gutti and occupied it. It records the incident of a caravan of merchants being robbed at the village called Pātakottacheruvu near Gutti and on their representation to the Navābu at Gutti, his issuing of orders to the immediate owners of the country to make good the loss sustained by the merchants. The owner of the land, a certain Timmā-Nāyaka sold his property and with the proceeds made good the loss of the merchants, though with some strain on his resources. The inscription is incomplete. But it throws some light on the system of administration prevailing in the Karṇāṭaka country during the Muhammadan rule in the 17th century A.D. The moral responsibility of the lord of the country, where the loss through robbery occurred, realised and emphasised by him at this period is worthy of notice. It is clearly a survival of the ancient law of the land as it prevailed in the time of the Maurya king Chandragupta (see Kauṭilya's Arthaśāstra, translation p. 293).

Loss through robbery made up by the chief of the country.

The above record states that the Gutti fort was besieged by Gajapati Hammīra during the time of the Vijayanagara king Praudhadēvarāya, about Śaka 1344 (=A.D. 1422). Ferishta records an invasion of the kingdom of Dew Ray of Beejanuggur (Dēvarāya of Vijayanagara) by the Bahmini king Ahmad Shah Wully Bahmini about the year A.D. 1431 (Brigg's translation, Volume II, p. 400 ff.). This was an attack against the combined dominions of the Vijayanagara king and the king of Warangal, who was the ally of Vijayanagara. The Gajapati king Hammīra must have joined hands with the Bahmini king against these two kings at this time. There was constant hostility between the Gajapati sovereigns and the Hindu kings of the immediate South (see Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1919. p. 106). The record itself may be assigned to the period immediately after A.D. 1686 when the Golkonda king Abu Hassan succumbed to the attacks of the Mughal armies from Delhi.

75. No. 174 of 1921 engraved round the platform of the dhvajastambha of the Perumāḷ temple at Erikutti in the Gudiyattam taluk of the North Arcot district records that while Furuksh Badshā, grandson of Aurangazeb, was ruling from the Mughal throne in Śaka 1640 (= A.D. 1718) corresponding to the cyclic year Vilambi and while Sa-adat Ullā Khān was Nawab of the Carnatic, Nimala Ayyappa-Nāyakaṉ (and) Perumāḷ-Nāyakaṉ, who were in charge of the public charities, dug under special orders of Ammudu-tāyār, who held the Jāghir of Erikurukki, two tanks and endowed certain lands for their upkeep.

76. The two copper-plates registered as Nos. 14 and 15 of Appendix A of this report belong to M.R.Ry. Rao Bahadur V. A. Vandayar Avargal who is on the Tanjore temple committee and were forwarded to me for examination by the Collector of that district. These are charters issued in Śaka 1680 (= A.D. 1758) and Śaka 1681 (= A.D. 1759) during the reign of Pratāpasimha, of the Tanjore Mahrātta dynasty, who wrested the kingdom from his weaker elder brother Sāhuji or Saiyāji and ascended the throne in about A.D. 1749, ruling it till his death in 1765 A.D

The records in question are very carelessly written like the generality of the charters of the later centuries and start by giving, with no attempt at chronological sequence, a list of the kings of the dynasties, which had been connected with Tanjore. The following kings of the Vijayanagara dynasty are mentioned in the incorrect order of Prauḍhadēva, Achyuta, Mallikārjuna, Virūpāksha, Śrīraṅga and Kṛishṇadēva of Ānegondi; and of the Tanjore Nāyakas, only Achyutappa-Nāyaka, Śēvappa-Nāyaka and Vijayarāghava-Nāyaka. Even in the latter case, the chronological order of the first two Nāyaka kings is reversed while the name of Raghunātha (1614 A.D.) who succeeded Achyutappa as the third king of the line has been omitted. After the Nāyakas is mentioned the Tanjore Mahrāṭṭa line, founded by Veṅkāji alias Ēkōji, who established himself at Tanjore in about 1675 A.D. after defeating the Madura Nāyaka's emissary Aḷagiri, and ousting Śeṅgamaladāsa, the rightful heir of the original Nāyaka line. In the enumeration of the few kings of this new line, some chronological correctness is maintained, though all the statements made are not to be taken as historical facts. For instance, Ēkōji's successors are correctly given as Shāji, Sarabhōji, Tuḷasī (Tukkōji) and Bābā Sāheb. But for the period subsequent to Bābā Sāheb, who is known to have had a short rule of one year and after whose death some internal dissensions arose, the information supplied by the copper-plates is defective. Aṇṇā Sāheb and Nānā Sāheb are next mentioned in the line of succession; but they are reported to have been the third and fourth sons of Tukkōji and to have pre-deceased their father (vide., page 44 of the Tanjore District Gazetteer), while no reference is made to Saiyāji, the second son of Tukkōji, who is known to have had a short and disturbed reign, before his final alliance with the English in 1749 A.D. Next in order, comes Pratāpasiṁha the fifth and illegitimate son of Tukkōji, in whose reign (A.D. 1758–59) the two charters under reference were issued. The relationship of this king given on page 193 of Sewell's List of Antiquities, Vol. II, as the second son of Bābā Sāheb is opposed to the more probable view taken in the Tanjore Gazetteer, that he was the last son of Tukkōji.

Tanjore Mahrāṭṭas.

These two copper-plates contain two records each making four records in all. Of these, the two engraved on copper-plate No. 14 register the gifts of 40 and 45 Rājagōpāla-chakram-poṉ respectively, by Savvāyi Vijayaraghunātha-Gōpālar, the chief of Śirunellikkōṭṭai and by the people of the sixteen divisions that lay between the western and eastern boundaries of Pāppākudi-nāḍu in Poyyūr-kūṟṟam, for the evening and mid-day worship in the Vishṇu temple of Jayaṅgoṇḍanāthasvāmin of Pāmbā-nāḍu (namely, the modern Maṇṇārgudi). The records engraved on the other plate also relate to similar gifts made by Savvāyi Vijayaraghunātha-Meyttana-Gōpālar and by Rāmaviruda-Vijayadēvar for the service called Kōlāhalaṉ-śandi and for night offerings respectively to be conducted in the same temple. Samara-Kōlāhala was, we know, a biruda of the Pāṇḍya king Bhuvanēkavīra of the 14th century (page 3 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1890), but it cannot be said whether the service might have been called after him. Rājagōpālaṇchakram, a coin probably current in those times, was perhaps named after the god Rājagōpāla at Maṇṇārgudi.

Kōlāhalaṉ-śandi.

77. Another inscription (No. 83 of Appendix C) engraved on the eastern wall of the outer prākāra of the Ēkāmranātha temple at Conjeeveram is somewhat peculiar in that it is a record in English dated in 1799 A.D., mentioning, as it does, the repair of 30 yards of the prākāra wall by Mr. Hodgson, who was the Collector of the Chingleput district till 1800 A.D. The repairs of the ruined wall should have been undertaken by him either because of its menace to public safety or from other sympathetic motives; and this act of his must have had its own share in contributing to the popularity of that officer, which is evidenced by a portion of the town of Conjeeveram being called Hodgsonpet after him.

78. Another important inscription in this year's collection is No. 81 of Appendix C which consists of the first six verses of the Sūryaśataka of Mayūrakavi engraved in characters of about the early part of 11th century A.D. on a pillar in the maṇḍapa in front of the Durgā shrine in the Kachchīśvara temple at Conjeeveram. In all probability, it was a votive pillar erected by somebody in honour of the Sun-god (Sūryadēva), one of the Pañchasandhi deities

(Aiñjandidēvar as the group is called in Tamil), who is installed in a small shrine in the compound of the same temple. The inscription under reference does not however contain any endorsement giving historical information as to when, by whom and under what circumstances, the verses were incised on this pillar. There might have been more pillars of this type which might have contained other verses of the same śataka but they are not existent now; and the presence of this pillar in the Durgā shrine has to be accounted for by its probable displacement during temple repairs in later days—probably in the time of Kulōttuṅga I, when the central shrine of the Kachchīśvara temple seems to have undergone thorough overhauling (No. 68 of Appendix C).

Mayūrakavi was a court-poet, who flourished in the court of Harsha in the first half of the 7th century A.D. and is reputed to have been the father-in-law of Bāṇabhaṭṭa; while in the Prabhandachintāmaṇi, the relationship is mentioned as that of a brother-in-law (sister's husband)—(vide., Sūryaśatakam in the Kāvyamālā Series of Bombay). His only work is the Sūryaśatakam, which is also popularly known by the name of Mayūraśatakam. The verses are written in the Sragdharā metre and their literary merit coupled with the miraculous results which are alleged to have attended their composition, have secured for them great popularity among the orthodox. The author appears to have been suffering from blindness and to have been cured of his troublesome disease by composing these verses in praise of God Sūrya, so that even to-day these verses are used for purposes of pārāyaṇam (i.e., devout recitation). This is therefore another instance of purely literary matter engraved on stone; and this adds one more to the number of similar stray examples which have been hitherto met with elsewhere in this Presidency, viz., the music inscription at Kuḍimiyāmalai (Ep. Ind. Vol. XII, No. 28), the Bharatanāṭya verses at Chidambaram (pages 74 to 81 of the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1913–14, the Dēvāram inscription at Tiruvidavāyal (No. 8 of 1918) and the Hanumadvimśatī at Conjeeveram (No. 651 of 1919).

79. A number of copper plate records that have been secured by the Kanarese Assistant from the Gooty taluk have been referred to in Part I, paragraph 9. These are, as remarked by me there, apparent forgeries presuming to have been issued by the kings of Vijayanagara but giving them extravagantly early dates. But three of them Nos. 5, 6 and 8 of Appendix A, which record foundations of villages and allotments of permanent holdings to the several village officers and servants are of a somewhat interesting nature, in so far as they lay down the several units of service that made up the village economy. These were the reḍḍi (headman), the karaṇam (accountant), the purōhit (religious guide), the kammāra (blacksmith), the vaḍla or vaḍragi (carpenter), the akkasāli (goldsmith), the sarābu (cashkeeper), the talāri (village police), kummari (potter), the washerman, the barber, the bārika (a menial servant who guards the fields), and shikāri (hunter) who is also called kirāta in some parts and yēnādi in other parts of the country, because of the usual employment of people of these tribes for purpose of scaring away or destroying the wild beasts that might molest the village and its crops.

Units of service in villages.

80. Among the inscriptions coming from the Gooty taluk are a few that have a bearing upon the question and condition of tenancy. Nos. 433 and 446 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1451 and 1452, respectively and No. 432 of 1920 the date of which is lost, record leases of villages restored on favourable terms by the chiefs governing or owning them. All the three records explicitly state that the cultivable lands of the villages concerned were lying neglected and fallow and the present leases were given on terms clearly laid down therein. The parties to these leases are the chief on one side as the lessor and the Gauḍa or Reḍḍi (headman), Sēnabōva or Karaṇam (accountant) and the samastaprajās (people) of the village on the other as the lessees. These documents are called in the inscriptions sāguvaḷiya-śāsanas. No. 437 of 1920 is an instance of a grant made to a temple priest reinstating him in his old place exempting him from the payment of a tax of ten poṉ to the chief of the village. The inscription says, that the priest had resigned his appointment because of his incapacity to pay the dues to the chief and had left the village. No. 436 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1532, records a gift of land made by Pemmasāni Timmā-Nāyaka to the stone-cutter Bandapa for his extraordinary skill in his art. The record makes no mention of any definite piece of service done by the donee, as in the instances noticed below, for which the grant was meant as a remuneration. On the other hand, from the statement that the donor was struck with admiration for his skill, the grant appears to have been made more in the nature of a prize than as a remuneration. No. 442 of 1920 registers a gift of land called pulimānya, probably for killing a tiger.

Gift of land as a reward by Pemmasāni Timmā-Nāyaka.

81. Of a different nature from the above-mentioned gifts are the grants of lands made to private individuals for definite services rendered viz., construction of a tank (Nos. 373 and 405 of 1920), for the finishing up and construction of a temple, tank and well (No. 371 of 1920), for the construction of a well only (No. 327 of 1920) and the polishing of the images of gods (No. 338 of 1920). This system of giving lands for services offers a strange contrast to the modern practice of payment in money. The gift of land which served as a permanent source of income must have been intended as a remuneration made for the permanent retention of the services of the donees for the benefit of the village or the temple on behalf of which the grants were made.

Gifts of land for services rendered.

82. In paragraph 1 above, it has been noticed that the twenty-seven Mahājanas of the agrahāra village Nādanūru made gifts of lands jointly. Another instance of a gift made jointly by the Mahājanas of an agrahāra is found in No. 405 of 1920. The gift of land for the construction of a tank in the village was made with the common consent of the several āyagāras of the village not excluding the tōṭi (lowest caste menial servant of the village). No. 729 of 1920 dated in Śaka 1199 registers the conferring of a holding (vritti) on a smith called Annapāsāri, in the name of the god Sōmēśvara by the Śri-Karanam (temple accountant) the tambalis (Śivārchakas), the sānis (see paragraph 20 above) and the seventy-two servants of the temple. A grant to a temple is made in the cognizance of the Body of the Five-hundred of the village Hāmbulige (No. 460 of 1920). A canal in the village Honnahattige was dug by a certain Sōyidēva at the requisition of all the Mahājanas of the village (No. 377 of 1920). Two members of the Dombari (acrobat) community make grants to temples on behalf of the entire community (vide., Nos. 363 and 370 of 1920). Similar grants were made by members of the Vipravinōdi community as can be seen from some inscriptions of the Vijayanagara times coming from the Gooty taluk.

Communal gifts on behalf of temples and villages.

Gifts by the Dōmbari and Vipravinōdi communities.

83. We have met with the territorial division called Pāgunāra-vishaya in certain inscriptions of the Āndhra country. Among the earliest epigraphical references to this division is the copper-plate grant No. 6 of 1916–17 (see Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1917, page 132, paragraph 52). Among the inscriptions of this year are a few, viz., Nos. 734 and 736 of 1920, dated in Śaka 1082 and No. 744 of 1920 bearing no date, which come from Juttiga in the Tanuku taluk which refer to the Pāvanavāra-vishaya, through which the river Gūdhasthanī flowed and in which the village Ḍuttika (modern Juttiga) was situated. The Pāvanavāra-vishaya must be the same as the Pāgunāra-vishaya referred to above and either of these names might be the original of the Prāṇnāḍu to which a sect of Āndhra Brahmans are now said to belong. The territorial division must have included within it the modern Tanuku taluk or a part of it.

Pāgunāra and Pāvanavāra-vishayas identified.

Prāṇnāḍu.
